200 CARS TO LEAVE ATLANTA THIS MORNING ON '4 CAPITALS' MOTORCADE TO SAVANNAH

PRICE RISE STAND OF F. D. R. STRESSED IN PAY HIKE MOVE

Government Salaries To Be Restored To Pre-Depression Level by Next July 1 Under New Presidential Decree.

STATEMENT STIRS INFLATION TALK

Move Looked Upon as Evidence Administration Determined To Lift Costs, Buying Power.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—(AP)—An administration determination to lift prices and purchasing power during the next eight months was evidenced today in a presidential decree that government salaries would be restored to their pre-depression level by next July 1.

Mr. Roosevelt, making known his intention at his semi-weekly press conference, revealed that the budget for the new fiscal year would include funds for replacing the last 5 per cent of the 15 this administration lopped off of federal salaries.

The cost of living will be high enough by July 1, when the next fiscal year begins, to justify the salary increase, the president declared. He does not expect it to be high enough by the end of this year to warrant the boost.

At the same time the rise in prices is coming about, Mr. Roosevelt said there would be an increase in wages and salaries, thereby lessening difficulty of paying debts.

Part of Long Tug.

Major emphasis was placed at the White House upon the price and income boosting. The move represents a continuation of the long tug toward levels at which the president will be willing to stabilize.

The factors to enter into the lifting process were not disclosed. The presidential reiteration, however, served to recall the immediate speculation which arose after the last such declaration as to whether any inflation would be employed to this end.

Efforts of the last year have been directed toward bringing assets and liabilities into line, but the administration does not yet feel that assets have reached the proper level for immediate stabilization. In the drive to increase prices, however, it has been stressed that the brakes would be clamped on to prevent the rise from getting out of hand.

Key to Money Policy.

Much of the development of the administration's monetary policy has been, and is, dependent upon the progress toward bringing prices into line.

Recent administration economic surveys have disclosed that the nation's assets now exceed the liabilities, whereas a year and a half ago assets lay in the shadow of liabilities.

During the last year, the efforts of the administration have been directed toward raising the asset column by increasing values. The boost in gold and silver prices; the trimming of farm production so as to raise agricultural prices; these and other activities have gone into the effort to hike the value of assets.

At the same time, liabilities have

State Delegation Seeks Cotton Act Referendum

Georgia Congressional Group to Ask Wallace to Act; F. D. R. Called Upon to Expand Foreign Markets for Cotton.

By E. D. BALL.
Associated Press Staff Writer.

The Georgia democratic delegation in congress decided Wednesday to ask Secretary Wallace to call an immediate referendum on the continuance of the Bankhead cotton control act.

Meeting at the call of Senator Walter F. George, the delegation also asked the secreaary of agriculture for immediate action on a compensation tax on all fibres competitive with cotton and to announce that benefits to peanut growers and processors, including crushers, be continued and paid on all peanuts purchased and crushed prior to January 1, 1935.

President Roosevelt was called upon by the delegation to use his power under the tariff act to expand foreign markets for cotton and textiles.

A letter was addressed to John H. Fahy, chairman of the home loan bank board at Washington, protesting the removal of the assistant regional manager, Charles C. McGehee, and demanding the immediate discharge of William F. Penniman, assistant general manager of the board. Before his removal McGehee was connected with the board's Atlanta office.

"Fair Expression" Sought.

In the request for a referendum on the Bankhead act, the delegation asked that "provision be made for a fair, free, frank expression" to be obtained from every producer of cotton as to the application of the measure to the 1935 crop.

"It is the sense of the delegation that each producer be allowed to vote on this matter so vitally affecting his interests, irrespective of cotton production," Senator George said in announcing the action of the delegation.

The caucus asked Secretary Wallace to act immediately on the compensating tax on fibers, especially rayon and silk.

"It is the sense of the delegation that the expansion of foreign trade on raw cotton and cotton textiles is vital to cotton-growing states," Senator George said in connection with the request to the president, "and that every effort be made not only to expand this commerce" under the reciprocal tariff act, but through every agency of the government to increase foreign trade on other American products and manufactures.

"Likewise, that every agency designed to discover and expand new uses of basic farm products, including cotton, should exercise full power delegated to such agencies by the congress."

The letter to Fahy also protested the transfer "from Washington to the

Collection of Damages in Simulated Accidents Charged by Grand Jury.

Two lawyers and a physician were named in indictments returned by the Fulton grand jury Wednesday following earlier indictments against others which resulted from an investigation by Solicitor-General Boykin's office of an alleged series of fake damage claims which have been made in Atlanta.

Solicitor Boykin Wednesday night, while he would not predict that further indictments might be expected, did say that the investigation of the alleged fake claims was by no means completed and that his office would continue its probe of the alleged illegal practices.

Named in the indictments are Thomas E. Scott and Robert F. Turnipseed, attorneys, and Dr. B. F. Williams. In bills containing several counts the attorneys are charged with cheating and swindling, while Dr. Williams is charged with false swearing in an affidavit concerning one H. T. Fisher, certifying to injuries.

In the bill against Turnipseed, containing three counts, it is charged that he conspired with Sam Worthy and H. T. Worthy to defraud Tripod Paint Company of $125, and collected $62, on a claim that E. M. Brooks was injured by one of the company's trucks. In another count he is charged with conspiring with Sam Worthy to Swindle Black & White Cab Co. of $150, and collected $30, claiming that one Robert Long, who in reality, it is set forth, was Worthy, was injured when a cab driver threw open a door and knocked him down. In a third count Georgia Power Company is said to have been the victim of a con-

CHEST CAMPAIGN IS $117,384 SHORT

Volunteers Redouble Efforts, Every Citizen Urged To Give Generously.

With total subscriptions falling $117,384 short of the quota of $400,000, Community Chest volunteer solicitors Wednesday redoubled their efforts while campaign leaders pleaded with every citizen to "give, and give immediately and generously, else the services of the agencies must be impaired."

Robert F. Maddox, Community Chest president, declared his confidence that "if the people of Atlanta realize the heavy load the agencies are carrying and the great work they are doing, they will not permit them to suffer for lack of funds."

Expressing appreciation of the intensive efforts of Community Chest solicitors, Mr. Maddox urged every citizen to recognize the necessity of individual action. He asked that citizens mail pledges to Chest headquarters, without waiting for personal solicitation, and making the final campaign meeting of Friday night "a victory dinner in fact."

Subscriptions of $41,600 were reported at the Friday luncheon meeting of workers, bringing the total to date up to $282,616. Grand totals reported were as follows:

GRAND TOTALS.

	Quota.	Friday.	To Date.
Groups	104,750	7,529	54,037
Branch houses	11,000	1,089	11,150
Individual (downtown)	47,030	5,970	27,903
Individual (residential)	25,627	2,219	17,981
Colored	5,900	364	1,422
Totals	$399,590	$41,600	$292,616

The meeting was given over to reports of individual workers, and, although revealing the campaign far from its goal, it brought to light incidents that served to strengthen the determination of solicitors to see that every individual gets an opportunity to sign a pledge card.

The day's reports showed quotas exceeded by women workers in practically every district, with H. M. Powell, as the one man who has secured more than the amount assigned to him. Mr. Powell is chairman of the branch houses division, and, with a quota of $11,000, reported subscriptions totaling $11,150, and his workers still campaigning.

One unexpected subscription was announced by Mr. Maddox, who reported that Jim Gagin, of New York City, who is in Atlanta as a representative of the Chain Store Age, had clipped a newspaper coupon and sent in his subscription.

The Decatur division reported pledges of $5,205 against a quota of $8,000. Charles J. McKinney, chairman of the DeKalb Community Chest campaign, and C. H. Blount, chairman of the DeKalb county chapter of the American Red Cross, appealed to citizens of every section of the county to send subscriptions without waiting for personal solicitation, stating that it would be impossible for workers to see everyone before the close of the campaign on Friday.

Britain To Institute Munitions Inquiry

LONDON, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The British government has decided to establish an inquiry into the private manufacture and sale of war materials, it was stated in political quarters tonight. Official confirmation, however, was lacking for the present.

The Daily Mail said the government's decision was partly a result of the senatorial inquiry of the United States at Washington and also partly because of a deadlock in the disarmament conference.

YOUTH IS KILLED, 5 OTHERS INJURED AS CAR HITS POLE

James C. Duke Jr., 22, Loses Life on Stewart Avenue, Driving Home From Watching Halloween Celebrators.

One man was killed, three girls were injured, two of them seriously, and two other young men were injured critically late Wednesday night when a party of Halloween celebrators met tragedy en route to their homes. The accident occurred at Stewart avenue and Hope street.

The dead man was James C. Duke Jr., 22-year-old guard at the South Bend convict camp near Hapeville.

The injured are the Misses Frances, Sybil and Estelle Gazaway, of 825 North avenue, Hapeville; Fenton Pruitt, 17, of 35 Oak drive, Hapeville, and Harvey Roberts, 19, of 21 Woodrow drive, Hapeville. All are at Grady hospital.

The death of young Duke was the 51st automobile fatality in Atlanta this year and the eleventh of the month, closing out one of the most disastrous months of the year as far as traffic fatalities are concerned.

The surviving members of the party were too badly shaken up to tell of the tragedy Wednesday night but police and residents of the Stewart and Hope neighborhood were told that young Duke, who was driving, in attempting to avoid striking another car, crashed his small sedan into a telephone pole. Duke was dead when he reached Grady hospital. His automobile was demolished.

Physicians at Grady said preliminary examination showed that Frances Gazaway, 18, and her sister, Estell, 19, appeared to be dangerously injured, although the extent of the injuries were not determined immediately. The doctors said that the third sister, Sybil, 14, suffered a broken leg and other injuries. The two young men escaped with less serious injury.

The party was returning to Hapeville after spending the evening downtown participating in and watching the Halloween celebration.

Younk Duke had been a guard at the South camp for four years. His father, James C. Duke Sr., is clerk at the camp and both are widely known over the county.

In another accident Wednesday night, Doris Gray, 18, of Hogan road, East Point, suffered a broken leg in an accident at Pryor and Garnett streets. The young woman is in Grady hospital. She also is suffering from shock and other injuries.

The accident occurred when Halloween pranksters threw a big trash can in front of the car in which Miss Gray was riding. The car was driven by Fred King, 20, of 177 Ben Hill road, East Point. He swerved to one side to avoid striking the can and crashed into a building. King received cuts and bruises. He was treated at Grady and taken home.

Four others in the car escaped injury.

Mueller Resignation Reported in Berlin

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Along with definite moves for peace among the nation's protestant churchgoers on the part of nazi officials today were rumors, still unconfirmed, that Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller had resigned.

An unconfirmed report said Mueller had been invited to visit the ministry of the interior where he was given a hint it might soon be time for him to take a much-needed rest. But it was noted that an appeal on behalf of winter relief appeared at the same time in Berlin newspapers under his signature.

Meanwhile churches prepared to hold services of thanksgiving for Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's decision to keep the nazi party out of church affairs.

2 Killed, 6 Injured In Crashes in Macon

MACON, Ga., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Tragedy stalked in the closing hours of Macon's Halloween celebration tonight, as two young men were killed and six other persons were injured in two automobile wrecks.

The dead: Erasmus R. King, an employe of the Macon Gas Company, and Joseph E. Wilder, both of Macon addresses.

Tech Student Killed in Auto Crash On Way To Wed at Louisiana Home

C. A. Summerlin Jr., 22, a sophomore at Georgia Tech, was killed Wednesday when his automobile collided with another car at Boligee, Ala., while the youth was en route to Lake Providence, La., his home, to marry Miss Madge Rusk there.

According to press dispatches from Demopolis, Ala., young Summerlin was dead when brought to Boligee from the scene of the wreck, although Henry Koch, who witnessed the wreck and carried the injured youth to a physician's office, said the Tech student was not killed instantly.

Charles Wells, a salesman, of Eufaula, Ala., was the driver of the other car. He was seriously injured and was taken to a hospital in Tuscaloosa, Ala. The two cars collided head-on on a recently graded gravel road at about 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

At the undertaking establishment where young Summerlin's body was taken it was said Wednesday night that his father was en route to return the body to Lake Providence, his home, and the town where the youth had hoped he would claim his bride within a few days.

Young Summerlin was born in Kopperl, Texas, on May 25, 1912. He went to high school in Mississippi and entered Georgia Tech, in the mechanical department in September, 1931. He left the school in the fall of the following year, re-entering as a sophomore this year to complete his course.

National Commander Frank A. Belgrano, of the American Legion, making his first public address since his election at the Miami convention, Wednesday night pledged himself to work for the "mandates" of the convention, the most important of which call for the immediate payment of the veterans' adjusted service certificates, which he said erroneously had been called the "bonus," and for a selective service law, visioned by the Legion head as a measure which would eliminate post-war prosperity eras and post-prosperity depressions, such as that from which the nation is now emerging.

Speaking before several hundred members of the Georgia department of the Legion and their dinner guests, including leaders of the city and state, at the Capital City Club, Commander Belgrano declared that he planned to follow the simple and terse terms of the Legion "bonus" resolution, which recommended to the present national administration that the payment of the adjusted service certificates would do much toward completing the national recovery program.

The national commander, in baring his plans for pushing the Legion's growing desire for the selective service act, pointed out that adoption of such a program would give the president authority to call on the national resources as well as the national manhood in time of war, eliminate war profits to individuals and as a result eliminate overly prosperous eras after the war.

"In many respects the post-war prosperity is the cause of the present depression," the commander, a San Francisco banker of the House of Giannini, declared. "By eliminating one we eliminate the other, the depression."

Melton Shares Program.

Sharing the program with Commander Belgrano was National Vice Commander Quimby Melton, of Griffin, former commander of the Georgia department of the Legion. Included in the guests were Senators Walter F. George and Richard B. Russell

TENNESSEE COURT HALTS TVA DEAL

Sale of TPS Delayed Pending Review of Commission's Approval.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 31.—(AP) Closing of the deal for the Tennessee Valley Authority to purchase the Tennessee Public Service Company's properties at Knoxville by tomorrow midnight was halted today by a circuit court order.

Knoxville is the first large municipality to bid for the Authority's "yardstick" power program.

Today's ruling, issued by Judge E. F. Langford, prevents completion of the sale of Tennessee Public Service Company's properties at and around Knoxville to the TVA pending a review of the state utilities commission's approval of the transaction. Counsel for the Authority said it will be impossible to close the deal after tomorrow.

Giving objectors to the sale until noon tomorrow to execute a $75,000 bond as a protection against injury to defendants, including the city of Knoxville, Judge Langford heard arguments involving the time limit for the transaction.

While counsel for 13 Tennessee ice and coal companies protesting the deal said it could be completed "at any time," Will R. Manier Jr., a TVA attorney, told the court that "regardless of what has been said" as to a deadline for the transaction, "it is certain" that it cannot be completed after tomorrow.

A contract between the TPS and the TVA will not be binding after tonight, but this could be extended by mutual consent. At midnight tomorrow, however, a sale agreement with TPS bondholders expires.

Judge Langford pointed out that a $25,000 bond fixed when a temporary stay order was issued last week was still binding and would remain in effect until the $75,000 is posted.

USDA License Plate Scares Mountaineer

"What's them letters stand for," asked the mountaineer, pointing to the government license tag lettered USDA.

"United States department of agriculture," said the flustered engineer.

The pistol disappeared and the man on horseback apologized:

INJUNCTION TO BAR LINDSAY IS DENIED

Ruling against Reuben Garland, Judge J. R. Hutcheson, at Douglasville, Wednesday afternoon dismissed a petition for an injunction against permitting the name of Paul Lindsay to go on the DeKalb county general election ballot next Tuesday as a democratic nominee for state representative.

The ruling seemingly blocked Garland in his efforts to keep Lindsay's name off the democratic ticket, but immediately following Judge Hutcheson's decision attorneys for Garland obtained from the court a fast bill of exceptions to the state supreme court.

Judge Hutcheson said his granting of the bill of exceptions did not include any stay of judgment nor did it give Garland a writ of supercedeas which would prevent the ordinary from putting Lindsay's name on the ballot.

"The matter stands now just as if it had never been in my court," Judge Hutcheson said.

Case Already Heard.

Judge Hutcheson based his ruling against Garland on the ground that the same case had already been heard by Judge W. M. Harper, of Americus, who denied the injunction last Saturday.

Attorneys for the Garland faction declared that the new petition was different from that ruled upon by Judge Harper at Americus, but Judge Hutcheson declared:

"I can't put myself in the position of hearing this same petition from each of the 12,000 voters in the county. I'm through with it."

Lindsay asked advice what to do if his opponents secured another temporary injunction from other judge.

"That's up to the other judge," replied Judge Hutcheson. "I'm done with the case."

Bill Is Signed.

Judge Hutcheson signed the bill of exceptions, presented by A. J. Hartley, representing the Garland side, on the ground that Garland still had a case before the court in the mandamus hearing which comes up for hearing at Leesburg on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The mandamus

OFFICIAL START OF GREAT CARAVAN IS SET FOR 8 A. M.

Participating Motorists Asked To Assemble at State Capitol at 7:30 O'Clock To Be Assigned Places in Line.

GREAT PROGRAM AWAITS VISITORS

Savannah Arranges Two-Day Round of Entertainment; 'Cade To Be Swelled to 500 Cars.

By RALPH T. JONES.

More than 200 automobiles, gaily bedecked with flags, with official insignia on windshields and with official numbers attached, will fall in line on Washington street at the state capitol at 7:30 o'clock this morning, ready for the start, promptly at 8 o'clock, of the "Four Capitals" motorcade from Atlanta to Savannah.

By the time the procession reaches Savannah, after traveling over the recently completed, all-paved "four capitals" highway through the state, there will be between 400 and 500 cars in line. Delegations from every town or city along the route will swell the total, as well as groups of cars from several cities not directly on the route, which will form a junction with the 'cade at convenient points.

At Statesboro a Savannah motorcade of 150 cars will meet the travelers, ready to escort them into the port city where two days of celebration, of fun and good fellowship await them as guests of the city of Savannah and its citizens.

Headquarters in Savannah will be at the Hotel DeSoto, where several of the most intriguing events on the official program will take place in the famous Dancing Tavern night club and gold room.

Policemen to Aid.

Insignia and instructions have been mailed to all cars registered for the motorcade. Motorcycle police and official cars will be on hand this morning to aid every driver to find his right place in line and to see that the motorcade starts off in good order and promptly at 8 o'clock.

The cars will head north across the Washington street viaduct, with the lead car, or pacesetter, at the corner of Washington and Gilmer. A motorcycle escort will signal by siren when to start and the same signals will be used throughout the drive for starting and stopping.

Mayor James L. Key, of Atlanta, with Mayor Thomas Gamble, of Savannah, who first suggested the motorcade, will be in car No. 1 and the 200 others will line up in numerical order behind them.

The motorcade is sponsored by The Savannah Morning News and The Atlanta Constitution. Several official cars will carry representatives, newsmen and photographers of both pa-

SINCLAIRITES WIN REGISTRATION TILT

State Supreme Court Bars Move To Disqualify 24,000 Voters.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—(AP)—A legal move toward mass disqualification of 24,000 alleged fraudulently registered voters in Los Angeles county, stronghold of Upton Sinclair, democratic gubernatorial nominee, was blocked today by the state supreme court. Sinclairites hailed the ruling as a victory.

With election only five days away, the high court's decision was interpreted by State Attorney General U. S. Webb, a republican, as preventing similar projected action against other thousands of persons before November 6.

"The opposition themselves didn't expect any other decree," said Louis Rose, a Sinclair campaign executive, "but it answered their purpose in intimidating prospective voters for Sinclair.

"They made sure of expressing the thought that a voter is liable to a penalty of seven years' imprisonment if by any chance his right to vote is challenged.

"Ninety-nine per cent of those questioned were democrats."

Two Bandits Get $45 From Grocery Store

Two young white bandits held up a grocery store at 976 West Peachtree street early Wednesday night and took a total of $45 from the manager and the butcher but did not molest three customers of the store who witnessed the holdup.

J. N. Little, manager of the store, said the men entered as he was waiting on a customer. They ordered the customer to stand aside and forced Little to hand over $25 in his cash drawer. Then they went over to S. C. Newton, the butcher, brushed aside his customer and took an additional $20.

The men escaped in a car which they had left parked in front of the store.

Kingsford-Smith Hops For California Today

HONOLULU, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith said today he and Captain P. G. Taylor probably would take off for Oakland, Cal., soon after noon tomorrow, continuing their flight from Brisbane, Australia.

If the fliers maintain the 128-mile-an-hour speed they averaged in the 3,107-mile flight from Suva to Honolulu, they would reach Oakland in about 19 hours.

After making two long hops over water through night and rain, the aviators were unconcerned about the remaining 2,408 miles to Oakland, with daylight arrival in prospect.

Expert Crews To Take Care of Motorcade Cars

pers. There will be a scout car with photographers traveling ahead of the motorcade, announcing the coming of the procession at every town en route and arranging proper places for the making of official photographs, so there will be no non-essential delay.

Jenkins Coming Here.

Herschel V. Jenkins, publisher of the Savannah Morning News, will accompany the motorcade from Atlanta. He is to arrive in the city at an early hour this morning ready to turn around almost without pause and join the motorcade for his trip back home.

The cars, traveling 200 feet apart, will move at a fast pace in order to maintain the schedule which has been carefully worked out and which provides for arrival in Savannah this afternoon.

Luncheon stop will be made at Milledgeville, where an hour and a half has been allowed for luncheon, for replenishment of gas tanks and for a short sight-seeing tour of the many points of interest in that city, war-time capital of Georgia.

Mayor J. A. Horne, of Milledgeville, will officially welcome the party and luncheon will be served on the beautiful campus of the Georgia State College for Women, with 1,000 of the Georgia girl students acting as waitresses.

A rest period of 15 minutes is scheduled for Louisville, another former capital of the state, where Mayor R. L. Bethea will greet the 'caders and where refreshments according to individual predilections will be served.

Another rest period will come at Statesboro, where the motorcade from Savannah is to meet and welcome the parade from the north.

Leaders Taking Part.

Many of the most prominent citizens in the state will be in the motorcade party, including United States Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. and a majority of the Georgia congressional delegation. State officials, mayors of all towns en route and leaders in business, social and civic life from all over the state have registered their cars.

Both of Atlanta's civic bands, the Police band and the Firemen's band, will be in the party, traveling in large buses. They will provide music en route and will join Savannah bands in playing for street dances there Thursday and Friday nights and for concerts at Savannah Beach and the Country Club on Friday afternoon.

A tire repair truck from the Goodyear Service station on Spring street, will follow the motorcade to render assistance to any car which has the misfortune to have tire trouble, while, just as a precaution, Scarrett's Garage is sending a wrecker car to trail the party.

All drivers are required to allow 200 feet distance between their own car and the next ahead when leaving the city limits of each town on the route. Thus in case of a sudden stop by any car there will be no danger to the next following. In the event that any car is compelled to stop, it must draw up to the shoulder of the highway so other cars can pass without driving on the left of the highway and, when ready to proceed, must fall in at the end of the line. It can resume its proper place in line at the next scheduled stop.

Sanford Leading Delegation.

President S. V. Sanford, of the University of Georgia, with Mrs. Sanford, will head a delegation from Athens to join the 'cade at Madison, while another party from Macon is expected to be met at Milledgeville.

A gorgeous program of entertainment has been arranged by the city of Savannah. The motorcade will end at the Hotel DeSoto, official headquarters, where special parking arrangements to take care of all cars have been made.

Thursday night at 7 o'clock the motorcaders will be the guests of Mayor Gamble and the city at dinner. This will be followed by street dances, dancing in the Dancing Tavern and other entertainment.

Friday there will be an escorted sightseeing tour of Savannah, followed by a two-hour visit to Savannah beach, where band concerts and other amusements have been provided. This will be followed with an oyster roast and shore dinner at the country club.

Friday afternoon has been left open, so that individuals may shop, visit shows or otherwise amuse themselves.

Night Club Program.

A special night club program at the Dancing Tavern is scheduled for Friday night.

After breakfast Saturday, those who desire will re-form the motorcade, with a large party from Savannah, and go to Jacksonville to witness the football game that afternoon between the University of Georgia and the University of Florida. A special section of the grandstand has been set aside for the Georgia visitors.

The only expenses for motorcaders are the essential gasoline, oil and hotel bills. The entire official program is without charge.

The Hotel Seminole will be official headquarters in Jacksonville, with a large ballroom furnished as a lounge and turned over for the convenience of the Georgia 'caders.

Last-minute instructions from the motorcade managers urgently stress the importance of every car being at the capitol in time for the 7:30 assembly this morning. The motorcade will start promptly at 8 o'clock, and any not in line at that hour will have to do some fast driving to catch up.

Dillinger Probers Guard Movements

MONTICELLO, Ind., Oct. 31.—(AP) Any revelations to be made concerning John Dillinger's escape from the Crown Point jail remained undisclosed today.

J. Edward Barce, assistant attorney-general, who has been investigating the gangster's getaway, departed from this city in the dark hours of the morning with eight "witnesses" gathered up yesterday at Crown Point. Neither he nor the witnesses were located during the day.

Governor Paul V. McNutt, who has been predicting in campaign addresses that the "truth" concerning Dillinger's escape would soon be forthcoming, refused at Indianapolis to say whether he knew Barce's whereabouts.

Anti-Religious Drives Spurred in Mexico

MEXICO, D. F., Oct. 31.—(AP)—While Mexico's government moved today to smash an alleged Catholic revolutionary movement, anti-religious campaigns conducted by both federal and state governments gained headway.

A Catholic seminar in Oaxaca, from which priests have been ordered expelled and whose bishop has fled into exile, was raided today and several priests, together with 38 students, arrested.

Meanwhile, the state of Mexico issued an order limiting the number of churches in the region in which services may be held to 34, the same number of priests permitted to officiate in the state.

All churches above this number, the decree provided, will be used as schools and public libraries. The action, favorable to the church in comparison with radical action in other states, was believed to have been taken to prevent priests ousted from other states coming to Mexico to officiate.

REVIVAL IS SEEN IN HOME BUILDING

Revival Expected To Reach Boom Proportions in Less Than 3 Years.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Widespread revival of home building to meet an estimated shortage of 500,000 family units in the United States was forecast today by leaders of the Producers' Council, affiliated with the American Institute of Architects, in a co-operative effort to speed housing development.

Diversion of federal appropriations from public works to private construction was advocated by J. C. Bebb, president of the council, as a means of accelerating heavy building. He asserted that experts expected the building revival to reach boom proportions in less than three years.

Thomas S. Holden, vice president of the F. W. Dodge Corporation, declared there was a shortage of at least 500,000 family units, houses or apartments, and that another 2,500,000 units needed enlargement to eliminate overcrowding.

Private Building.

"Everyone, from the president down, is now apparently ready to admit that recovery cannot be said to be under way until private building construction is revived in a large way," Bebb said.

"The only way to revive it is to remove the present state of uncertainty as to the future and provide means for financing projects that are ready to go forward as soon as funds are available.

"The next congress undoubtedly will have a lot to say about further large amounts for public works. However, in view of what has happened in that field, the construction industry is apparently very definitely of the opinion that any such appropriation by congress should be devoted to encouraging private construction."

Large Credit Resources.

Bebb contended that governmental assistance for private building other than small-unit housing would make available for the construction industry large credit resources now idle in banks.

Empty Your Gall Bladder

And You'll Feel Like a Billion Dollars!

Sleepless nights; dog-tired days, headaches; pains in all parts of the body—indigestion—gas. Do you suffer from one or all?

And have you tried every medicine under the sun, only to find yourself back where you started?

No wonder, for you, like thousands of others have probably been treating yourself for everything but the right thing. Get at the unsuspected cause—your gall bladder. If sluggish, it won't pour into your small intestines the most important digestive juice necessary for neutralizing gastric acid, quickening digestion and disinfecting the intestinal tract. If this juice doesn't flow freely, then your food sours, putrifies, stomach becomes filled with gas and acidity.

From the world's greatest chemists comes a simple, pleasant means to make this digestive juice flow freely, and put you on the sunny side of life. Magnesia Oxoids, little white tablets that release pure oxygen. This amazing oxygen—purer than the air you breathe—plus magnesia, gently stimulates the gall bladder, neutralizes burning acidity and sweeps that poison-packed bowel clean.

Take two Oxoids after each meal—and before retiring—drink plenty of water—put your gall bladder to work—and you'll jump out of your skin for joy. Such new health! Such robust vigor! Get Magnesia Oxoids today from your druggist.—Advertisement.

Gamble To Ride in Car No. 1

Pioneer of First Motorcade in '09 Will Be Guest in Caravan Today

J. L. Sibley, of Milledgeville, who rode in the first car to make the trip from Savannah to Atlanta in one day, on November 8, 1909, will be an honor guest in the "Four Capitals" motorcade, which will run from Atlanta to Savannah today, celebrating completion of the newly completed, all-paved "Four Capitals" highway, through Conyers, Covington, Rutledge, Madison, Eatonton, Milledgeville, Graymont-Summit, Louisville, Statesboro and Swainsboro to the port city.

Recalling his experiences on that November day 25 years ago, Mr. Sibley said this week that he predicted, at that time, that someday man would be able to make the trip between the two principal cities of the state in nine or ten hours. It took 13 hours when he pioneered the route then.

The car they used was a four-cylinder Cadillac, then rated at 30 horsepower. They left the paving when they left Savannah at 5 o'clock in the morning, pulled into sand roads of south Georgia and never found paving again until coming into Atlanta about 6:30 o'clock that night.

Really, they did remarkably well. They made their first stop for gas and oil at Millen, reached Waynesboro at 9:10 a. m., Louisville at 10:10 a. m., Sandersville at 11:15 and Milledgeville at 12:20.

The only real trouble they encountered was after leaving Covington, about 3:35 in the afternoon. The evening was cloudy and turning dark early. They tried to turn on the car lamps and found they had failed to turn them off properly in the morning and all the acytelene gas had run out.

So they got some kerosene, lit the side lamps of the same type that were used on buggies in those days, and poked their way into Atlanta. They reported to The Constitution having made the run in 13 hours all told, or about 12 hours actual running time.

Members of that party of hardy motorists, traveling in that four-cylinder Cadillac, were Mr. Sibley, his son, J. L. Sibley Jr., and S. B. Fowler, also of Milledgeville.

BELGRANO PLEDGES WORK FOR BONUS

Jr., Mayor James L. Key, five of the state's 10 members of the federal house of representatives and a host of other leaders in the political, military and business life of the state. Governor Talmadge was absent from the city but was represented by De Lacy Allen, of Albany, present commander of the Georgia department of the Legion.

Commander Belgrano made a decided hit with Georgia Legionnaires and their guests as well. Of medium build and somewhat swarthy, the Legion's new leader proved himself a forceful speaker and held the attention of his hearers from the start to the finish of his address. As pointed out by Major Clark Howell Jr., toastmaster at the dinner, he is distinguished among other things for being the father of twin sons. What Major Howell did not point out is that he is a son-in-law of A. P. Giannini, noted Pacific coast banker, which fact, coupled with his own ability, makes him one of the rising figures on the nation's financial horizon.

In pledging himself to carry out the Legion's recommendation for the immediate payment of the so-called bonus, Commander Belgrano shunted aside his feelings as a banker, practically all of whom are opposed to such a program which would necessitate an additioinal two billion dollars of federal money and that much increase in the mounting treasury deficit.

"Bonus" Made Bugaboo.

"The opponents of the payment of these certificates have made a bugaboo out of them by calling them the bonus," the commander said. "They are not a bonus. In 1924 the congress of the United States passed a law adjusting the pay of those in the service so that it in some measure rivaled the pay of those who stayed at home and profited financially from the war. What the veterans are to get is not a bonus but the balance due on their pay."

The national commander also pledged his administration to continued efforts to improve conditions among disabled veterans and called upon the Legion to increase its membership in order that a maximum enrollment of veterans might better improve the chances of putting through the organization's program. He cited the many peace-time efforts of the Legion, such as community work, sponsorship of boys and girls' scout troops, sponsorships of baseball leagues for growing boys and other endeavors to show that the organization is doing its best in building up the citizens of tomorrow.

Allen Is Lauded.

Vice Commander Melton said he believed that "under the leadership of De Lacy Allen we are going to have our greatest Legion year in Georgia."

He stressed the possibilities of the community service program of the Legion in the upbuilding of Georgia, and said that "when one thinks of 139 Legion posts in Georgia, working for the advancement of 139 communities, one must feel encouraged as to the future of our state."

He said he thought he was not "stretching the figures when I predict from 12,000 to 15,000 members of the Legion in Georgia in 1935. These with 4,000 to 5,000 members of our auxiliary, will give Commander Allen a working force of some 20,000 loyal men and women.

"Think of the fine results that can be gained with this group of men and women working for a greater Georgia.

"To the people of Georgia I offer 20,000 Legionnaires as a nucleus for the greatest forward Georgia movement ever staged in our state—a movement that will achieve results and not be a mere grouping of words."

Russell Introduces Belgrano.

Commander Belgrano was introduced by Senator Russell and Vice Commander Melton was introduced by Congressman Emmett Owen, of Griffin.

Senator Russell said that the Legion is building up worthwhile citizens for the years to come as well as maintaining the high standard of citizenship of the present day.

"While at Miami last week for the Legion convention I was greatly impressed by the strong, conservative manhood represented in our organization," the senator, himself a veteran, said. "And what impressed me more was a unit in the parade which showed a fine group of sturdy boys of eight and ten years of age—the sons of Legionnaires."

Senator Russell paid a high tribute to the record of Commander Belgrano, who entered the service as a private and did not become an officer until near the close of the war. He also lauded his activities in the Legion, in which he was a charter member and in which he has served as a post commander and department commander of California.

Congressman Owen in presenting Major Melton asserted that he is most typical of the manhood presented by Georgia to the nation in its 1917 period of emergency.

"Georgia is proud of this Quimby Melton and the similar thousands of Quimby Meltons she gave the nation," Congressman Owen said. "Vice Commander Melton has proven himself the same forceful unit of the American Legion that he has proven himself to Georgia."

George, Key Speak.

Brief welcoming speeches to Commander Belgrano were made by Senator George and Mayor Key. Both praised his public utterances highly and urged him to return to the state often during his administration and after its completion.

The distinguished guests introduced by Major Howell included Chief Justice Richard B. Russell Sr., of the supreme court; Judges Nash Broyles, W. Frank Jenkins, Alexander H. Stephens, I. H. Sutton, Hugh J. MacIntyre and John B. Guerry, of the court of appeals; Congressmen Owen, Robert Ramspeck, Homer Parker and Braswell Deen, and Congressman-elect B. Frank Whelchel, Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Power Company; Brigadier General Robert O. Van Horn, commanding officer of Fort McPherson; Adjutant General Lindley W. Camp, John A. Brice, general manager of the Atlanta Journal; Oscar Newton, of the federal reserve bank; Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech; John K. Ottley, president of the First National bank; W. S. Johns, of the federal reserve; Hugh Couch, assistant to the vice president of the Southern Railway; District Attorney Lawrence Camp, Marshal Charles H. Cox, Frank Holden, state manager of the HOLC, and William A. Sirmon, state FHA director.

Legion Committee.

The committee of Legionnaires in charge of the commander's reception and dinner was composed of Kenneth Murrell, commander of Atlanta Post No. 1; Fonville McWhorter, commander of Fulton County Post No. 134; W. A. Mobley Jr., of Cedartown; Erle Cocke and Edgar Dunlap.

Music for the dinner was furnished by the band of the 122d infantry of the Georgia National Guard and the Big Bethel choir rendered a number of vocal selections.

taking jurisdiction of the controversy, Charles C. Trabue, of counsel for the objecting petitioners, said: "I am very glad that the way now seems open to determine the large constitutional and legal questions that were referred to the courts by the utilities commission."

No further legal moves to open the way for the transaction were made by the TVA, and after a conference of counsel for the Authority announcement was made that "because there is insufficient time, we plan no further action immediately."

The contract between the TVA and the TPS provides for the former to acquire the East Tennessee properties of the latter for approximately $6,191,000.

ALABAMA TVA CASE SET FOR NOVEMBER 12

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Oct. 31.—(AP) Trial of the suit seeking to prevent transfer of $2,200,000 worth of Alabama Power Company property to the Tennessee Valley Authority has been set in United States district court here for November 12 by Judge W. I. Grubb.

All the involved property is in north Alabama and officials of 17 towns affected in addition to the three directors of the TVA have been summoned to appear in court. In 14 of the towns TVA proposed to purchase power distribution systems from the power company.

The suit, filed originally in Limestone circuit court by Forney Johnston, Birmingham attorney, was brought by a group of preferred stockholders of the Alabama Power Company.

In addition to the municipal systems the suit would prevent transfer of transmission lines, substations, Joe Wheeler dam site and other properties in the Muscle Shoals area.

The suit attacks validity of the act creating the TVA and claims the proposed transfer, hearing on which has been postponed by the Alabama public service commission, was agreed to by the power company through coercion on the part of the TVA.

TVA TO FOLLOW COURSE, DECLARES LILIENTHAL

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 31.—(AP) Flinging down the gauntlet to critics of the Tennessee Valley Authority's program, David E. Lilienthal, power director of the authority, today told an audience here "it is as useless to buck this economic tide as it is to seek to stop the tides of the sea."

Speaking before the Rotary Club, Lilienthal said it was generally said that "there are two places where opposition to TVA has centered; one is in the financial district of New York, in the so-called Wall Street group, and the second is said to be in Birmingham."

Two possible courses of action, one of opposition and one of co-operation, were outlined by the speaker, who warmed to his subject with "I say in all frankness that whichever course Birmingham chooses the Tennessee valley regional program is going ahead. TVA is riding the economic tide of our times."

T. Barton Baird Praises Highway, To Be With Big Motorcade Today

T. BARTON BAIRD.

Completion of the new "Four Capitals" highway means more to Georgia than any event of several years, in the opinion of T. Barton Baird, state manager for the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company. Mr. Baird, long a good roads enthusiast, will be in the motorcade that leaves Atlanta at 8 o'clock this morning to travel to Savannah over the new route. Accompanying Mr. Baird will be Gregory C. Bowden, Atlanta district manager of the Southern Bell.

"The new all-paved highway through Madison, Eatonton, Milledgeville, Louisville, Statesboro and Swainsboro to Savannah is one of the most important pieces of road construction the state could have undertaken," Mr. Baird said Wednesday.

Not only does it provide a shorter, more direct route from Atlanta and the mountain regions of the state to Savannah and the coast, but it passes through a section of Georgia extremely rich in natural beauty as well as historic interest.

"The route leads by many shrines of Georgia history and should do much to teach the truth about this state's glorious past not only to her own citizens but to thousands of tourists annually from other states."

Mr. Baird believes that the opening of the new highway will bring many more tourists through Georgia each year, as soon as word of the beauty and convenience of the road is disseminated.

"That," he said, "is the chief value of the motorcade. It is a splendid piece of advertising for the good of the entire state. And it, like the highway, draws the two largest cities of the state, Atlanta and Savannah, even closer than in the past, in time, in understanding and in good fellowship."

F. D. R. Is Silent On Relief Plans

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, issuing a smiling warning against speculation on the amount to be asked of congress for recovery and relief, today reported nevertheless that the question of new taxes depended upon these expenditures.

At his press conference, Mr. Roosevelt said his chief source of information on the progress of the public works-relief program was the newspapers. He added he had seen various estimates of the amount to be requested of congress, ranging from $5,000,000,000 and $12,000,000,000.

Advising newspapermen to go light on their speculation, he said he did not know the details of the proposed program, or the amount it would require, and would not know until the end of December. Information pouring in from all departments, he said, would dictate the form of the relief and recovery plan and determine to a degree the amount to be sought.

The president's reference to the tax situation was brief and in response to a question.

2 GAS COMPANIES FIGHT RATE CUTS

Columbus, Americus Firms Say They Are Barely 'Breaking Even.'

The first two Georgia gas companies, cited to show cause why rates should not be reduced Wednesday, informed the Georgia public service commission that not only were they failing to earn a return on their investment but that one of them had lost money for its stockholders in the last two years.

The companies answering the rule nisi of the commission were the Columbus Gas Company and the Americus Gas Company, the former reporting that it was barely "breaking even" while the latter said that it showed a deficit for the last two years, adding that it was faced with a growing deficit this year. The Columbus company sells natural gas and the Americus company sells artificial gas. The Columbus company is owned by the Georgia Power Company which was represented by its president, Preston S. Arkwright, at the hearing Wednesday.

The rate in Americus is $1.90 per thousand cubic feet, a flat rate. In Columbus there is a service charge of $1 plus $1.35 per thousand cubic feet for the first 2,500 cubic feet, $1 per 1,000 for the next 2,500 and 60 cents per thousands for all over 5,000.

Mr. Arkwright, in outlining the answer of the Columbus company, said there has been no complaints from customers of the company, adding that "this manifestly proves that the people of Columbus are satisfied with the service and the rates."

Mr. Arkwright said that the earnings reports for Columbus showed the company just about breaking even and that the Americus division showed a very small profit until two years ago when a deficit was recorded with deficits coming each year since.

Charles A. Collier, vice president of the Georgia Power Company, also appeared at the hearing and answered questions of William De L. Worsley, city attorney of Columbus, who sought to know if the increased consumption of gas did not warrant a decrease in the rates.

"Since Columbus was changed over from artificial to natural gas a couple of years ago there has been some increase in consumption but not enough to warrant a cut in the rates yet," Mr. Collier said.

RAMSPECK UPHOLDS F.D.R. APPOINTMENTS

The Roosevelt administration not only is not "the most politically-minded in the last 25 years," as David Lawrence declared before the American Bankers' Association, Congressman Robert Ramspeck said Wednesday before the Georgia League of Women Voters, but has disregarded party lines in many appointments, even to cabinet members.

"Few, if any, democrats were appointed to office in those (the Harding and Hoover) administrations and democrats in civil service were demoted wholesale to provide for the promotion of republicans," Ramspeck said.

"The Roosevelt administration has not only appointed many republicans to office, including two cabinet members, but today, more than 18 months after the president's term began, many republicans in civil service positions have not been molested. Even some republicans in political positions have been permitted to remain.

"It is well known that the AAA, the farm credit administration, the department of labor and the public works administration have paid little, if any, attention to the past political affiliations of its employes."

Favors Merit System.

Ramspeck said he would work in the next congress for the extension of the civil service, explaining he was especially anxious to have all postmasters chosen under the merit system.

"The merit system, generally called civil service, comes nearest to getting selection that insures efficient public service," he said. "There are many reasons for this. It takes away the necessity of playing politics and permits the employe to concentrate upon his or her duties. It is more permanent and therefore attracts higher type of applicants."

Ramspeck said another reason he was opposed to political selection of federal employes was that members of congress were supposed to devote their time to legislative matters, and that if they must select personnel of the federal governmental machine they have little time left to study legislation.

Hits "Jobs for Friends."

"What has happened in this administration, in several agencies at least, is that those within the organizations have gotten jobs for their friends without regard to party politics and often without regard to ability. To my way of thinking, this is worse than making appointments under the recommendation of your senators and congressmen. When we make a recommendation and the appointee is not efficient or courteous, you have a remedy by punishing us at the polls.

"If you are interested in economy and efficiency in your federal government; if you wish to see federal employes selected upon a merit basis and given the opportunity of making a career of public service, then I urge that you support legislation for the extension and improvement of the classified civil service."

Lighter Taxes Sought For Branch Offices

Proposal that the tax burden of branch offices of national companies in Atlanta be lessened in order to keep business houses from removing to other cities was made to the tax committee of city council Wednesday by Mayor James L. Key.

The mayor said accounts of branch offices handled here on goods shipped from hearquarters of the company to another state in the southeast should not be taxed, as they have been in the past, but he approved taking the accounts of goods shipped into Georgia. His proposal to exempt out-of-state accounts was taken under consideration by the tax committee.

Application for a reduction in taxes on the Shrine mosque, now assessed at $750,000, was heard but action was deferred.

GOODYEAR ANNOUNCES HIKE IN TIRE PRICES

Increases Will Become Effective Today, Company Statement Reveals.

AKRON, Ohio, Oct. 31.—Readjustment of tire prices, to become effective tomorrow, were announced here today by P. W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company.

Mr. Litchfield's statement follows:

"Effective Thursday, November 1, we are readjusting our tire price structure. The effect of this readjustment will be to increase prices from 12 to 25 per cent, depending upon type, brand and locally prevailing trade practices.

"This step is made mandatory by substantial increases in production costs during recent months. Cotton prices are up 135 per cent from depression lows and rubber prices have advanced more than 400 per cent. Wages at Goodyear have been increased 27 per cent.

"Tire dealers have also seen their costs of doing business increased sharply by reason of higher wages and shorter hours.

"At the same time, the quality of tires is infinitely higher than ever before.

"With this situation prevailing, it has been apparent within the industry for some time that price levels would advance or there would have to be a curtailment of standards.

"The general public is now and has been aware of this situation. As a matter of fact, the public voiced no particular demand for the ridiculously low levels to which tire prices descended during the depression. On the other hand, we have heard public criticism of the tire industry for failing to get a fair return in price for its products.

"We are convinced of the wisdom of our course and in view of the realities of the situation we are hopeful that all factors in the industry will do their part in bringing about more stable conditions."

FLYCATCHERS.

The first order of the perching birds to appear here is that one called by the books the Tyrannidae, or tyrant flycatchers. This is the family that caused me so much grief on practical examinations, where even with the bird in the hand I could not name it and wished it again in the bush, where some other twitter might give me a clew to its identity. There are numbers of them which look quite alike and must be separated by the most minor external characters. These characters never allowed themselves to settle in my mind, but kept it stirred up by running around and swapping the occupancy of brain cells with one another. I really feel quite cocky in attempting to write about them at all.

Take the kingbird, for example. There is a smart, distinctive bird for you. Believe me, that word distinctive, applied to a flycatcher by your writer, has a wealth of meaning. There was an occasion a year or two ago when I would have given my best fishing rod for a good camera. Three young kingbirds, and both parents were not ten feet from me in a small dead tree. They were between me and the sky, the light was at my back, colors were brilliant on their feathers, and my kodak was six miles away in camp. I will never have another chance like that one. Your kingbird is a pugnacious rascal and helps his family merit the name of tyrant. I have seen them give red-tailed hawks a licking without any provocation. As soon as the hawk saw the kingbird, he found urgent business in the other side of the county, but the fighter could not be outflown. Cecil Holleran tells me that he has seen these small birds force hawks to the earth. The kingbird is gray on the back, with darker wings and tail, which is tipped with white. The underside is light gray. On the crown there is a patch of bright scarlet-vermilion. Yes, the kingbird is distinctive.

Not so distinctive are the smaller flycatchers. Take the wood peewee. The plaintive "Pee-ah-wee" that you hear in the woodlots during the summer belong to him. I would hestitate to pronounce any bird a peewee unless I could sit down with a pair of calipers and a millimeter scale and a series of reference books to help along.

In view of the fact that I am so weak on my flycatchers I shall close this item with a problem for you.

Distinguish between the following species, without reference to a handbook. Wood peewee, alder flycatcher, Acadian flycatcher, least flycatcher, and the yellow-bellied flycatcher. I am not making it hard by including any subspecies at all. Your answers should be mailed in.

That's why each package of St. Joseph Aspirin is wrapped and sealed in moisture-proof Cellophane . . . to keep out the destructive, strength-robbing influence of moisture in the air . . . and to bring you aspirin that is always pure, always fully effective for the relief of pain.

FHA Seen as Solution To Problem of Relief

By taking full advantage of the benefits offered under the federal housing act, Atlanta can go a long way toward solving its relief problem, A. M. East, of Washington, industrial adviser for the FHA, told the regional industrial conference at the Biltmore hotel on Wednesday.

Bankers, contractors, architects, engineers, public utility officials and manufacturers from South Carolina, North Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia attended the conference, which was addressed by Mr. East, R. H. Northrup, industrial adviser of the FHA, who accompanied Mr. East here for the meeting; J. W. Millsaps, regional director, and W. A. Sirmon, state director for Georgia.

There are 80,000 structures in Atlanta, Mr. East pointed out, of which half are in need of repairs. If one-fourth of this number spent $300 each, he said, it would amount to $6,000,000, of which 75 per cent, or $4,500,000, would go out in wages to be spread through the industrial and trade arteries of the city.

VETERAN POLICEMEN FACE BOARD TONIGHT

Important measures will come before the police committee of council today in preparation for the general council meeting Monday afternoon.

Chief C. P. Connally, assistant chief of police, and several other veteran members of the police department will come before the police committee, which will determine whether they will be required to stand physical examinations or not. This committee will also consider collection of $10,315 which an audit of the police department stated was owed the city by professional bondsmen on forfeited bonds.

NIRA IS HELD VOID BY FEDERAL JUDGE

Unconstitutionality Ruling Accompanies Dismissal of Violation Case

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 31.—(AP) The national industrial recovery act today was held unconstitutional by Judge W. I. Grubb, in United States district court, who dismissed an indictment against a lumber dealer charging violation of the code of fair competition for the lumber and timber products industry.

The action of Judge Grubb was under an agreement by attorneys representing the government and the defendant to pave the way for an immediate appeal to the United States supreme court to determine the validity of the statute.

Judge Grubb handed down no written decision, but merely sustained the demurrer to the indictment offered by Jerome T. Fuller, attorney of Centerville, which was based on alleged unconstitutionality of the national industrial recovery act and the code for the lumber industry.

The indictment in question charged W. E. Belcher, owner of a number of lumber mills in Alabama, with violating the lumber code by paying less than the prescribed 24 cents an hour minimum wage and working his employes more than the maximum 40-hour week.

United States District Attorney James Smith said the agreement had been reached with Mr. Fuller, who had agreed to facilitate the test before the highest court in the nation.

Attorney-General Homer Cummings probably will announce from Washington at an early date that an appeal from the decision of Judge Grubb to the United States supreme court will be taken.

$1,500,000,000 Homestead Fund Considered by Roosevelt

New Public Works Program May Include Vast Sum for Subsistence Colonies.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—(AP)— An outlay of $1,500,000,000 for subsistence homestead developments over the next few years was under consideration today for inclusion in President Roosevelt's new public works program.

Expenditures in this direction would have the double purpose of taking thousands of families off relief rolls and boosting construction.

Officials said the government's present efforts to provide cheap homes in rural communities for stranded groups and workers in the low wage class could be expanded many times within the next 12 months.

The government may resort to condemnation proceedings in the future to speed purchase of land for homestead developments. Condemnation has not been used in the past, and land buying delays have been frequent.

Five Billion Asked.

The subsistence homestead division of the interior department, with only $25,000,000 to spend so far, has received request for expenditure of $4,500,000,000 to $5,000,000,000.

Cursory examination of these applications, officials averred, indicated that about a third, involving $1,500,000,000, had merit.

Records of the division showed also that 10 to 20 requests had been received from individual families for each homestead unit financed with federal funds. Individual requests for homesteads totaled around 500,000. The 63 projects approved to date would provide homes for about 3,700.

Relief population, industrial and housing conditions and soil uses are being studied closely in the development of plans for the future.

Sites Studied.

A survey of industrial trends is being made to avoid placing communities where they might become stranded in years to come by the further movement of industry.

The job of building rural-industrial villages for destitute families and those in the low wage classes is being shared at present by the subsistence homestead organization and the relief administration.

Subsistence homestead offcials have allotted nearly $19,000,000 for such developments. Residents of these are being selected from families now on relief or earning incomes of not more than $1,200.

Families are allowed 20 to 30 years to pay for subsistence homesteads, which include small farm tracts designed to supplement wages from part-time employment in established industries or in factories developed by the communities with federal loans.

The relief administration has built rural-industrial communities for the destitute at Wood Lake, Texas, and in Mississippi county, Arkansas, and has another under construction at Red House, W. Va.

FORMAL OPENING FRIDAY FOR WESTERN MARKET

Western Market, 112 Broad street, S. W., near Mitchell, is now open for business with completed modern fixtures.

It contains 17 feet of refrigeration display case for meats and one 72-foot case. According to Mack Frankel, under whose supervision this modern meat and grocery store is operated, the two cases make one of the largest display counters for meats in the city. In addition, there are two large mechanical refrigerating plants in the basement, which guarantee fresh meats at all times.

Mr. Frankel states that this is the first time that a nationally advertised line of groceries has been carried in this location.

"Quality will predominate at the Western Market," said Mr. Frankel, "and prices will be as low as any in the city. There is no secret about this—it is merely a question of volume with small margin of profit."

Mr. Frankel, who has operated stores in this vicinity for 15 years, announces an unusual food show as part of the formal opening of the store. It will take place from 3:30 to 9 p. m., Friday, November 2. There will be gifts, souvenirs and prizes and the general public is invited to participate.

2 ACCIDENT VICTIMS IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Two accident victims were reported to be in a serious condition Wednesday at Atlanta hospitals.

Edward Clarke, of 2462 Peachtree street, was reported near death at Crawford W. Long hospital, where he was taken following a fall down an elevator shaft at the Allen building, 234 Mitchell street, S. W., as he was loading packages on a highway express truck which he operated. Clarke was said to be facing an operation and a blood transfusion. He is a nephew of Howard Clarke, cashier of the Wofford Oil Company.

The other victim is 15-year-old James Morris, of 1047 Center street, who is threatened with the loss of his right leg after being thrown by a freight train which he attempted to board at Means street Tuesday night. The boy's ankle was badly mangled. He is at Grady hospital.

Speaks Tonight

Dr. W. A. Duncan, pastor of the First Baptist church of East Point, who spent last summer in Europe on an 18,000-mile tour of foreign countries, will give an illustrated lecture on his travels, entitled "The Holy Land," at the East Point city auditorium at 7:45 o'clock tonight.

JACOBS FOOD HANDLERS FINISH EXAMINATION

All Jacobs drug store employes who handle food were examined yesterday by physicians of the Fulton County Medical Society in accordance with an ordinance recently passed by city council requiring all food handlers to be examined and certified as being in good health and possessing no communicable diseases.

Certificates from city health authorities will be duly issued to the Jacobs group, which was the first large organization to complete the examinations and report 100 per cent, according to Frank D. Sims, director of the Jacobs soda fountains.

DUNBAR WILL SPEAK TO ADVERTISING CLUB

Edson S. Dunbar, advertising manager of Crocker-McElwain Co., and Chemical Paper Manufacturing Company, of Holyoke, Mass., will today address the Atlanta Advertising Club. The meeting will take place at 12:30 at the Capital City Club, and Robert E. Martin, advertising manager of George Muse Clothing Company, will preside.

Mr. Dunbar, who is also treasurer of the Direct Mail Advertising Association, will be introduced by J. S. Roberts, of the Retail Credit Company.

"Mr. Dunbar's talk will be of unusual interest," said Oscar Strauss Jr., president of the advertising club. "I am sure there will be a splendid attendance."

W. T. Knight Declines To Quit Council Post

Plans to demote Oscar Pendley as secretary of the police committee and to place former Alderman J. Allen Couch in council through a series of changes in municipal departments appeared defeated Wednesday.

The original program was to replace Pendley with Oscar Williamson Jr., now superintendent of the city auditorium, and to elect Fifth Ward Councilman W. T. Knight as auditorium superintendent, following which Couch was to have run for Knight's councilmanic post.

But Wednesday Knight announced positively that he will not resign from council and would not accept the auditorium post.

Bitter opposition from Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant and several members of the police committee developed when the proposal to demote Pendley to a patrolman's beat became known.

RECOVERY'S MARCHING SONG

The tinkling dollars in the cash registers of the retail merchants of the southeast are singing the marching song of business in this section as it reacts to the effects of the recovery program.

Renewed confidence and optimism are to be found in the monthly review of the Federal Reserve Bank for the sixth district revealing that during September retail trade in this territory recorded the largest totals of any month since 1930. The figures are all the more impressive in view of the fact that the full effects of the depression were yet to be felt in 1930, the downward trend being continued for nearly two years.

The increases in retail trade in the city in September, 1934 and 1933, means that the monthly volume of business is now more than a third higher than in 1932. The millions of dollars represented in these trade totals reflect the huge amount of money that has been put back into circulation in Atlanta, and account for the steady improvement being registered in all lines of business.

The optimism now evidenced in the south is substantially based.

Early last month, Dr. W. I. Myers, governor of the FCA, made a tour of the southeastern states, during which he interviewed bankers, merchants, manufacturers and leading business men. Returning to Washington he said: "The southeast began to work out of its financial troubles last year, and this year it is in still better condition."

Henry H. Heiman, of New York city, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men, in Atlanta this week for a meeting of credit association presidents for nine southern states, expressed the view that "the south is in the vanguard of business recovery and development. The south is favored by the fact that the last presidential election was an agricultural victory. Prosperity is in store for agricultural areas."

These statements are fully corroborated by report of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta in its monthly review of the sixth district, which discloses that seasonal adjustments rose in September to a figure higher than that for any month in the last four years.

Confidential reports from six Atlanta department stores showed a gain over the preceding month of 20.7 per cent, while the increase over September, 1933, was 21.6 per cent. Retail trade in the entire sixth district showed for September of this year a gain of 26.5 over September a year ago.

Building permits in Atlanta issued during September numbered 266, compared with 170 permits issued in September a year ago. Savings deposits in three Atlanta banks registered an increase over September of last year of 9.6 per cent.

Building permits issued at 29 reporting cities in the sixth district were 31.8 per cent greater in September of this year of the corresponding month of last year.

These are only the highlights of recovery progress of Georgia and other southeastern states in the sixth Federal Reserve District. It discloses that there is an increasing amount of money in this section and that citizens are spending it for necessities at the mercantile establishments and in repairing residences and building new ones.

All this creates business and employment. It is the circle that leads upward and onward to prosperity.

LABOR AND HITLER

The seizure by the Hitler government of the various funds of the former labor organizations of Germany emphasizes the unhappy plight of the laboring classes under a dictatorship form of government.

Hitler's latest degree stipulates that all property of the German unions, "including their mutual aid associations, investment funds, and economic undertakings, constitute the property of the German labor front," and accordingly authorizes that these funds be seized in the name of the government.

Within a week of the signing of the decree, labor banks, newspapers and headquarters had been seized and the government had taken charge of the vacation homes and fresh air farms constructed out of the earnings of the laboring people of the country.

Such moves solidify Hitler's control, but, at the same time, carry dangerous portent for the future. The high-handed seizure of labor property is in keeping with his attempt to dominate the church, and means that should a break come in the nazi ranks there will be just so many more to join the opposition.

THE NORTH POLE

It would appear that explorers who venture into the jungles of the tropics, climb the precipitous sides of lofty, ice-covered mountains, or invade the polar regions of the earth, will be forced to carry with them a notary public to legally certify their claims of discovery, so that in after, years, perhaps after they have passed into "that bourne from which no traveler e'er returns," they will be able to stand up under the pot shots of some "doubting Thomas."

It has been the general impression that the North Pole has been thoroughly discovered and properly marked with an American flag—not that it can make much difference, all authorities on the subject being in accord that the region is almost inaccessible and entirely uninhabitable.

When Dr. Cook returned from a north pole expedition in 1908 and said he had discovered the spot where the pole should be, the people of America were perfectly willing to accept his word for it; but later on he was branded as the arch faker of the century.

Then Admiral Peary returned from an expedition into the frozen north and stated that he, Matt Henson, a negro, and four Eskimos had located the pole. The statement has been accepted as truthful, and Admiral Peary is recorded in history as the real discoverer of the north pole, and being an American, the United States naturally may lay claim to it—for what that is worth.

But now, 25 years later, and after the death of Peary, comes one J. D. Gordon Hayes, an English historian, who states that Peary was never actually closer than 50 miles of the pole's actual location. In a book just published Hayes says:

> Peary said he returned from his camp at the pole to a latitude of 87 degrees 47 minutes in not more than 56 hours. This is a distance of 150 statute miles. Hence a man of 53 either walked considerably more than 70 miles a day for two days over rough surface, or he never was near the pole.

Regarding Cook, Historian Hayes says that he probably reached as high a latitude as that attained by Admiral Peary.

The claims of both explorers were thoroughly examined by international experts; that of Cook discarded and Peary's accepted. It has stood unchallenged for a quarter of a century, and the efforts of this hitherto unknown historian to discredit the achievement will come to naught—with the exception of the cash that may come to him by the sale of his books to British subjects.

Admiral Byrd and his pilot, Bennett, flew over the north pole on May 9, 1926, and verified the observations made by Admiral Peary. Historian Hayes gives them credit for this achievement. However, Admiral Byrd is at present very much alive, so perhaps that is the reason Historian Hayes casts doubt only on the heroic exploit of Admiral Peary, now dead.

True love doesn't run smooth nor neither does any other kind.

What soil is not lost by erosion is being thrown by the politicians.

Perpetual motion has never been perfected, but the next thing to it is continual boiling of a political pot.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

The Ghastly End.

Through the confused noise of firing and screaming came the sound of men shouting something in unison. The priest and I both looked outside. Flames were leaping through the curtain of smoke. The attackers had poured oil on the barricade and were storming it. The defenders gave way and presently came running back. The attackers fired into the mass. Every shot was a hit. One fellow right opposite our door turned on his heel like a top and dropped. A boy dragged a foot that was a raw bleeding mass of flesh. A woman, half-naked, dragged a youth in her arms. The boy had his eyes closed and blood poured from his nostrils. An old peasant, eyes wide with terror, came crawling along on hands and feet. He was wounded in the abdomen.

I ran out to lift him up. The priest had grabbed my cudgel with the handkerchief tied to it. He waved it at the attackers. But a peasant came up to him, snatched it out of his hands, threw it on the ground and spat the priest in the face. Soon the fighting ceased and we walked in the direction of the barricade. I saw a dead boy lying there amongst the other dead and wounded, no more than 11 years old, a rifle clasped in his thin hands.

Sherman is supposed to have said that war is hell. A revolution is worse than hell. It's an old-timer who tells you this.

The Reason for the Spanish Revolt.

The Spanish revolt started as a general strike to protest against the actions of Premier Leroux, who took some fascists into his cabinet. The working class organizations took alarm at this, because they feared that this was but the beginning of what has taken place in Germany and Austria, where the labor unions have been dissolved, their property confiscated, their banks expropriated, their press destroyed, their leaders murdered or sent to concentration camps. Rather than submit they proclaimed the political strike.

* * * *

Catalonia.

Catalonia with its capital city of Barcelona, is not Spanish. Under the monarchy it was simply a Spanish province. When Monsieur Leroux, the new Spanish premier, took certain fascist chiefs into his cabinet—and these fascists are known to be supporters of the return of the monarchy—Catalonia, which has since 1931 has been an autonomous federated state, took alarm and feared that ultimately the country would be joined to Spain again. Hence the premier of Catalonia proclaimed the country's complete independence. The Catalonians were therefore fighting for national freedom. The strikers were fighting for political rights. Both were vanquished.

I have said before in this place: revolutions are out of the question in modern times. Formerly, in years gone by, the thing was possible. But every modern government disposes of such a perfect repressional apparatus these days that revolution is impossible, and to invite men to rise and go into the streets is tantamount to giving them over to be massacred. A general strike might be effective. It might force a government to surrender. But for that the strikers need far more discipline and organization than they have in Spain. They must refrain from all acts of violence. For with violence they sign their own death warrants.

HEALTH TALKS

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

CALCIUM LACTATE AND SO FORTH FOR HAY FEVER AND ASTHMA.

Whenever I sustain a particularly hard crack I look up at the portrait of the beloved T. R. and pretty soon I'm ready to fight back. Whenever I get a testimonial I look at another portrait over my work bench and wonder. This one is John J. Coincidence. John's only comment is generally something akin to a Bronx cheer.

A testimonial really isn't worth a hoot so far as proving anything is concerned. But I'm printing this one today for a purpose. I hope to get the attention of many readers who have taken calcium lactate for one thing or another, and I hope they will tell me what their experience with the medicine has been.

In the course of the years I have suggested this harmless remedy for all sorts of troubles, as it might seem to the uninitiated but always there has been reason behind it. Some of the conditions are hyperesthetic rhinitis—that's really a highbrow and exclusive malady and you common folk need not bother about it—asthma, hay fever, migraine, hives, angioneurotic edema—that's another rather swanky complaint which, in ordinary language is known as giant hives. Then I blush to find from flipping over the files, that I have recommended calcium lactate for food sensitization and even for rheumatism. That is, of course I didn't suggest it for rheumatism myself, for if I did some bright reader might immediately ask how come I at last admit there is such a thing as rheumatism. I just quoted a report of a physician in Germany who praised calcium lactate as fine for neuritis, neuralgia, rheumatism 'n' everything.

The testimonial comes from a woman reader:

> "Wrote several months ago and told you I was treating my husband for what physicians called hay fever and asthma, with cod liver oil, iodin and calcium lactate. I have kept this treatment up nearly two years now. Where he used to have an attack every week, lasting for three or four days, the interval stretched out to two weeks and then a month, with the attacks lasting only a day. Now I begin to hope he is cured, for it is nearly three months since his last attack and that was a very light one."

That reminds me, I have suggested that the assimilation of calcium is promoted by a daily ration of cod-liver oil, oh, say, a tablespoonful daily, and also by daily exposure of the naked skin to sunlight. So far all scientific observation supports me. But now it is just my notion, for which I have no scientific support, that a suitable iodin ration also promotes the utilization of calcium, and for a child or an adult a suitable iodin ration, still in my opinion merely, is one drop of tincture of iodin in a drink of water daily for a month in each of the four seasons of the year—say the months of November, February, May and August. Or if you prefer take a drop twice a week the year around.

We are only just beginning to learn about the metabolism of calcium. There is considerable evidence that ductless gland functions, particularly the parathyroid gland, control or regulate the calcium metabolism, and there is also some evidence that certain vitamins in turn influence the functional activity of ductless glands. It is all pretty complicated, and if I would you I'd just take calcium lactate for a while and get plenty of sunshine and greens and fresh vegetables and see what comes of it.

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon

REMOUNTING. WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The master minds are trying to be vague about restuffing and remounting the Blue Eagle, and they are succeeding.

The White House always passes off the problem by saying it is evolutionary, meaning probably that it is unexplainable now. Others are going around whispering that the old bird has been slain and the New Dealers are just waiting until the dust of public forgetfulness accumulates and buries it.

These poses are apparently being maintained temporarily so that the master minds will not have to lay down a definite policy for everyone to shoot at.

If you dig behind them, you will find that the reorganizers have decided quite definitely what they want to do, but are just a little uncertain about how they are going to do it.

PLAN. Here is what they are up to: They want to change the two fundamental NRA policies of price-fixing and restriction of consumption. They are not going to abolish these two policies entirely, but they intend to work on the broad basis that there should be no price fixing and no restriction of production. In fact, They have already adopted those two new principles, although they have not announced them.

Now they know very well that there will have to be exceptions to these two policies. For one thing, the soft coal industry is in such a state that restriction of production is necessary. An exception will be made for that and for other similarly afflicted industries.

Also they know they cannot put their new principles into general operation immediately. They intend to work along quietly, applying their new policies to each case as it comes up, until next June 16, when practically all existing codes and the act itself expire. Then they will try to revise codes in accordance with their ideas.

PROSPECTS. There will have to be new legislation at the coming session of congress. Mr. Roosevelt will recommend it in his message opening the congressional session in January.

They may encounter some trouble from the industrialists. What the white shirts like most about the NRA is the curtailment of chiseling, under-selling, over-production. That's what they wanted for years, but couldn't get because of anti-trust laws. They can decide whether they want to come into new codes or not. The New Dealers believe they will come in for co-operative protection.

CONSUMERS. Everybody's heart bleeds for the dear old consumers, but no one ever does much for them as a class. The bald fact is nothing much can be done.

All workers are consumers. So are all the white shirts. The New Dealers have an idea that, if they help the workers and help the industrialists, they are helping the consumers generally, without any specific consumer activity.

There is an idea running around loose in high quarters that a definite consumer movement could be started. The idea is to organize a vast consumer education bureau here (a hundred times bigger than Dr. Howe's consumers' counsel) and have it keep tab on prices. When certain prices get unreasonable, the news would be broadcast. Whether that will be done has not yet been determined.

It is a ten-to-one bet that they will waddle along with something like the existing three consumers' protective setups, which do nothing more than maintain a pretense of activity.

SNAKES. An eminent ex-New Dealer says the explosion which blew him out of the New Deal reminded him of another experience. He tells this story:

"I was going to my room at an army post one night when a fellow officer in pajamas called me aside and asked me to accompany him to his room. He said there was a snake under his bed, that it was against the regulations to shoot firearms on the military reservation and that he wanted me as a witness while he shot the snake.

"I went along, watched him point his pistol under the bed and blaze away. Imagine our surprise when the bed went up in the air about five feet. It developed that the snake was a 15-foot python."

CHEER. The fiscal authorities of the New Deal will not say so openly, but they are highly enthusiastic about the results of the $50,000,000 HOLC test bond issue.

The marketing houses reported that the proportion purchased by small investors in $50, $100 and $500 lots indicated there is an untapped public market for long term government obligations if offered in small denominations.

The amount involved was not large, but it strengthened the private beliefs of treasury powers that they may have found a new government bond market. That may be an overly optimistic view, but they have it.

Don't be surprised if they break out sometime soon with a similar issue of recovery bonds to finance at least a portion of relief expenditures. At least that is what they now have in the backs of their minds.

NOTES. Mr. Ickes is away out in front in his spending race with Messrs. Wallace and Hopkins. Latest figures are: Ickes 3,700,000,000; Wallace $460,968,274, and Hopkins $1,285,634,000.

The best dressed man in the marine corps is Colonel David Dixon Porter, who was recently raised to brigadier-general.

The mosaic compass embedded in the floor of the new post-office building is about half a turn off. The north arrow points several degrees off the true north. (Mr. Farley's secretary did not make that mistake.)

One of the precinct committeemen to whom Mr. Farley recently sent a pep letter noticed that it bore a Harding postage stamp.

John Doe Can Produce Cheap Milk If Richard Roe Feeds the Cow

By Robert Quillen

An American woman who has lived in Europe and Asia recently made this statement, in a national magazine, that "the American middle-class, well-to-do woman is the hardest-worked in the world. In Indian, Chinese and English kitchens 'the lady' doesn't even have to press a button."

The statement is inexact in at least one particular. It assumes that conditions found in one section are characteristic of America as a whole.

There is a nation-wide section in which the "well-to-do" woman works considerably less than the feminine field hand of France and the feminine road builder in Russia.

In my corner of that section, where an annual income of $2,400 makes a small-town family well-to-do, the lady sometimes presses a button and even sews on a few; but she isn't what you would call hard-worked.

She has a servant to do the cooking, wash the dishes, clean up the house, wash and iron the clothes and make herself generally useful. For this combination of labors, the lady pays the servant a weekly wage ranging from $1.25 to $3.

There you have the secret of the lady's easy life in China, India and England. And those sections of America where the "middle-class, well-to-do woman" works so hard despite electrical gadgets, could make life just as easy by adopting the same scheme of existence. All that is needed is an abundant supply of servants willing to work for a little of nothing.

Now consider a greater matter.

Many earnest citizens, foreseeing America's loss of the world market for cotton, regard it as a major calamity.

A calamity for whom? Not for the man who grows cotton.

Cotton is a slave crop. It made planters rich when slaves did the work. It still makes money for those who have abundant cheap labor.

But the thousands of "little fellows" who slave for it begin each crop year in debt and end it still owing almost as much as they have made—and frequently more.

If the world is taking from America the means of keeping people poor, let it go and good riddance.

Japan is taking other American markets, but she is starving her workers to do it.

Sokol's letter, sent to the district attorney's office, on stationery headed "Law Enforcement Committee of the County Central Committee of the Democratic Party," asked that the heads of seven large film studios be summoned before the grand jury.

Daniel Beecher, deputy district attorney, said no subpenas would be issued for studio executives but that if the committee would furnish the names of persons allegedly intimidated, they would be called. Beecher announced he was sending Emil Neilsen, an investigator, to question Miss Hepburn as to whether she had been "intimidated."

Sokol also said he later would ask subpenas for Douglas Fairbanks, Clark Gable, Will Rogers and other prominent Hollywood figures.

The fight for and against Sinclair, "EPIC" democrat whose candidacy for the governorship has been eyed coldly by the national administration, went on with unabated fury.

Announcement was made by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce that "great national concerns are holding back big investments in California awaiting the outcome of the election."

The announcement mentioned plans of General Aviation Corporation, a subsidiary of General Motors, for building a $1,000,000 plant and employing 1,000 men there. It quoted Harry L. Harper, Chamber of Commerce president, as saying "the threat of socialism brought about by the nomination of Upton Sinclair, had put a stop to all progress since that time, and the action but reflects the deep concern with which the east generally is watching the outcome of the elections."

Culbert L. Olson, Sinclair's head of the state democratic central committee, who recently went to Washington but failed to see President Roosevelt, said:

"The supreme court decision is a glorious thing at this time. It will renew the spirits of those whom the special interests attempted to intimidate by using the attorney general's office in submerging the freedom and sanctity of the ballot."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Devil Decides To Change Ways. SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—All good people will rejoice to learn that the devil, who has not been feeling at all well lately, has determined to change his ways and take up a monastic life.

This is plainly apparent in the campaign utterances of prominent republican statesmen in California as the contest between Governor Frank Merriam, the old horseshoe pitcher, and Mahatma Upton Sinclair draws to a close. It will be understood, of course, that the public remarks of Governor Merriam have little, if any, bearing on the situation. Mr. Merriam is merely a steady man who has been selected by the Old Guard Republicans of California to perform the perfunctory duties of the governorship.

Merriam Good At Ribbon Snipping. He is a very sure hand at snipping the ribbons at the dedication of a new bridge or highway, and you could search the wide world over for his equal at standing before an audience of parent-teachers and laying down the proposition that education is a wonderful thing. For the sort of duties which are required of a republican governor in California, Mr. Merriam is a genius. He will hold still without hitching, mind his own business and do as he is told. His temperament and that which might be referred to as his intelligence are such that he does not even realize his status in the situation. For example, if you were to ask him who is governor of California today he would reply, "I am." He really thinks he is. The other day when George Creel made a slurring reference to Governor Merriam's medieval owners the governor said he didn't know what Mr. Creel was talking about. He said he didn't have any owners, and he actually doesn't know he has.

That is why it is so interesting to hear the old guard statesmen, who will have the actual repsonbility in Merriam's next term proclaiming a determination to give California a progressive administration. Your correspondent trusts that he does not assume too much in assuming that Governor Merriam will be re-elected and the Mahatma defeated. The Mahatma's campaign has gone decidedly haywire in the last few days and it seems pretty certain that he will soon return to his task of writing plaintive pamphlets intended to make the people think they think. He talked himself into a beautiful belief that President Roosevelt would dash to his aid with the political influence of the New Deal and suffered a terrible blow when Mr. Roosevelt went into reverse and advanced rapidly to the rear. He is a very naive man in some ways, and Mr. Roosevelt is very cunning.

Mr. Roosevelt Is Cunning. Talking with your correspondent one evening recently, Mahatma Sinclair insisted that the president would help him out and he undoubtedly based this belief on one of those charmingly non-commital remarks for which the president has a happy knack. Your correspondent could well understand how Mr. Sinclair came to deceive himself for he had a somewhat similar experience himself once. Your correspondent was presented to the president one day and came away from the encounter highly elated over a remark which he took to be a great compliment. Mr. Roosevelt had said, "There isn't another writer like you," and your correspondent went to sleep on that feeling much cheered. But suddenly, in the middle of the night, your correspondent started awake wondering "Could that have been a dirty crack?" It is still a disturbing thought.

Mr. Sinclair, too, is eager for comfort and not dissimilar to (or from) the yearning type of female who exclaims "Goody! Now we are engaged!" if a young man gives her a peck on the cheek.

Life has been cruel to Mahatma Sinclair and right now he confronts probably the saddest event of an existence fraught with the gripes from the day he was born. It will be Mr. Sinclair's tragic fate to go down in the history of California as the savior of his loathed enemy, the regular republican party. He undertook to destroy the republican party and threw such a terrific scare into the statesmen in charge that they turned square and will now proceed to be as decent as they have to be in order to save themselves.

Citizens Likely To Get Little Aid. True, this is a limited promise and your correspondent hasn't the optimism to hove that the citizens will receive much benefit until the republican leadership and responsibility are scared into more conscientious hands. However, that, too, is a likely possibility now, and when it does occur and the republican party prospers, the man who saved the capitalistic state in California will have been Mahatma Sinclair. The republicans are even thinking of lifting from his EPIC plan any little details which they believe will be of use to them. Still, that was the way the Mahatma got it so perhaps he shouldn't complain too shrilly.

It is a cockeyed world that Mr. Sinclair lives in. He is always doing his enemies favors though his intentions toward them are unremittingly of the worst. In his early days he tore into the meat barons of packing town and ran them through with the terrible swift sword of his honest fury only to discover that he had cured them of appendicitis. Thanks to Mahatma Sinclair the packing business improved in health and put on not only pounds of respectability but even a fine ruddy glow of science and art. now he is doing the same for the republican party in California and there is hope that he will cut out its gall bladder.

Perhaps one distant day the republican party of California will erect a monument to the vegetarian Mahatma sitting at his typewriter and gnashing a gentle tooth at a dish of wild berries or a bag of nuts. That would be the unkindest cut.

been to some extent trimmed by debt cutting through such legal methods as the administration could bring to hand.

The president has emphasized that he did not regard the 1926 price level as one which in all respects was desirable. Some phases of this level have been adopted as goals worth striving for, but others have been discarded and ranges which prevailed with regard to certain prices during earlier years have been adopted.

During the last two months, the studies by the labor department have registered a gradual decline in food prices. On October 9, the index stood at 1.1 per cent below the level of September 11.

This decline followed a steady increase which began on April 24. Between that date and September 11, the index rose from 107.3 per cent of the 1913 level to 116.8.

The restoration of federal salaries was left by congress contingent upon the cost of living. A broad general survey conducted by the labor department is used in determining whether these costs are such as require salary increases for government workers.

These salaries not only affect the thousands of employes in the Washington departments, but other thousands in the field service of the different federal activities.

STATE DELEGATION ASKS REFERENDUM ON BANKHEAD ACT

Atlanta regional office of the Home Loan Bank board more than 100 people including practically every position of importance in the regional office."

"We request that you recall these people to Washington with the exception of any whose bona fide residence is in the territory served by this office."

Demanding the immediate discharge of Penniman, the delegation's letter said, "Mr. Penniman has been guilty of misstatements of fact to the delegation and has exercised authority in an arbitrary manner and his continuance with the corporation is not warranted under the circumstances.

"He has instilled into those under him prejudice against what he calls 'politicians,' forgetting that he sought the indorsement of members of this delegation when he was unemployed."

Delegation Attends Caucus.

Attending the caucus were Senator George, Senator Richard B. Russell and Representatives Homer Parker, of the first district; E. E. Cox, of the second; Emmett Owen, of the fourth; Robert Ramspeck, of the fifth; Braswell Deen, of the fifth; M. C. Tarver, of the seventh, and Representative-designate B. Frank Whelchel, of the ninth.

Senator George said the caucus was authorized to speak for Representatives Carl Vinson, of the sixth district, and B. T. Castellow, of the third.

Representative-designate Hugh Peterson, who defeated Representative Parker in the September democratic primary, also was absent but advised Senator George he was "in accord with action taken by the delegation."

3 MEN INDICTED IN 'FAKED CLAIMS'

spiracy in which $350 was claimed and $25 collected.

Kress Fraud Charged.

Scott is charged with conspiring with Sam Worthy, Edna Wilhoit and A. W. Wilhoit to defraud S. H. Kress & Company of $50,000, accepting a $600 settlement on a claim that Mrs. Wilhoit tripped on electric wiring in Kress' store and was injured. Sam Worthy and Grady Meadows and "Doc" Worthy are named as co-conspirators in another count in which it is charged the three together with Scott, sought to defraud Johnson-Fluker Company of $25,000, and were paid $150 in settlement on a claim that Meadows was injured. Count three charges that Scott conspired with T. E. Rainey to defraud Georgia Power Company of $2,500 and accepted $300 in settlement, claiming a street car accident. In the fourth count Scott is charged with conspiring with T. M. Worthy, Sam Worthy and Norman de Krasner, Atlanta lawyer, to defraud the power company of $750, and accepted $150 in settlement of a claim of injuries to John Jaggers.

Dr. Williams is charged with false swearing in signing an affidavit certifying to injuries received by H. T. Fisher. It is set forth that Dr. Williams knew that the man he certified as having examined was not in fact Fisher, but was Q. T. Worthy and that he was making a claim for damages against Firestone Tire & Rubber Company as Fisher. The affidavit sets forth that "Fisher" had a tooth knocked out, was suffering from bruises, shock and nervousness, and that in the physician's opinion some of the injuries were permanent.

Bonds Set at $500.

Bonds for the three men were set at $500 each. Turnipseed and Dr. Williams posted bond Wednesday afternoon, and Scott notified the sheriff's office that he would make bond Thursday.

Investigation of the alleged fake claims in which it is said that losses of more than $200,000 a year have been suffered by victims, is being continued by the office of Solicitor-General John A. Boykin. Persons who fear that they are the victims of fake claims have been asked to bring their data to the solicitor-general, and many have responded. It is said that the taxicab companies and the Georgia Power Company have been the principal victims, although cases against smaller firms involving alleged truck accidents are being investigated.

The three Worthys named in the indictments returned against Scott and Turnipseed were indicted some time ago soon after the investigation was launched in connection with similar claims.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

By MOLLIE MERRICK.

(In which Rudy Vallee substitutes for Mollie Merrick, and tells you his opinion of what part his college training played in his highly successful musical career.)

By RUDY VALLEE.

(Copyright, 1934, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 31.—I have often been asked whether or not I thought my college training was responsible for any success I may have had in the entertainment world.

Like most general questions, I believe that is a difficult one to answer with a single negative or affirmative, since it requires much discussion and explanation.

I do not know a great deal about the requirements of other colleges, but I do know that to enter, stay within and graduate from Yale requires work, hard work and plenty of it. Neither money, family, prestige nor athletic ability will keep a man in Yale University.

It is an absolute impossibility for a young man to remain for the four years of a college course within this university, or any other American university, without being tremendously affected by his classroom and social contacts. It is unreasonable to suppose that one could associate with the eager, fresh and talented minds of students and the cultured, highly specialized minds of the faculty without receiving some sort of impression. It is impossible to cheat in the classrooms and it is impossible to pass most of the courses without reading and study.

Therefore, it is an unavoidable fact that those who march in cap and gown at commencement have, perhaps in spite of themselves, received a great deal from their college life.

There are also the social contacts that come from rubbing shoulders with all the types that are found in classrooms. The mind is like a camera plate, unconsciously receptive of accents, manners, customs in dress, expressions of thought. And, of course, especially when an individual seeks to pattern himself after the most popular men on the campus and the natural leaders, within this period of four years, he can transform himself in manners, speech, thought and action.

I took a course that gave me a little of everything.

There is no question in my mind that nearly everything I took has aided me, not only in my musical work, but in my general life. My study of biology has helped me in my mode of living. My courses in English have helped me to express myself more fluently. My economics and courses in history have made it possible for me to understand and appreciate everyday events that I read or hear about.

The several courses I took in the Yale music school have aided me in an appreciation of dramatic music and in the development of music, which have resulted in making my life's work all the more interesting.

But it is the study of psychology that has really aided me in my music and contributed to my success in the various lines in which I now find myself. In the handling and treatment of those under me, and those above, my study of the various branches of psychology has been of great use to me.

Just one little psychological talk on speechmaking by one of the department heads who had made it his pet subject, has aided me in my delivery, not only on the stage, but at various formal and informal functions at which I have been asked, or expected, to say something.

Moreover, psychology has been extremely valuable to me in shaping my judgment of what to play, when to play it and how to play it. It has also helped me in my selection of tunes that looked like successful songs, and in my judgment of the crowds we play to.

JUDGE DISMISSES INJUNCTION TO BAR LINDSAY ON TICKET

seeks an order requiring Ordinary V. S. Morgan, of DeKalb county, to list Garland as the party nominee and Lindsay as an independent candidate on the election ballots.

Judge Hartley stated Wednesday night that the bill of exceptions would be filed with the supreme court early this morning with the hope of getting an early ruling on the point at issue.

Ordinary Morgan said Wednesday night on receipt of the injunction petition by Judge Hutcheson that he ordered the ballots for the election next Tuesday with Lindsay's name as the nominee of the DeKalb county democratic executive committee and Garland's name as the nominee of the state democratic convention.

Lindsay Led in Primary.

Lindsay was the winner, by vote count, in the September primary, leading Garland, second man, by 317 votes. Garland, however, filed a contest before the state committee at Macon and was upheld by that body, which declared Garland the nominee for representative from DeKalb county.

Following this action, the DeKalb county convention unanimously declared Lindsay the nominee.

Lindsay said that, if the committee desired, he would run in the general election, even as an independent, if necessary. Friends of Garland first sought an injunction to bar Lindsay's name as a democratic nominee before Judge Harper at Americus, who denied the injunction last Saturday night.

A new injunction was filed before Judge Hutcheson Monday and the hearing was held yesterday. Judge Hutcheson first overruled a demurrer filed by Lindsay and several hours were taken in arguments by both sides. Both candidates were present in court.

JAPAN STANDS PAT ON NAVY DEMAND

London Negotiations Continue Despite Apparent Impasse.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Japan tonight stood pat on her demand for naval equality, and tri-power conversations seeking an agreement for limiting sea weapons were at complete stalemate.

The never-say-die negotiators representing the United States, Great Britain and Japan decided, however, to continue their conference indefinitely, hoping something unforeseen may develop to break the deadlock.

Nippon's delegates, Ambassador Tsuneo Matsudaira and Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, were firm in their assertions that Japan will not abandon her insistence that she is entitled to equality with Britain and the United States on the high seas.

The Americans, Norman H. Davis and Admiral William H. Standley, were equally emphatic in declaring the principles of the Washington treaty, which gave Japan only three-fifths the armaments allowed the United States and Great Britain, must be continued.

Great Britain's position, although differing from that of the Americans in technical details, was substantially the same in its broader outlines.

Some Noted 'Ifs' of History Outlined in Milton Lecture

George Fort Milton (right) autographing a copy of his new book for Thomas M. Stubbs, who introduced him Wednesday afternoon. Staff photo by George Cornett.

By RALPH McGILL.

There was a furious off-shore storm blowing when Phillip's great Armada sailed on England and Drake and his freebooters went forth to meet it.

Had that off-shore wind not been blowing, England would have known Spanish rule and the inquisition of Phillip.

Had not a rain fallen after Grouchy had defeated the Prussians before Waterloo, he would have been able to reach the field and sway the tide of battle. And the sunken road before Quatra Bras would not have been there to smash to the charge of the French.

Had the state of Kentucky gone in with the southern states in the Civil War instead of throwing her lot with Lincoln in his efforts at neutrality, the south would likely have won.

Had Johnston ridden on, as he could have, and captured Washington after first Manassas—

Had Jeb Stuart reported that night before Gettysburg instead of going off on some aimless raid—

"Ifs" by Milton.

All these fascinating "ifs" of history were given an audience Wednesday afternoon at Davison-Paxon's bookshop by George Fort Milton in his lecture co-incidental with the appearance of his book, "The Eve of Conflict," which deals with the life of Stephen A. Douglas, "The Little Giant."

New documents, old letters, a whole box of them, never before employed, were discovered and used in the construction of this new book.

Through it go all the great figures of that period before the great war—Douglas, the great statesman whose statements of states' rights and the application of laws we are finding true today where we disregarded them before; Abraham Lincoln, a demagogue politician whom chance was to give the opportunity to become president of the United States through a series of debates in which he met facts with ranting and platitudes; Lincoln, who was to grow great under pressure and become one of our greatest Americans; John C. Calhoun, James Buchanan and all the figures, great and small, who participated in that drama which was to reach a climax with the Civil War, move through his new book.

In his lecture on the "ifs" of history, Milton says that the Confederacy might easily have won the war but for chance. Some of the "ifs" were listed at the outset of this story, Johnston at Manassas; Stuart at Gettysburg; Jackson and Bragg—these and many more.

Douglas Death an "If."

Stephen Douglas himself was one. Had he not died of typhoid, he might have succeeded Lincoln; had not passion rather than reason swayed the South Carolina convention in 1858 the issue of secession would not have been injected.

Had the south exported cotton in 1861 instead of holding it; had not the southern armies invaded Kentucky to alienate that state and make it swing to Lincoln's views—all these and more are the "ifs" of the Confederacy.

"It was not inevitable that the south should lose," said Milton. "And the war was not inevitable. It was useless and unnecessary, growing out of slavery which was a culture in which grew the germs of conflict. There were the economic differences, the viewpoints of the south and the north which were never reconciled; the extremists on either side wrought the civil war and not an irrepressible clash of irreconcilable forces."

This was a mere part of the lecture because Milton discussed the "ifs" of history rather than his book. "It is done," he said, "and there it is. If you like it I am glad. If you do not I am sorry."

Had Alexander Lived.

He closed his lecture with some more of the fascinating "ifs"—

If Alexander the Great had not died of Asian malaria—

If Antony's galleys had not been wrecked at Actium—

If Hannibal had conquered Rome—

If Cromwell's son, Richard, had been strong instead of weak there would not have been a Charles II, who never said a foolish word and never did a wise deed.

If Count Robert had not taken, by chance, a road through Normandy, he would not have met a Norman maid and become the father of William the Conqueror.

And so the story runs. Milton, who has become one of the outstanding historians of the nation, is of a distinguished Tennessee family. This new book is his second. His first, "The Age of Hate," a story of Andrew Johnson, was a best-seller four years ago and remains a solid and enduring historical work.

First Federal Savings and Loan Begins Operation Here Thursday

The First Mutual Building and Loan Association of Atlanta will function in the future under the name and style of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Atlanta. This change was made possible by the issunce of charter No. 555 to this institution by the Federal Home Loan Bank, of Washington.

George W. West, president of First Mutual Building and Loan Association, and who will continue to serve as president of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Atlanta, made the following statement:

"For over 10 years, we have endeavored to accumulate the savings of the people of this community in a locally-managed mutual institution, and have used these funds so raised to finance homes for the people of this community. We have felt that many millions of dollars were going out of this community every year as payments on interest on loans held by mortgagees representing eastern capital.

"It has been our desire to foster thrift, and to use the savings of our own people to finance our own homes, in an effort to keep this money working at home. We think we have done a good job, but with the crash of large numbers of mortgage companies, and with the withholding of credit on the part of those still operating, we have been unable, with our limited resources, to adequately fill the vacancy created thusly.

"Never before in history has the United States government undertaken to sponsor any type of business on such a basis. We believe the chartering of our association as First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Atlanta will enable us to more fully and more completely do the job of accumulating the savings of our own people, and with those savings financing the homes of the people of our own community."

Better Than Whiskey For Colds and Coughs

The sensation of the drug trade is Aspironal, the two-minute relief for colds and coughs due to colds. Proclaimed by the people as quicker and more effective than whiskey, or rock and rye.

All drug stores are supplied with the wonderful elixir, so all you have to do is to tell the clerk to serve you two teaspoonfuls of Aspironal. With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow and call for your money back in two minutes if you cannot feel the distressing symptoms of your cold fading away within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for all druggists invite you to try it.

Take the remainder of the bottle home to your wife and children, for Aspironal is the easiest to take and most agreeable cold remedy for children as well as adults. Quick relief for catarrhal croup and choking up with cold at night.—(adv.)

THE LAUGHING GIRL MYSTERY

By Viola Paradise

INSTALLMENT XXX.

Alby shrugged. "Not quite. But that's the basic idea. Send some one to examine the roof again and see what you will find. Anyhow, there's Joey Timmott's evidence that he saw a stockinged foot without a slipper. And the boy was right. No one would try such a precarious human-fly stunt with loose shoes. And no one would wear bedroom slippers with heels for roof prowling. It doesn't make sense."

The others assented. "All the same, the police commissioner began, but was interrupted by the entrance of Harrod with a cable from Scotland Yard. The district attorney read it aloud.

"Peter Marlin, born Hull, 1890. Excellent record. Servant in Wellington family in Surrey from age of 14 till 1914 when he enlisted. Wounded three times. D. S. O. 1918. Employed by Dr. Wellington, London, till latter sold museum. Emigrated to U. S. on S. S. Carinthia, March 26, 1928. Father died previous year. No known connection with Daisy Satterly or Asbury Sheridan. Only living relative, great aunt, Anna Marlin, has had no word from him since emigration. No relations in America. Further cables re Satterly and Sheridan later today."

"Hmm. Well, that seems to let Marlin out," said the district attorney. "But where is he, and why did he skip if he wasn't in on it?"

"Maybe he's been bumped off," said Higgins. "Dinard may have had another accomplice. Marlin may never have written that letter."

"Still," said the commissioner, "accomplice or no accomplice, I say we get on the job and arrest the one known murderer of Daisy Satterly."

"The one known murderer of that girl is more use to us at large than in jail," said Alby. "Give me the rest of this week and a free hand—"

"You talk like a story-book detective," the commissioner interrupted irritably.

The district attorney agreed. "You wouldn't be asking for time and a free hand unless you had some facts you haven't passed on to us, A. A."

"The facts are all there, chief." Alby pointed to a thick file on the desk. "A little arranging, a little interpreting, and you've got the answer. But first let me send one more cable to Scotland Yard. Take it, message:

"Send list of deaths, if any, on Carinthia sailing March 26, 1928, for New York. Also important circumstances, and names of cabin mates of deceased."

"And now," he said, lighting a cigaret. "I'll talk."

Alby talked for half an hour. At the first sentence his hearers started, their impatience changing to incredulity, and then to slow, reluctant conviction.

"But, Alby!" Higgins exclaimed as Alby drew to a close, "even if it's true, you'd never get a jury to convict on sheer logic!"

"That's why I want time. We'll get the proofs. I'm praying for a fingerprint. And I'm hoping to cop a give-away. I think I can promise something after Wednesday's or Saturday's sailings."

The district attorney and the police commissioner got up. "Go to it, A. A.," said the former. "Use anyone you like. We'll keep hands off till you give the word."

"Thanks. We'll send some fingerprint men down to see if the disappearing museum caretaker left any traces in the Coggses' house in Quapatuck. Then Higgins and I will pay a little call on Mr. Coggs, and Higgins can take him up to the museum, according to a little plan we'll work out. And I'll do some sleuthing along the road to Quapatuck. I'm taking Joey with me."

"O. K., Alby. But you hardly need the kid—"

"True. But the kid may need us. His skin is none too safe after that height-guessing stunt."

As the police car turned into Twelfth street, Alby was saying to Joey, "Keep out of sight. Wait on the floor of this car till we come out."

Alby and Higgins went to the Coggs' apartment. "We have two pieces of news for you," Alby said to Mr. Coggs. "But you must regard them as confidential. First, the gas company's report. No inspector was sent to this house last Tuesday."

"Hmph! Call that news!" snorted Mrs. Coggs.

"And we've learned who the murdered girl is," Alby went on.

"You don't say! Who is she?" asked Mr. Coggs.

"Mr. Dinard!"

"Right. But not a word."

"And you haven't arrested him?"

"Not yet. He's under strict surveillance. We're waiting till Scotland Yard confirms the girl's identity. Sometimes arrests are delayed for a purpose."

"There's still no trace of Marlin," Higgins contributed.

"There are two theories about Marlin," Alby went on. "One, that he's an accomplice. The other, that he, too, may have been done away with. If he's alive and is an accomplice, we have reason to think he'll try to get in touch with Dinard."

"So Marlin's been murdered, too," said Mrs. Coggs.

"Some of us incline to that opinion. To speed things up, we'd like to make a test. And this is where we want your assistance, Mr. Coggs."

"Papa, don't you have nothing to do with it!" Mrs. Coggs said. "That man is a fiend. A man that would murder one girl on my new rug and try to kill the one he's engaged to marry and Mr. Marlin to boot! You keep out of his way, Papa!"

"Shut up, Mama. What you want me to do?" Coggs asked Alby.

"Ostensibly, I want you to go to the museum with Higgins and have another look at Dinard's hands. But really I want you to sit at the desk where Marlin sat with a hat and coat and muffler on, so that Dinard may be suddenly brought not face to face, but face to back with you. In other words, we want to test his reaction as he sees you sitting in Marlin's chair—"

Mrs. Coggs' voice rose to a shrill scream. "I won't have it! I won't have it! He'll throw another dagger at you."

"We'll see that there's no danger of that. But it's as you like, Mr. Coggs. We are prepared to pay $25 for a few minutes' work. We can, of course, use someone else. But you've proved an observing person."

"I'll be glad to oblige," said Coggs. "Mama, you can stay here—"

"Me stay alone! If you go, I go!"

"Telephone for another car, Higgins," said Alby. "Mrs. Coggs may go with you but not into the museum. And, by the way, Mr. Coggs, have you a gray coat and hat? No? Then Inspector Higgins will have to scare one up. As for the muffler, think you remember Marlin's well enough to suplicate it, Mr. Coggs?"

"Well, pretty close, I guess—"

Mrs. Coggs complained, "It'll take time. You can't find just what you're looking for right off. And I don't want to be dragged in on any murder business."

"Shut up, Mamma. How could we be more dragged in than we are?"

A policeman opened the museum door. Inspector Higgins whispered a question, then motioned Coggs to follow him into the entrance hall.

"Sit there," he said. "That's where Marlin used to sit when he wasn't moving round. Keep your back to the stairs, Mr. Coggs. I'll go drum up our young man."

Coggs' eyes gleamed with malicious satisfaction as he sat at the handsome Jacobean desk, but as minutes passed, and more minutes, he began to fidget. His fingers drummed a little rhythm on the desk.

"Waiting's hard work, ain't it?" said the policeman who had opened the door.

"Sure is." Coggs leaned back, resting the palms of his hands on the corners of the chair-seat, transferring his restless tattoo now to the chair rungs, now to the bottom of the chair seat. As the minutes ticked on and neither Higgins nor Dinard appeared, his tapped rhythm grew faster.

Suddenly he sat frozen still. Some one was coming downstairs. Resolutely he kept his head turned away.

And then Sheridan Dinard was exclaiming, "Marl—" but the word was cut short.

"Didn't expect to see me here, did you, Mr. Gas Inspector?" Coggs sneered.

Sherry's mouth tightened, his nostrils quivered. Higgins said, "Give Coggs another look at your hand, Dinard. Nobody wants an injustice done."

Sherry extended his hands, but his eyes didn't waver from Coggs' malevolent eyes.

"No doubt about it!" Coggs exclaimed vindictively. "And I'll bet the same man that cooked up tht gas inspection killed the girl with lavender eyes and also your Mr. Marlin."

"Incredible!" But Sheridan's exclamation was hardly more than a murmur.

"The jury'll find it credible enough," Coggs jeered. "I guess that's all you want of me, ain't it, Inspector? The policeman here can help you handle him, I guess?"

"We can manage," said Higgins. "Go on home. But hang round there. The D. A. may need you. Matters are speeding up."

Sherry did not take his eyes from Coggs until the latter had limped out of the house, then, going to the telephone on Marlin's desk, he dialed a number with lightning speed. Presently he was talking to Adelaide.

"I've only a minute, darling, but I had to tell you first. I've found the right scrap of bronze. We may catch that boat yet!"

Then he handed the instrument to Higgins. "Your turn, Inspector. Get your fingerprint men. I can lead you to some fingerprints of our friend Marlin."

Meanwhile Alby's car was stopping at postoffice after postoffice on the Long Island road which paralleled the rail route to Quapatuuck. At each stop the assistant district attorney got out, leaving a disappointed Joey behind.

When Alby returned to the car, after another stop he studied a map. "Hmm," he murmured. "Cut across to Cove City, Gus," he told the driver.

"I'll take you in with me this time, Joey," Alby said as the car approached the Cove City postoffice.

"Oh, boy!"

They entered through a side door, and were directed to the postmaster's desk. This, though in a large general room, was hidden from the public eye by mail boxes which flanked two grilled windows.

Alby identified himself and, in reply to the postmaster's questioning glance at Joey, explained. "A witness in the case of the girl who died laughing, as the papers call it. I'm hoping you can help me to another witness if not to one of the criminals."

"Me!" exclaimed the postmaster.

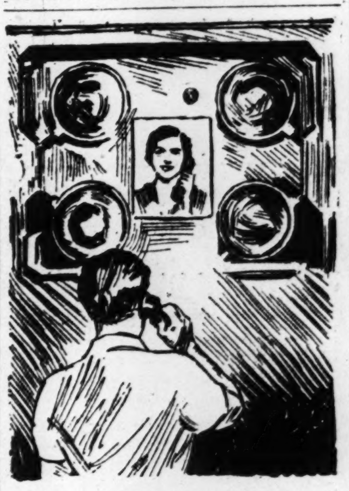
UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

SEEING THROUGH A TELESCOPE.

During visits which I made this year to Chicago's "Century of Progress," I saw several sights which were not there the first year of the fair.



The speaker sees the person to whom he is talking.

The thing which thrilled me most was a radio telephone of a television type—a telephone into which I spoke while looking at the face of the man to whom I was talking!

By the magic of radio and television combined, I was able to look at the features of a friend who was in another booth about 10 feet away. I could hear him speak, and could see him smile; and he could hear and see me. Not even the best of mirrors would have made it possible for us to see each other; but light waves and sound wives were turned into radio waves, and the final result was sight and sound.

Thus the march of science goes on. I remember the time, only 15 years ago, when a woman was told that music was being sent for miles through the air, without the use of wires. "No!" she exclaimed. "That is impossible!"

It may have seemed impossible then, but today music, human speech and many other sounds travel thousands of miles without the help of wires. Colonel Byrd has talked many a time by radio from a point within range of the south pole; and his words have been answered from North America.

We ride along in an aautomobile, and as we travel we may hear the news of a football game being played far away.

I talked with Armando Conto, the young engineer who invented the form of telephone television shown at the fair. He was born in Italy, and is now 31 years of age. I found him a pleasant and friendly person, and I felt that I was speaking to a pioneer in a great new industry.

A news dispatch from England not long ago gave words that the British government was testing out a somewhat different type of invention which might make it possible for people to see each other by telephone.

In years gone by, I have written that the day might come when we could talk to friends living in Europe, seeing their faces while we spoke to them. After observing Mr. Conto's invention, I feel even more certain that we shall be able to do that.

IMPORT EXPANSION URGED BY LEADERS

Governor Talmadge To Speak to Trade Body, Ad Club in N. Y. City.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Expansion of American imports as a prelude to increased exports was stressed by speakers today at the 21st national foreign trade convention.

Secretary of Commerce Roper urged the need for perspective in foreign trade, saying:

"The day has definitely passed when we may expect to unload our surplus products upon foreign countries without fair consideration of their needs and requirements . . . the policy of 'the good neighbor' in international trade implies a two-way process—in which the buyer and seller both benefit."

C. E. Bingham, chairman of the general importers' code authority, said "the type of exporting to be encouraged should be that which will bring the largest amount of gainful employment to the American people along with reasonable return to American industry.

"The type of importing to be encouraged, wherewith to create the foreign markets for our goods, should be that type of importing which will bring the largest benefit to American consumers and the least disturbance to employment and profits in American domestic industry.

He advocated that unprofitable lines of domestic production be abandoned to import competition, to be replaced by profitable lines of production for export.

Governor Eugene Talmadge, of Georgia, will speak tomorrow on "Why We Must Build Up a Merchant Marine."

Governor Talmadge left Wednesday for New York city, where he is to make two speeches today.

The first will be before the marine conference of the national foreign trade council this morning, and the second before the Advertising Club of New York early in the afternoon.

He will leave New York promptly to go to Anderson, S. C., to be the guest of the Anderson County fair on November 2. He will return to Atlanta from Anderson.

Thomas To Advocate Monetary Reforms

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 31.—(UP)—Three further monetary reforms of revolutionary nature are going to be the big problem of the next congress, possibly blocking all other legislation until they are accomplished, Senator Elmer Thomas, of Oklahoma, said tonight in a statement to the United Press.

Enumerating the measures he will introduce, "and fight for until they are passed," Thomas predicted:

1. The government will take over the Federal Reserve System, purchasing the $187,000,000 federal reserve stock now held by other banks.
2. Further devaluation of the dollar to the legal limit. This would mean removing an additional 10 per cent of the gold content, or cutting the dollar to 11 plus grains of gold.
3. Calling in all of the nine separate kinds of money now in circulation, and issuance of one kind of paper money against the metal, gold and silver reserves.

Dixie Farm Leaders Discuss Cotton Act

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Commissioners of agriculture from six southern states held a general discussion of the Bankhead cotton control act today with Chester C. Davis, farm administrator, and Culley A. Cobb, AAA cotton chief.

While no opposition to the measure was expressed, the commissioners asked that something be done to aid small growers who produce only one or two bales of cotton.

Quotas in some instances, it was said, are less than a bale to a farmer.

Georgia was represented at the conference by its present commissioner, G. C. Adams, and by Tom Linder, who will succeed him in January.

Ayres, Ginger Rogers Of Films Will Wed

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The engagement of Ginger Rogers, vivacious screen actress, and Lew Ayres, screen star, was announced tonight by Mrs. Lela E. Rogers, the actress' mother.

The announcement came after Miss Rogers, whose real name is Virginia Katherine McMath, had repeatedly denied a romance but had proudly displayed to her friends a large diamond ring.

Ayres' full name is Lewis Frederick Ayres.

The marriage will take place November 10 or 11 in a Hollywood church, said Mrs. Rogers, but there will be no honeymoon until both have finished their current pictures.

GOVERNOR'S AID URGES VIRGIN ISLANDS PROBE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—(AP)—A "sweeping, open investigation" of the administration of the Virgin Islands was proposed to congress today by Paul C. Yates, who recently resigned as executive assistant to the islands' governor, Paul M. Pearson.

Yates filed a petition with the chairmen of the senate territories and house insular affairs committees charging the Pearson regime was "wasteful, extravagant, inefficient and tainted with corruption."

TRANSIENT USE HINTED IN LONG VOTE INQUIRY

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Robert Gomillon, 26-year-old star witness against four ward leaders of the Huey Long political organization charged with buying votes, testified today in criminal district court that unregistered voters were herded out of the government transient bureau here at $1 a head to vote for the victorious Long candidates in the September 11 congressional election.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Visualizing the time when travel between New York and London will be a matter of 36 hours through a combination of present types of airships and airplanes, Lieutenant Commander C. E. Rosendahl, commanding officer of the naval air station at Lakehurst, today laid before the federal aviation commission a comprehensive program for development of lighter-than-air types of aircraft.

Emphasizing the importance of airships from a commercial as well as a military standpoint, Commander Rosendahl told the commission the United States cannot afford to sit by and see other nations develop dirigible trade routes. He was one of a series of witnesses heard by the commission Wednesday in advocacy of a definite government program of airship construction.

Foreign Trade Challenge.

Carl B. Fritsche, president of the Metal Clad Airship Corporation, of Detroit, sounded a warning that government airship construction offers the only means of meeting the challenge of European nations in building super-ocean liners for international commerce.

"We should recognize that value of airships for trade penetration," said Mr. Fritsche, whose company built the world's first successful metal clad airship, the ZMC-2, for the United States navy. "Only through the establishment of world airship services can we recapture our position in the field of commerce and shipping."

Rosendahl, former commander of the Los Angeles and the Akron, who is regarded as America's most experienced airship captain, strongly urged the commission to approve the $17,000,000 lighter-than-air craft development program recently recommended by officials of the department of commerce and the national advisory committee for aeronautics. In addition, he asked favorable consideration of the following proposals:

Rosendahl's Proposals.

Early replacement of the Akron.

Recommission of the Los Angeles for flight duty as a training and experimental ship.

Training of both naval and commercial airship personnel.

Building of the most promising airship, in addition to others recommend, in the event new but somewhat radical types of large airships appear on the scene and indicate sufficient promise of development.

Prosecute vigorously an experimental and technical research program for airships.

Provide adequate airship harbors and promote improved weather knowledge for ocean service.

Advantages Cited.

Questioned by Vice Chairman Edward P. Warner, who is in charge of the hearings during the absence of Chairman Clark Howell, Commander Rosendahl enumerated a number of advantages which he said airships held over airplanes, despite the latter's high speed. Among these he included safety, cruising range and load.

Declaring that the greatest need of the airship today is cheap helium, non-inflammable gas, Commander Garland Fulton, of the United States navy, outlined to the commission ways in which the helium situation might be helped. He said estimates of the total known quantity of helium available in the country vary from seven to ten million cubic feet, "or sufficient to take care of 20 airships for the next 50 to 75 years," with new supplies being disclosed from time to time. Part of the helium is going to waste because it is not being extracted from the natural gas, it was said.

PWA Aid Suggested.

Immediate construction of two giant airships through use of PWA funds was strongly urged by Senator Robert W. Bulkley, of Ohio, who appeared during the afternoon session. Anticipating that congress at its next session will be asked to appropriate additional public works funds, he said it would be proper for the aviation commission to incorporate in its report some recommendation for applying the new funds to dirigible construction.

Senator Bulkley, emphasizing the importance of lighter-than-air craft in commercial and national defense program, read letters from Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper and Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes to show there is some confusion as to the availability of public works funds for airship construction. Secretary Roper favored such use of PWA funds but Mr. Ickes held they were not available for this purpose now, he said.

"In view of this situation," said Senator Bulkley, "it is important that the federal aviation commission make a recommendation on the subject. The whole situation seems to depend on the action to be taken by the commission."

Helium Price Discussed.

James T. Howington, vice president of the Helium Company of Louisville, Ky., told the commission that large-scale airship operations will make it possible for helium producers to operate at plant capacity with a consequent reduction in price to a point where helium will be more economical than hydrogen.

"Since a lower price of helium than has ever prevailed is a necessary precedent to large-scale commercial airship development, I suggest," said Mr. Howington, "that the entire helium orders of the army and navy be placed with the private producer until commercial operations are sufficient to take plant capacity. This will immediately lower the current price."

He also recommended that export restrictions on helium be removed and the product be allowed to move freely.

John W. Finch, director of the United States bureau of mines, outlined to the commission the part the bureau plays in the development of helium sources of supply.

Palmer Christian, Noted Organist, To Give Recital in Atlanta Tonight

By MOZELLE HORTON.

PALMER CHRISTIAN.

Palmer Christian, conceded one of the foremost concert organists of the country, is in Atlanta to present an organ recital this evening at the First Baptist church, corner Peachtree and Fourth streets. His concert will be one of the outstanding events of the celebration season of the twentieth anniversary of the Georgia Chapter of the American Guild of Organists, Wilbur Rowand, of Shorter College, present dean.

I happened to find Dr. Christian at the console of the W. W. Orr Memorial organ of the First Baptist church yesterday morning, "paying the price of all good organists" (as he said)—practicing. And I was lucky enough to be able to interrupt his practice without disturbing his disposition.

Mr. Christian's first comments were on the beautiful Pilcher organ on which he was playing. He expressed gratitude for finding it such a flexible, responsive instrument, giving desired results with the minimum effort, which is quite a compliment to any organ. He also described the tone as "unsually lovely and sympathetic."

Mr. Christian is head of the organ department of the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, Mich. As he explained, his is really a double title. He is called Professor of Organ and University Organist. He teaches a limited number of artist pupils, and gives weekly organ concerts at the university.

By the way, Mr. Christian will play his entire program this evening from memory, quite an unusual feat for an organist. In discussing this traditional "habit" of his, he modestly said that the reason he preferred playing from memory was that it "saved the trouble of carrying his music around with him." But, in seriousness, he admitted that the real reason he preferred playing from memory was that it gave so much more continuity to his interpretations, left him so much freer to concentrate on registrations, and produced so much deeper and more personal feeling in his playing. He admits that it requires a great deal of time for an organist to memorize complete programs, but declares that the idea that most organists have that it is such a "difficult" feat is in the main imaginary, becoming quite easy with practice and experience. He plays at least 15 of his University of Michigan programs from memory.

Dixie Industrial Body To Map Winter Plans

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 31.—(AP)—The executive committee of the Southern States Industrial Council will convene here tomorrow to discuss winter activities, John E. Edgerton, chairman, announced today.

Other members of the council are W. D. Anderson, Macon, Ga.; Donald Comer, Birmingham; S. L. Durham, Louisville, Ky.; H. B. McCormic, Winchester, Va.; J. K. McDowell, Jackson, Miss.; and R. C. Stobert, Birmingham.

AUTO FATALITIES SHOW DROP HERE, FIGURES REVEAL

A reduction in the number of automobile fatalities in Atlanta this year from 1933 was revealed in figures released Wednesday by Jack Strouss, secretary of the Atlanta Motor Club.

Fifty persons have lost their lives inside the city limits thus far this year while 54 died from automobile injuries in 1933 for the same period. Ten persons were killed this month here and nine fatalities were recorded in October of 1933.

Fatal accidents throughout the state show a decrease of seven for October of this year, the Dixie Motor Club announced, 47 fatalities being recorded this year against 54 in October of 1933.

In eight out of ten cases, rural accidents were caused by cars passing on blind hills or curves, it was said.

Five were killed in Atlanta in September of 1933, while four persons died of injuries in September, 1934. Last year three were fatally injured during November.

War Hysteria Rises At French Capital

PARIS, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Grave fears that war preparations may lead to war were expressed today in high quarters.

An important cabinet member in a private conversation recently stated the belief: "France faces a state of war." He said the majority of cabinet members feel this to be true.

Pierre Laval, minister of foreign affairs, skirted the subject in a press conference tonight and said:

"We have slipped back into the Middle Ages. Civilization is going to pot. We must defend it."

The warning which Marshal Henri Petain, minister of war, gave October 19 that France must prepare for a shock and the statement that Germany is becoming formidable voiced the official feeling and caused a general wave of anxiety, especially along the frontier of the Saar Basin.

Hauptmann Invites 'Jafsie' To See Him

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Oct. 31. (AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann, through Harry Whitney, chief defense investigator, today extended an invitation to Dr. John F. Condon, Lindbergh intermediary in the ransom negotiations, to visit him again in the Hunterdon county jail so that Jafsie may "prove my innocence."

Whitney quoted Hauptmann as follows:

"Jafsie identified me as the mysterious John to whom he gave the $50,000. He is mistaken and I invite him to come here again and give me a chance to talk more to him and prove my innocence. If he talks to me long enough he can't help seeing that I am not the man he met in St. Raymond's cemetery."

REVIEWING THE SHOWS

Cook Players Arrive In City This Morning

Tomorrow morning the Cook Players, headed by Charles Emerson Cook, noted producer, will arrive in Atlanta to begin rehearsals for the season of repertoire they are to offer at the Erlanger theater this winter, opening on November 12 with that recent New York success, "Her Master's Voice."

"Atlanta is going to have the finest stock company in the history of the American theater," Mr. Cook said over long-distance phone today. "The entire acting personnel has been recruited from among the pick of Broadway talent, and with the latest Broadway hits lined up for production, we will emphatically make good our slogan 'Bringing Broadway to Peachtree.'"

Name of the leading lady has not yet been disclosed, Mr. Cook declaring that he wants to spring a really pleasant surprise upon Atlanta theatergoers. The leading man is Henry Richards, tall, dark and handsome in a he-man fashion. For two years he was with Katherine Cornell in "The Age of Innocence," and for 38 weeks he played with Jane Cowl in "Twelfth Night" and "Art and Mrs. Bottle." He had an important role last season with Miriam Hopkins at the Ethel Barrymore theater in New York in "Jezebel." He played the juvenile lead in Channing Pollock's "The House Beautiful," and appeared in this Broadway production when it played the Erlanger a year or two ago.

Rehearsals for the Atlanta production will start immediately. Accompanying the players this morning will be John McKee, who will stage the productions for Mr. Cook, and Howard Bay, scenic artist. Members of the acting personnel to arrive, in addition to Mr. Richards, are Helen Kingsley, Betsy David, Evelyn Varden, Jessical Rogers, Barbara Lumdsen, Robert Baldwin, Joseph Eggenton, Richard Jones, George Taylor Jr. and Francis Swann.

Mr. Richards, by the way, is a southerner. He attended the Universtiy of Alabama and graduated from Birmingham-Southern College. He is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Omricon Delta Kappa and Kappa Phi Kappa.

Musicians and Dancers Admirers of Hampden

Musicians and dancers are among the greatest admirers of Walter Hampden, who is to be seen in "Macbeth" and "Richelieu," matinee and night, respectively, on Saturday, November 3, at the Erlanger theater.

They realize the kinship that exists between their branches of the arts and Mr. Hampden's acting. Dancers are prone to exclaim at the perfection with which his body and hands express emotions. His movements are always as graceful as their own, be it merely a step he takes or the wave of a hand. In the hundreds of letters he receives—yes, even a Shakespearean actor may receive fan mail—there is always a decided proportion of dancers among the writers.

Musicians find two things among others to admire in Mr. Hampden's stage portrayals, the rhythm of his acting and the music of his reading. Critics never fail to class Mr. Hampden as among the supreme readers of poetry on the stage today. It is the music-like quality with which he steeps, for instance, the famous "to be or not to be" soliloquy in "Hamlet," the organ tones with which he thunders forth the "curse of Rome" in "Richelieu," and the trumpet notes of his defiance to the enemies of Macbeth and King Richard III, that makes those who sing or play his ardent admirers.

Four Mills Brothers At Mosque Tonight

Starting at 9 o'clock tonight and ending at some yet to be decided early morning hour, the Four Mills Brothers, most famous colored entertainers of radio, nightclub and screen, will appear in person at the Shrine mosque ballroom at a dance and program for white patrons only.

Also taking part in the program will be Tiny Bradshaw's Harlem band, which will provide music for dancing and play while the Mills Brothers are taking essential rests between numbers.

The Mills Brothers and the Bradshaw band gave a dance and program for colored at the city auditorium Wednesday night, playing before a crowd that taxed even the great capacity of the auditorium floor.

Tickets for tonight's program and dance may be obtained at Jacobs' mosque drugstore, at Jacobs at Five Points or at Harvey's restaurant as well as at the door.

"The Age of Innocence" At Paramount Today

With Irene Dunne and John Boles in the leading role, Edith Wharton's famous novel, "The Age of Innocence" starts today at the Paramount theater, as an emotional romance said to be of extraordinary poignance and beauty.

Acclaimed as one of the real classics of American literature, the story treats of the convention-ridden mid-Victorian era and has as its central characters members of the bluebooded society of New York. A best seller in 1920, the novel was awarded the Pulitzer prize that year and received a storm of critical applause. It was later adapted for the stage and enjoyed a brilliant run on Broadway.

As produced by RKO-Radio pictures, the film is said to capture the spirit and beauty of the book authentically, and to bring out in powerful fashion those qualities which have made the story one of the most discussed of the generation.

In settings and costumes, the film is said to be one of striking color and glamor. New York of the period is faithfully pictured in the background, manners and wardrobe. Months of research were involved in the planning of the settings and costumes and in the assembling of the properties. Epecially interesting is the set reproduction of the Metropolitan Museum Art when, as a young institution, its trustees were daringly predicting that some day it "would become a most important agent in developing a taste and knowledge of art in this community."

In faithfully presenting a period and phase of American life as colorful as that shown in "Little Women" and in bringing to life on the screen a fiction classic replete with romance and drama, "The Age of Innocence" is accredited as one of the outstanding productions of the year. Pandro S. Berman, youthful dean of the RKO-Radio studio staff, acted as executive producer. The screen play is by Sara Y. Mason and Victor Heerman, who collaborated on "Little Women."

A&P STORE DISPUTE IS NEARING SOLUTION

Executives and Labor Seek Accord With View to Early Reopening.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Hopes of the more than 2,000 former employes of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, in Cleveland, for a reopening of its 300 stores and warehouses here brightened tonight as officials of the company and of organized labor studied a proposed plan of settling their differences.

Although neither the company officials in New York, nor the delegation of the Cleveland Federation of Labor in Washington, would say whether the peace plan would be approved, the optimism of the discharged employes mounted.

The company kept some workers engaged in moving merchandise from its warehouses to other cities.

The first of thees shipments was started Monday shortly after the company closed its stores.

While the national labor board in Washington continued its efforts to iron out the controversy between the company and the Cleveland Federation of Labor, another chain of groceries in Cleveland was beset by minor trouble today. Plate glass windows were smashed in six stores of the Fisher Bros. Co.

Union officials said, however, there has been no labor trouble with the Fisher stores, and police investigated possibility the windows were broken by Halloween miscreants.

Representatives of the meat cutters' union, meeting in Cincinnati, announced its proposed state-wide strike in A&P stores would be postponed indefinitely.

Mayor Harry R. Davis, in Cleveland, canceled a scheduled radio broadcast in which he was to have discussed the A&P situation. He said that in view of the prospect for a peaceful settlement, nothing should be done that might prejudice the result.

BARROW'S BROTHER IS HELD AS BANDIT

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 31.—(UP)—L. C. Barrow, "kid" brother of the notorious Clyde and Buck, gunmen whose lives were ended by police bullets, was under arrest here tonight. Police accused him of leading a youthful bandit gang of ten men and three women in a series of robberies.

L. C. was arrested while his mother, Mrs. Henry Barrow, was appearing in a sideshow in east Texas, and talking on the subject, "Crime Does Not Pay." With Mrs. Barrow on the tour is Mrs. Emma Parker, mother of Bonnie Parker, Clyde Barrow's companion in crime and his companion in death when police ambushed the pair on a lonely Louisiana road last May.

A shotgun and several pistols were found in possession of the youthful gang, officers said.

COURT POSTPONES TRIAL OF WHITLEY

Case of Contractor Charged With NRA Violations Not Set for November 12.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Trial of John Whitley, LaGrange contractor and prominent figure in inner circles in the Talmadge administration, will not be held during the November term of federal district court, which opens here Monday, it was announced this afternoon by T. Hoyt Davis, United States district attorney.

Trial of Whitley who is charged with violating the NRA construction code in an information containing 72 counts, had been set for November 12.

Davis said a decision to continue the case had been reached because all legal questions in connection with the prosecution of the contractor had been raised at a hearing before Judge Samuel H. Sibley, of the northern district of Georgia, on a petition for injunction to restrain Whitley from continuing to operate in defiance of the construction code.

Judge Sibley granted the injunction and Whitley's attorneys appealed to the fifth circuit court of appeals.

"The question of law to be decided by the court of appeals governs our case," Davis stated. "For that reason it was decided to continue the trial rather than proceed with it under the possibility that a new appeal would be made by Whitley on the same questions involved in the injunction case, in the event of his conviction."

YOU CAN FEEL NO BETTER THAN YOUR STOMACH

Isn't it wonderful how delicious a fried meal tastes? Chops, with gravy . . . fried potatoes . . . tomatoes . . . Mm! Mm! Makes you hungry to think about it.

But oh, how you wish you hadn't eaten it if it hits back a while later with sour, gassy indigestion, heartburn, and you get all out of breath.

It's too bad you let your stomach go until it is excessively acid. That is the cause of most stomach distress such as the hot, lumpy, stuffed-up feeling you get.

You haven't had any real relief because you have not had the new preparation which wipes that acidity out of your system. It is a new one . . . called Placidan . . . which wipes out the acidity, liquefies the undigested lumps of food, and soothes the irritated stomach. Then the vital gastric fluids (which have been destroyed by the acidity) become active again. Immediately your stomach feels free, active, comfortable. And so will you! Drink some water with a teaspoonful of Placidan in it several times during the day, and especially before you retire. Get a three-ounce package of Placidan at any drug store. At the new, lower price, the big package costs very little. It is not laxative. Does not purge the bowels. Contains no sugar.—(adv.)

LYNCH PROTEST SENT TO CHIEF EXECUTIVE

Guards Could Not Have Prevented Violence, Sholtz Is Told.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Oct. 31.—(AP)—The state cabinet was told by Lieutenant Colonel Percy Coombs, of the Florida national guard, today that in his opinion the militia could not have prevented the lynching of Claude Neal, negro, near Marianna, last week.

Meanwhile, to President Roosevelt in Washington came a letter asserting the mob which forcibly took Neal from a Brewton, Ala., jail and brought him to Florida to kill him had violated the federal kidnap law. The letter was signed by Walter Pickens, of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

After listening to Coombs, Governor Dave Sholtz awaited the personal report tomorrow of Sheriff W. F. Chambliss, of Jackson county. The governor said he had received the assurance of Chambliss that county authorities could handle the situation and national guardsmen were not needed.

Coombs was in charge of two militia companies moved into Marianna Saturday, after Neal was lynched Friday night, when civil authorities reported they feared further mob violence.

Coombs told the cabinet he doubted if troops could have found the mob, as it held the negro all day Friday awaiting nightfall, when residents of the area had been invited to "attend the party."

"Even if the mob had been located," the officer said, "it probably would have killed the negro before he could be rescued."

There are chapters in almost every state in the union, in Canada and the Hawaiian islands. O. are Cottey College, at Nevada, Mo., and Memorial library at Mount Pleasant, Iowa, where the Sisterhood was founded.

This will be the first P. E. O. chapter in Georgia, when the plans develop to form the chapter. Present were Mrs. George L. Brower, from Iowa; Mrs. C. E. Ewing, North Carolina; Mrs. Gilmer G. Weston, Washington; Mrs. Guy A. Moore, Idaho; Mrs. J. W. Harlan, Illinois; Mrs. Richard H. Peters, Nebraska; Mrs. H. R. The Y. W. C. A. classes, Mrs. Richard Battle will give a running account of current happenings and bring members up-to-date conversationally. These classes are open to the public and the Y. W. C. Miss Josephine Wilkins Elected President of State Women Voters

MISS JOSEPHINE WILKINS.

Miss Josephine Wilkins was elected president of Georgia League of Women Voters, at the annual meeting held on Wednesday in the auditorium of the Piedmont hotel. She succeeds Mrs. Wellington Stevenson who served the league during the past six years, and closes her administration with a record of splendid achievements accomplished for the statewide organization.

Mrs. Leonard Haas, of Atlanta; Mrs. John Morris, of Athens; Mrs. E. M. Bailey, of Acworth; Mrs. Evelyn McGehee, of Columbus, and Mrs. R. H. Hankinson, of McDonough, were elected to the board of directors. Important resolutions passed by the convention included that the legislative committee ask co-operation to secure the ratification of child labor amendment; to secure trained workers to supervise the wise use of leisure by supplying books, parks and playgrounds; to do away with the Ellis health law by substituting a statewide health law controlled by the state board of health.

Congressman Robert Ramspeck addressed the assembly at luncheon and declared in reply to a statement made recently by David Lawrence, that the Roosevelt administration is not as politically-minded as were the administrations of Harding and Hoover. Mrs. A. M. Roan, director of the third region National League of Women Voters, made an interesting address during luncheon.

Miss Wilkins Accepts.

Miss Wilkins is one of the most prominent women in Georgia, who long has been identified with this important group of women. Her youth, her beauty, her sparkling personality, and her remarkable gift for making friends are only a few of her accomplishments. Miss Wilkins possesses remarkable leadership and the executive ability to develop and promote the splendid movements launched by the league.

In accepting her high office for a two-year term, Miss Wilkins declared that the League of Women Voters is a national organization whose sole purpose is an intelligent approach to government, through the acquisition and dissemination of non-partisan information, and through the co-operative support of progressive measures.

"Such an organization takes on new meaning in this period of confusion, when the tendency towards dictatorship is more the rule than the exception and we in the United States seek to prove that our form of self-government is flexible enough to effect such changes as we may want through the orderly process of the ballot," said the new president.

"In launching the new administration of the league in Georgia, we carry on a movement that was begun with the first efforts to enfranchise women," declared Miss Wilkins. "When it was evident that the suffrage amendment would be adopted, the National League of Women Voters was organized for the non-partisan political education of the suddenly enfranchised half of the population. The organization has grown to be a fact-finding group serving both men and women.

"It is my belief that the success of the league, a highly specialized organization appealing only to a certain type of mind, will always be measured by its ability to throw the spotlight of attention and to co-operate with larger less specialized groups in effecting results.

"Under the incoming administration, we shall lay special emphasis on reaching more effectively the three large groups of women: the home; the business and professional women, including the large teaching force; and the colleges. We shall also endeavor to greatly extend our avenues for the dissemination of information, and our co-operation with other groups in support of certain major improvements," concluded Miss Wilkins.

Convention Adjourns.

The convention adjourned after the luncheon session at the Piedmont hotel, and two vice presidents, secretary, and auditor will be chosen from the board of directors. Other members composing the board will be chairmen of committees to be appointed by Miss Wilkins. Retiring officers are Mrs. Welllington Stevenson, of Decatur; Mrs. Charles Davis, of Columbus; Mrs. J. H. Downey, of Gainesville; Mrs. W. A. Ozmer, of Decatur, and Mrs. Sandy Carter, of Toccoa.

McPherson Chapel Guild Gives Colorful Costume Ball at Post

FORT McPHERSON, Oct. 31—Myriad of black cats, witches and grinning pumpkin faces adorned the Officers' Club when the Ladies of the Chapel Guild entertained on Wednesday evening at a costume ball. Golden pumpkins veiled the lights and the walls were festooned with black cats and witches. Corn stalks guarded the wide fire place and autumn leaves banked the mantel. A rustic well with an oaken bucket holding cider attracted interest and the decorations were unique in detail.

Mrs. Robert O. Van Horn is president of the guild and Mrs. Lorenzo Gasser is the vice president. Mrs. William Henry Noble was general chairman of the entertainment and she was assisted by Mesdames Walter Fullarton Macklin, Crump Garvin, Mark Brunson and Henry W. Robinson. The proceeds of the affair will be used to complete the purchase of the organ recently installed in the post chapel.

Colorful costumes chosen by the guests vied for interest. Mrs. Macklin and her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Brennen, of Texas, were gowned as twins of the kindergarten age. They wore red and white checked gingham with red socks and black low heel slippers. Huge red taffeta ribbons were caught in their brunet tresses. Major Macklin appeared as a farmer in overalls, tattered straw hat with a corn cob pipe.

Mrs. Brunson was a dainty Pierrette in a pink tulle gown with ruffs at her neck and wrists. Mrs. John R. Chester wore a straw shirt and leis as a Hula girl and Captain Chester represented Tarzan wearing a leopard skin. Mrs. C. C. Fenn in a bright hued gown trimmed with tinny mirrors was a graceful dancing girl from Bombay.

WE'VE NEVER STOPPED MAKING THEM BETTER

Our company introduced the original Corn Flakes 28 years ago. If you tried them then, you remember how delicious that new flavor of toasted corn tasted.

But if we had been satisfied with them as they were, Kellogg's Corn Flakes would never have become the world's largest-selling ready-to-eat cereal. Year by year we found new methods of manufacture to improve the flavor, and to make the flakes crisper, more appetizing.

Today, as always, Kellogg's Corn Flakes are the best made. Their tempting goodness and fresh crispness can't be successfully imitated. No other corn flakes have the heat-sealed WAXTITE inner wrapper that keeps Kellogg's oven-fresh and flavor-perfect.

When you eat this nourishing, economical food, remember that the Kellogg Company has developed a huge new market for farm products. Grains, milk, fruit and honey to the amount of many millions of dollars are consumed annually with Kellogg Cereals.

When substitutes are offered, it is seldom in a spirit of service. Buy Kellogg's and be sure of quality.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: My brother and his wife, having no children of their own, adopted a foundling. Don't tell me that inheritance isn't the deciding factor in the life of any child. This little one has had the most careful upbringing but in spite of all that has been done for her she has guttersnipe proclivities. Now here is the trouble: I don't like my little girl to play with her but I know that eventually when my attitude becomes known to my brother and his wife they will be resentful toward me and what has been a close and affectionate relationship will be shattered. What am I to do, separate the children and lose the affection of my family, or run the risk of my little girl's being contaminated?

MRS. F. L. H.

Answer: Isn't there a golden mean between these two courses? Cannot you manage to be present when the little adopted cousin comes to play with your little girl? In this way you can form an intelligent opinion of the child's mental and moral capacity and at the same time protect your daughter from any evil influences. It frequently happens that an outsider can do more for a child than her own parents, particularly if they are love-blinded and indulgent to a high degree. It is altogether possible that you may be able to redirect the course of the little one's mind and straighten her out while she is yet young. Even those who veer toward inheritance as the deciding factor in life allow something to environment and acknowledge that bad tendencies can be held in check or modified.

The presence of grown people presiding over their play necessarily has a restraining influence on children. There will be no danger of your daughter's being contaminated so long as you are chaperoning.

Family fusses and feuds are always tragic. The time comes when the call of the blood is the strongest voice we hear. At all the crucial instances in our lives we need our blood kin and when for any reason they cannot come to us, or we go to them, sorrow is intensified or joy diminished. Always keep this thought before you when you are tempted to take any position that might separate you from brothers or sisters.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Pattern 2059.

This beautifully simple little dress depends on its long shoulder straps, criss-crossing in the back like brother's overalls with important buttons where they join the bodice, to make it a little "different" from the usual thing in jumper frocks. The pretty blouse can be worn by itself with another skirt. Plaid velveteen or jersey or checked gingham would be suitable fabrics.

Pattern 2059 is suitable in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 10 takes 1 1-4 yards 54-inch fabric and 1 1-8 yards 36-inch contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

Perhaps it was the rich color of the velveteen that was shown on the shop's counters, perhaps it was the hint of chill in the air or perhaps it was the large number of women that Nancy saw who were wearing scarves. At any rate, she decided to make a scarf or two. They would make nice Christmas gifts and might well be tucked away in her Christmas gift box.

She decided to make one scarf in deep rich blue and chartreuse. While she was getting the material she selected two other colors for a similar scarf. The colors chosen for this one were red and black. And then for a different type of scarf she selected olive green.

The dimensions for both scarves are given in the direction leaflet which you may obtain by sending for it, following the instructions given at the end of this column.

Take the one which uses two colors. By following the drawing you can see that one half is cut 17 inches long and either 22 or 36 inches wide. The other half is cut exactly the same. Then the pieces are joined. Next they are slanted in as shown in the leaflet. This gives the more slender part that fits around the neck. After this slanting has been done the side seems are sewed and the material seamed at one end. Then the scarf is turned to the right side and the open ends are blind-stitched together. A loop of the darker colored material is sewed on the dark half and the scarf is done.

The second scarf calls for a square of material cut 18 1-2 inches on all four sides. It is folded into a triangle as shown. Before being sewed a doubled strip of velveteen, one and one-half inches wide after doubling, is inserted. When the sewing in is completed the doubled strip is slashed as shown in the direction leaflet to make a double fringe. Then the scarf is knotted about the neck. Nancy considered making the scarf of only one thickness of velveteen turning back a hem on the two short sides, making the hem one and one-half inches deep and then slashing this as shown.

The direction leaflet for making "Velveteen Scarves" may be obtained by sending 3 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Nancy Page in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON,
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyist.

Forsaking Overtricks.

"And you call yourself a good player!" said a voluble onlooker after watching the South player on the hand below make exactly three no-trump. "Five-odd is an absolute lay-down, and you brilliantly managed to find the play to make two under par."

South did not bother to answer, quite properly feeling that the kibitzer was beyond help. The line of play which South adopted on the hand, which admittedly made him lose two tricks that he would not ordinarily have lost, is one that would be chosen by any half-way sane player. The primary consideration should always be the fulfillment of the contract; overtricks should be disregarded if their development risks loss of contract.

North	East	South	West
1♡	Pass	2NT(1)	Pass
3NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—South of course should have responded with two clubs, and North would then probably have been the eventual declarer at three no-trump. However, South was one of those players bitten with the no-trump complex.

West's opening lead was the spade three, which East won with the ace, returning the ten. South perforce won the trick with the king. Counting his tricks, he saw that he had one sure spade trick, two diamond tricks, two heart tricks and three club tricks—only eight in all. One more trick would insure the fulfillment of the contract, and the best hope of obtaining it lay in the club suit. South realized immediately that if the club suit broke 3-2 or even if the club Jack dropped on the first round, six club tricks would be certain. However, if the club suit did not break and the West player held four to the jack, he would eventually be able to get one trick, and if the opening lead was away from five spades, three more spade tricks would be taken and the contract defeated.

South decided to make a sure thing safety play! At trick 3 he led a low club from his hand and finessed the ten in dummy. This play by South guaranteed the fulfillment of the contract of three no-trump against any possible division. If the club ten in dummy won the trick, four club tricks would now be guaranteed and probably six. If the club ten lost to the club jack and the East player had a spade to return, west could naturally have only two left, and three-odd would again be assured since South's clubs would now be solid. If the West player held five spades originally, East of course, after winning with the club jack, would have no way of putting his partner in. All in all, South's play was fool-proof. It guaranteed the fulfillment of a game, no matter how the cards were divided, and furthermore would only sacrifice overtricks less than one-half of the time.

Actually in this particular instance South's play was a losing one. East won with the jack but had a spade left to return, and the defense was thus able to take four tricks. However, the play did assure South of game against any distribution.

Mrs. Lucile Foster McMillin, United States civil service commissioner, left for Washington, D. C., Wednesday night after a brief visit in Atlanta.

Mrs. McMillin, widow of the former governor of Tennessee and ambassador to Peru, spent the day Wednesday sightseeing about Atlanta, and in conference with O. E. Myers, manager of the fifth district United States civil service commission.

Ending a tour here of six civil service headquarters, including New York, Boston, Philadelphia, St. Louis, New Orleans and Atlanta, Mrs. McMillin stated that she considers Atlanta as her home district as she is a native Tennesseean and has spent a great part of her life in the south.

Mrs. McMillin promises a longer visit to Atlanta within the next month, as she was disappointed that her short visit this time did not permit her to see her many friends here.

Tom Paine Leads Beautiful Buds Down Ballroom

Great social brilliance and eclat attended the launching of the 1934-35 Debutantes as they made their first formal bow as a unit last evening at the Halloween ball at the Piedmont Driving Club. Forming a solid phalanx of youthful beauty, the orchid-bedecked debs staged a triumphant entry as they paraded the length of the gaily decorated ballroom, led by Thomas B. Paine, whom tradition invariably names to the post of honor. Accompanying Mr. Paine was Miss Louisa Robert, president of Atlanta's 1934-35 Debutantes' Club, followed by Robert Wilson and Leonard Richardson, who were chosen by Miss Robert as her escorts, and other officers and members of the club with their escorts. At the far end of the ballroom leading to the Debutantes' table a long platform, decorated with palms, foliage plants and baskets of flowers, was erected. The Debutantes paraded across the platform where they were joined by their escorts who accompanied them to the beautifully decorated table made in E-shape. Long ribbon-like plateaux formed of Jane Cowl dahlias and richly colored malaga grapes graced the entire length of the table, the floral decoration broken at graceful intervals by tall five-branched candelabra in which burned orange-colored tapers.

Brilliant decorations appropriate of the Halloween season prevailed throughout the ballroom where a vast throng of Atlanta society assembled with a number of prominent visitors who journeyed to Atlanta for this important occasion. The attractively appointed tables encircling the ballroom at which the several hundred guests were seated abounded in colorful decorations featuring the Halloween motif. Gay orange-colored streamers floated from the ceiling and from the white columns outlining either side of the ballroom. Palms and baskets of yellow chrysanthemums provided a floral screen for the orchestra which played triumphant airs for the debutantes' entrance and popular dance numbers throughout the evening.

The striking and modish gowns worn by the debutantes added brilliance and color to the auspicious occasion as did the exquisite shoulder bouquets of orchids worn by each debutante.

Beeeep! Beeep! Here Comes Car 21 In Constitution Motorcade!

Get ready for Car 21—a brave, gallant car.

We are off on the ride from Atlanta to the sea in The Constitution motorcade. We are going from Atlanta to Savannah, a ride of some seven and a half hours, but we are going to take longer in order to stop places and meet people.

But watch for Car No. 21. If you have missed any football bets following predictions in this corner take a pot shot at old No. 21 today as she rolls between the verdant hills. I'll bet you can't hit me. Of course, you may hit Mr. Oscar Strauss Jr., who is driving. In fact, aim at Mr. Strauss. The car is moving and you may hit your old partner in the back seat.

I can hardly wait to get started. Why doesn't everyone go on the motorcade?

It begins here this morning about the time you are blowing on your coffee to cool it for drinking purposes. About the time you've dunked your fourth doughnut or consumed the fifth waffle we'll be on our way—old No. 21—faithful and true—our mechanical friend.

It's a great wallop—this motorcade. We start from a town which was once called Terminus, later Marthasville and then Atlanta.

Gash, I'm glad it was changed. Imagine sitting down at a typewriter and putting down the date line—"Marthasville, Ga., Nov. 1—The motorcade left here today"—that would be pretty bad. There is a lot in a name. This town would never have got going with a name other than Atlanta.

It was an engineer of the new railroad, a Mr. J. Edgar Thompson, who gave the town its name. He thought and thought and thought about it and finally got it.

"Atlantic, masculine; Atlanta, feminine—a coined word but well adapted," said Mr. Thompson.

We are starting from Atlanta and rolling on to Savannah through Madison, Eatonton, Covington, and other great little cities.

It was a capital of Georgia. It never had a name handicap such as Atlanta had. Terminus—imagine that.

We halt at Milledgeville for lunch. Milledgeville was the war capital where the soldiers of Georgia marched with new flags and high hopes and where, finally, the last drama was to be enacted.

And from there to Savannah—another great capital where history was made—General Oglethorpe and his pioneers on the bluff above the yellow Savannah river.

IT ENDS AT THE GEORGIA GAME.

Old No. 21 is going from Savannah on Saturday morning to Jacksonville to park outside the stadium while your correspondent goes in to cover the Georgia Bulldogs as they dive in and eliminate the Florida 'Gators.

The Bulldogs are coming back. They will no longer be doormats but will bound back into the football picture with a convincing victory over what is a good football team.

I say this with confidence. If without foundation. It is time for the Bulldog to strike. And this should be his Saturday.

Mr. Mehre reports that dentists have given the Bulldogs some new plates. These new teeth fit better. There is one big molar named Cy Grant. I expect to see it chew the 'Gators up somewhat on Saturday.

A COACHING SERVICE.

While in Milledgeville I can arrange to reserve some rooms in the state hospital for mental cases if any football coaches feel they might need reservations later in the season.

Wires for reservations may be sent care of Car No. 21 in the motorcade at Milledgeville. I will try for front rooms for all coaches applying.

Mr. Frank Thomas, at Tuscaloosa, comforts himself because the Alabama state institution is located in Tuscaloosa. Every fall, on the visit to Tuscaloosa, Mr. Thomas and I drive by. "Several times," said Mr. Thomas, "I have got in the car and started over here to stay, but lost my nerve at the door."

But this year, with the Crimson Tide rolling along like Old Man River, Mr. Thomas can sit back in something approaching calm.

FOOTBALL THIS WEEK.

There is little chance that the ugly old head of the Upset spectre will rear itself in our set this week-end.

The North Carolina-Georgia Tech game sees North Carolina as the team to select on the basis of performance. But there is a lot of Tech money around town. The impression seems to be that Tech got back its confidence in the Tulane game and will come storming back to beat the tar out of the Tarheels.

The cold facts do not substantiate this. North Carolina has a stout line and good kicking, good passing and some fair running in the backfield.

On form one must select the Tarheels. Yet Tech is casting a longer shadow each day. The Jackets are running with a lot of confidence. They, however, must remain the hunch bet in that game.

Georgia and Florida, on the basis of performance, appear about even with Georgia as my choice to win. If they do not win this one the Bulldogs will not win another one all fall. Return of Cy Grant will help.

Alabama should take Kentucky with some trouble by a couple of touches; Vanderbilt will have trouble with George Washington; Tennessee is my choice in the Fordham game; Duke should take Auburn and Tulane will come through against Mississippi. Mississippi's Aggies will hardly halt the L. S. U. outfit for more than a quarter.

THE VAMP OF SAVANNAH, G. A.

Meanwhile, the engine is purring under the hood of Old No. 21—Does anyone know the telephone number of the Vamp of Savannah, G. A.?—the one they used to sing about?

PETRELS LEAVE THIS MORNING FOR GREENWOOD

Team Appears Just a Bit Stand-Offish; Adams Only Injury.

By Jack Troy.

How embarrassing. Tsch! Tsch! On the very verge, so to speak, of the game with Erskine they're calling those Peachtree road Petrels the Oglethorpe Pets, for short.

It seems the boys have been reading the papers again or doing whatever it is that makes a winning football team suddenly become self-conscious. Or what you might term as plain, everyday cocky.

It seems to be one of the inexplicable things of football. They're the same boys—fine boys—and they go about their work in almost the same way. The only difference is in their bearing. They begin to feel they couldn't possibly lose the next game on account of how—say—the coach is going to start three sophomores in their first varsity game.

"We'll just take it easy this week. We beat Old Abysinia last year and there's no cause for alarm," they seem to think.

ALL IS CONFUSION.

Then, suddenly, all is confusion. Old Abysinia has the ball. And scores a touchdown. And maybe scores again. The boys rock along just knowing they're going to catch up next half. But, somehow, they never do. And a good record is blown.

It couldn't be said, in all fairness, that this is exactly the attitude of the Oglethorpe Pets, for short. In all likelihood they'll snap out of it before kickoff time Friday afternoon in Greenwood, S. C.

"We only beat Erskine, 13 to 6, last year and the ball club we'll meet Friday is practically the same. Then, too, couple that with the enthusiasm of the county fair; the Flying Fleet playing in its own backyard, and you can readily see what we're in for."

REAL TEST.

It's all very true. Oglethorpe has won four games this year, tied one and lost one. And yet none of the previous games appears more formidable than the one with Erskine Friday at Greenwood, S. C.

A victory would assure Oglethorpe a .500 batting average in the football league for the season. And it would assure them a far and away better average than any other state school is likely to finish with. Then, too, there are three more games after Erskine and the old percentage can be kicked up several points.

The Stormy—pardon me—the Oglethorpe Pets, for short, leave Atlanta by bus at 9 o'clock this morning for Greenwood. 'Tis said that President Thornwell Jacobs is going along in the bus. He's not going over for the ride but to sit in there at the game and root those Petrels—Pets, for short—home.

PATRICK HOPEFUL.

Kershaw is within yellin' distance of Greenwood and all the home folks will be over there to see the game. Coach Patrick hopes he'll be able to give the small-town boys a chance to make good.

All the main cogs of the Oglethorpe machine are in working order except Lamar Adams, guard, who has an injured collar bone. He won't play.

The Flying Fleet, of Due West, S. C., certainly is waiting. Fit as a fiddle and rarin' for somebody to start something—something like a kickoff.

ERSKINE WORKS ON PASS GAME

Particular attention has also been laid to pass defense as this proved a decided weakness in last week's 33-to-0 loss to Lenoir-Rhyne College.

Both Weir and Shorty Leonard, veteran backs, suffered injuries in the Lenoir-Rhyne game and may not be able to play against the Petrels. Their loss would further weaken the Seceders who have lacked reserve strength all season.

This year's Seceder eleven is a bit lighter than the clubs usually representing Erskine. Its only victory in five games so far was a 2-to-0 decision over Appalachian Teachers' College of North Carolina.

The losses were to Catawba, 0-6; South Carolina, 0-25; Wofford, 6-20, and Lenoir-Rhyne, 0-33.

Peavine King Wins In Greensboro Show

The Georgia entry also took five firsts and two third places during the exhibition.

MAT RECORD.

FORT SMITH, Ark., Oct. 31.—(AP) What was believed to be a world's record was established here last night when Scotty McNaught, light heavyweight professional wrestler from Canada, won the first fall over Billy Jeffries in a mat show in 10 seconds. McNaught employed a kangaroo kick and body smother

'Kingfish' Long In Big Demand As 'Gate Getter'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Huey P. Long's gridiron argosy to Nashville last week has brought him into demand as a football crowdgetter.

"KINGFISH" LONG.

George Washington University, which meets Huey's athletes, the Louisiana State University Tigers, here on November 10, wants the Kingfish to come along and beat the tom-toms for the ball game.

With the plump and hilarious senator twirling the baton, Louisiana rode into Tennessee last week, attracted a huge bunch of fans and eliminated Vanderbilt from the unbeaten ranks, pouring on the touchdowns for a 20 to 0 victory.

Both unbeaten, George Washington and Louisiana are sure to draw a good "house" 10 days hence. But with the Kingfish as an added attraction, George Washington envisions a sell-out and perhaps an all-time high for capital contests.

What with Georgia reportedly offering Louisiana a game next fall "if they bring Huey along," and George Washington clamoring for his presence, Long has made quick strides as an apprentice in his new collegiate field.

He's sure to come along fast for he is a beginner only along college lines. He learned his showmanship in the bayous of Louisiana, polished it as Louisiana governor and brought it to a peak as United States senator.

SENIOR ELEVEN BEATS FROSH 25-0

By Melvin Pazol.

Exhibiting the brand of football they should have been playing at the start of the season, the Senior Juggernaut rolled completely over the Freshmen eleven, piling up 19 points in the fourth quarter and leaving a 25-0 score in their wake Wednesday afternoon at Emory. This was the first victory of the season for the Seniors and the first loss for the Freshmen.

Turman, Dunn and Williams starred in the Senior backfield. Williams, a newcomer this year, exhibited some nice low charging through the Freshman line which was good for several long gains. Creel, Matlin and Wheeler played well in the Senior line.

PATE STARS.

Pate's activities in backing up the line and in passing was the lone bright spot in the play of the Freshman. Pate rarely missed a tackle, and late in the fourth quarter with the score already 19-0 in favor of the Seniors, he passed 40 yards to McCarty. Bruce and Harris played well in the Freshman line.

The prettiest play of the game was a forward-lateral which brought the last touchdown. Dunn, standing on the Freshman 10-yard line, hurled a short pass to Williams who ran to the 3-yard line where he was tackled. While going down, Williams passed laterally to Turman who scored unmolested.

LONG RUN.

Conyers, Williams, Dunn and Wheeler all intercepted Freshman passes. Dunn ran 55 yards to score on his. Conyers kicked the only extra point of the game for the Seniors.

THE LINEUP.

11 Strokes Under Par Wins 'Dog Fight'

Dr. W. C. Warren, P. G. Hanahan, C. E. Weaver and J. J. McConneghey, with 131, 11 strokes below par, won first prize in a special Halloween dog fight tourney Wednesday on the No. 2 East Lake course.

Second prize went to Scott Hudson Jr., K. A. Stephenson, T. A. Martin and J. W. Lundeen at 140.

Two foursomes tied for third place. They were Harold Sargent, Willis Callaway, W. C. Carver and Dr. J. R. Mitchell in one group and Charlie Yates, Berrien Moore Jr., J. C. Thompson and T. L. Reed in the other. The third place score was 143.

The winners received 20 golf balls each for first prize and the tourney was one of the best in recent weeks. The scores were unusually good.

BULLDOG BACKS MAKE FINE GAINS IN SCRIMMAGE

Two Backfield Combinations Look Good Against Reserves.

By Bill Ray.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 31.—Coach Harry Mehre sent the Georgia Bulldogs through a stiff workout this afternoon on both the offensive and defensive phases of the game as Georgia ended preparations for the Florida game in Jacksonville Saturday. It will probably be the last hard scrimmage of the week since the coaches are wary of further injuries.

The first-string backfield of Jack Griffith, quarter; Paul Causey and Al Minot, halves, and Buck Chapman, full, work efficiently together as the varsity made considerable gains over the scrubs. Causey, Minot and Chapman got off some nice runs with Griffith doing the blocking.

In the second backfield of Charlie Treadaway, quarter; Alf Anderson and Jim Cavan, halves, and Maurice Green, fullback, it was the hardest drive of green and the shifty running of Alf Anderson, the Decatur boy, that stood out. The second stringers probably turned in a better performance on the offensive than did the other backs.

Green, the blond Texan who scored Georgia's lone touchdown in the Alabama game, was ripping the scrub line in a series of hard drives that found several tacklers hanging on before he was stopped. On the other hand, Anderson, whose strong points are his shifty strides and quick change of pace, used the old game of "give them a leg and take it away again" to make his gains.

The first team on the offensive and defensive skirmish was composed of Turbeyville and Candler, ends; Shi and West, tackles; Johnson and Brown, guards, and Bob Law, center.

Cy Grant, the Cornelia fox hunter, was with the starting team on the defense, but Coach Mehre did not chance Grant's recently healed shoulder for the offensive drill. Al Minot went in for him and turned in a nice job of ball carrying.

At the university infirmary, Henry Wagnon, right end, was recuperating from a cold. Wagnon, who is not taking any chances with the cold on coach's orders will be in shape by Saturday.

"Dub" Law, Waynesboro guard, and John McKnight, fiery center, were out of the scrimmages. Law has a sprained knee while McKnight has a slight leg bruise. John Bond, the Toccoa typhoon of the backfield, also watched the fracas from the sidelines on account of his shoulder bruise.

Despite these injuries Georgia will probably be in the best shape of any game in the past four weeks when they go up against the 'Gators. Law, Wagnon, McKnight and Bond, all should be able to play unless complications arise.

MERCER COACH SHIFTS LINEUP

MACON, Ga., Oct. 31.—The Mercer squad is going about the task of preparing for the invasion of the Washington and Jefferson Presidents in a businesslike manner. Coach Lake Russell is taking every precaution, not only to have his injured ready for the opening whistle, but in preventing further injuries to his already heavy list. Never before has a Mercer squad been so beset by the injury jinx as the one of this season.

Several changes, at least in practice, were made this week for fear some of those on the ailing list will not last out the playing time of a game. Tom Porter, regular tackle, has been used at an end berth and Tyson, a guard, has been shifted over to Porter's tackle. This change was made for fear NeSmith, regular right end, may be incapacitated for full-time service. Oxo Curry, the man mountain tackle, has a slight attack of flu and likewise may be unavailable for much service.

The backfield should be in the best shape of the year, with the probable exception of Henry Allen, rgular fullback, who is nursing a slight knee injury received in the Stetson game.

The Bears are not underestimating the Presidents by any means. They have a high respect for the team that caused the Pitt Panthers so much anguish. The Presidents will show a fast and heavy backfield in Holland, Croft, Rosso and McBurney. The two tackles, Captain Burkhart and Armstrong, tip the scales at 212. Paulekas, at center, is a sterling player. In the backfield the Presidents will have a decided weight advantage. The two lines, excepting tackles, where the northerners are heavier, will be about on a par.

The two teams will enter the fray knowing very little about each other's style.

W. & J. Eleven Off for Macon.

Left behind were Eddie Myers, senior fullback, and Al Ercius, star end.

Myers is at the bedside of his mother, critically ill at Lock Haven, Pa. He underwent a blood transfusion yesterday to aid her recovery. Ercius has been on the injury list for a month.

The team will make stops at Cincinnati tonight and at Atlanta tomorrow morning, and will arrive at Macon tomorrow afternoon.

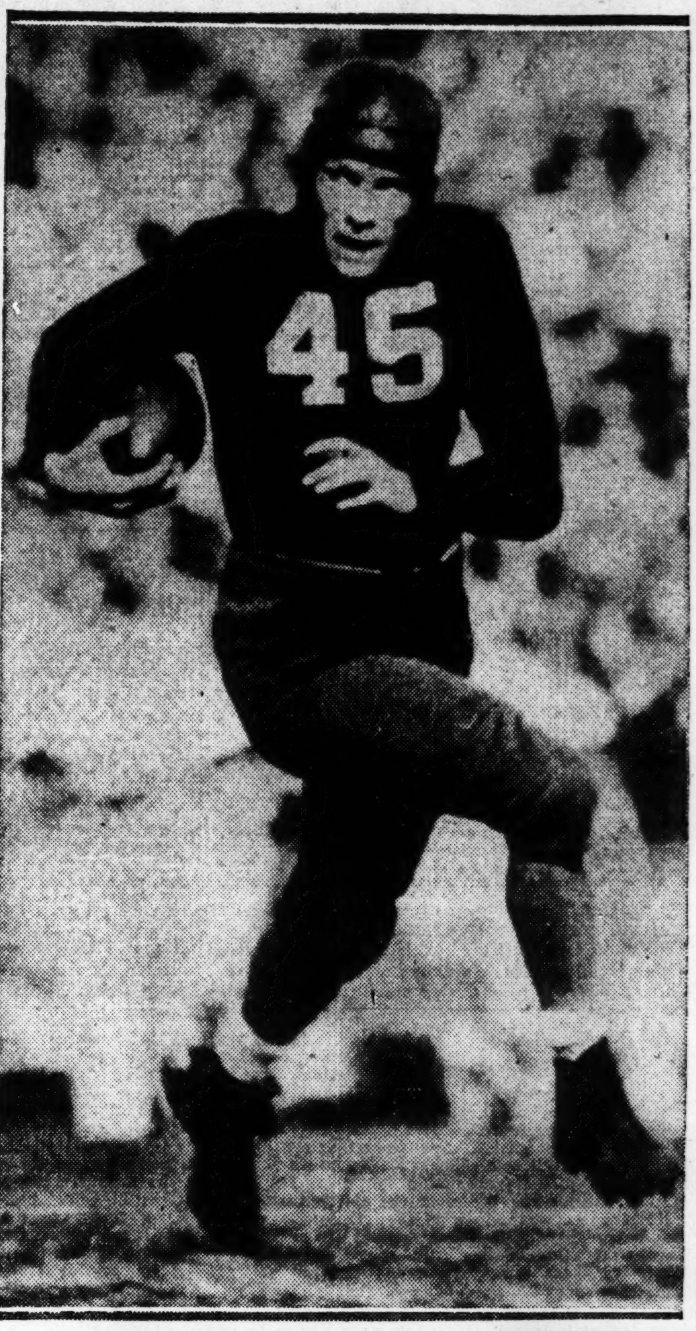
Cage Association Will Meet Tonight

A meeting of basketball team managers in the S. S. A. A. A. will be held tonight at Beck & Gregg Hardware Company starting at 7:30 o'clock. All Sunday schools in or near the city are invited to enroll teams. The association will support both a girls' and boys' league with all games scheduled at the Y. W. C. A., a centrally located court.

MASCOT KILLED.

TYLER, Texas, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Peruna, the mustang mascot of the Southern Methodist University football team, is dead, the victim of a hit-and-run driver. The freak pony, only 28 inches high, had accompanied the team from coast to coast.

Cornelia Cyclone



Cy Grant, alias the Cornelia Cyclone, Apple Knocker, et al., will return to the lineup against those University of Florida 'Gators Saturday at Jacksonville. Georgia has missed the versatile halfback in the past few games which he has been sitting out because of injuries. Staff photo.

Baseball's Notables Honor 'Jo Jo' Tonight

Joyner White, Georgia Series Star, Guest of Civitans at College Park Dinner.

By Jimmy Jones.

Joyner (Jo Jo) White, Georgia's gift to the American league champion Detroit Tigers and the outstanding fielding star of the 1934 World Series, will be honored by his "home folks" tonight.

The Inter-City Civitan Club of East Point, College Park and Hapeville is giving "Jo Jo" a little dinner as a testimonial of appreciation of his achievements and the national attention he has attracted to his own municipality of College Park and surrounding ones. The event is scheduled for 7 o'clock at the College Park Woman's Club.

Other towns and cities have been quick to honor their respective World Series heroes. And College Park, of which "Jo Jo" and his family are established residents, isn't going to be caught taking a civic nap on the proposition, so to speak. Hapeville and East Point and Atlanta were invited to join in the festivities, and of course they look upon "Jo Jo" as a home boy, for he has played all over the environs of what is called Greater Atlanta during the process of developing into a major league ball player.

Come to think of it, College Park, the home of "Jo Jo," has a lot of which to be proud anyway. The town became the envy of several larger ones when its representative at the Century of Progress "Peach ball" at Chicago, the lovely Miss Josephine Bowling, was voted the queen of the peaches.

ALONG COMES "JO JO."

Now along comes "Jo Jo" White, another Georgia peach from College Park, who had the audiences agape at the World Series with his sensational fielding and base running feats which reminded them of the original peach, Tyrus R. Cobb.

White had a good year with the Tigers, batting .315 and proving himself one of the most valuable lead-off men the club has ever had. He didn't hit much in his first series, but my, how the lad did field! He is credited with saving the fifth game, which Detroit won, 3-2, behind Schoolboy Rowe, with one of the greatest catches ever seen and he also scored Detroit's only run off Paul (Daffy) Dean, in the sixth game, which the Tigers lost, 3-1.

So tonight College Park and its neighbors will pay their own tribute to this distinguished young Georgian in a most appropriate way.

ARNOLD PRESIDES.

Quincy Arnold, mayor of Hapeville and president of the Inter-City Club, will preside at the dinner. White and his entire family will be present and "Jo Jo" will present the Civitan Club with an autographed bat he used in the series, which will, in turn, be presented to the College Park Golf Club to be hung in the trophy room.

A livewire entertainment committee, composed of Carlos Hemperley, "Ham" Manning, Paul West, principal of Russell High school, and Sheriff J. D. Bazemore, of Fulton county, has seen to the guest list and announces a veritable galaxy of baseball and sports notables have accepted invitations to be present.

These include Paul Fittery, former star pitcher and "Jo Jo's" first professional manager at Carrollton in the old Georgia-Alabama league, where he broke into the pro game in 1928; Murray Howell, Toronto outfielder and a former teammate at Carrollton; Guy Green, the pitcher who played with him in the Texas league; Nap Rucker, the Brooklyn scout and a famous Georgia figure in baseball, as one of the greatest southpaw pitchers of history; Earl Mann, the Cracker business manager; Eddie Moore, the manager-to-be of the 1935 Crackers; and Major Trammell Scott, prominent Atlanta sportsman who took an early interest in White and his baseball career. Tubby Walton, another White booster, was invited but will be out of the city.

OTHER NOTABLES.

Other well-known baseball men who will be present are Sammy Mayer, the former Cracker outfield star; Marshall Mauldin, young White Sox third

FAVORITE WINS WITH LATE RUSH

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 31. (AP)—Wychwood Abbot, handsome three-year-old English bred colt, brought sudden riches to three American holders of sweepstakes tickets today by coming from behind in the closing strides to win the historic handicap, last big race of the present season.

The winner, one of the co-favorites, paid 9 to 1 and led Commander III, another English-owned horse, by a half length at the finish. Commander III in turn was a head in front of Highlander.

The four American-owned entries never figured in the running, although A. C. Bostwick's Mate held the spotlight briefly prior to the start when he was five minutes late starting for the post. He held up the entire show.

The Irish Hospital Sweepstakes, held in connection with the Cambridgeshire, distributed 250,000 pounds in prize money on Wychwood Abbot. Of this huge total, 100,000 pounds went to ticket holders in England; 90,000 pounds goes to the United States and the remainder to other countries.

Installed along with Spend-a-Penny as favorites in the overnight switch in betting odds, Wychwood Abbot did the mile and an eighth in 1:49 3-5 to equal the Cambridgeshire record set by Disarmament in 1931.

The four American horses, as well as Mary Tudor, the French-bred colt which was the favorite until last night, found the pace entirely too fast.

None of the Americans was ever among the first eight and all finished among the stragglers.

Once the half-way mark was reached, the race was strictly between the three horses which placed.

POLO STAR KILLED.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 31.—(UP) David Miles, 43, internationally-known polo star, was killed yesterday when the plane he was piloting crashed near Junin. Miles played back on the Hurlingham team in the United States championships of 1926, and was a member of the Argentine team which won the Olympic title at Paris in 1924. Carlos Trilladel, a passenger, also was killed.

ALEX LIKELY TO KEEP HIM AT NEW POST

By Jimmy Jones.

Marvin (Pug) Boyd, a young man who has been rather unobtrusive in the role of second-string Tech quarterback this year, was dropped into the left halfback slot as an emergency measure by Coach W. A. Alexander yesterday, and fairly well distinguished himself in the scrimmage against North Carolina plays at Rose Bowl.

Boyd, who was a rather nifty stepper in Atlanta prep school circles while playing for Tech High three years ago, seemed to be more at home at the halfback berth, both offensively and defensively, and chances are the Tech coaches may keep him there awhile.

MOORE IN THERE.

With Lawrence Hays, the sophomore left halfback who tossed the two touchdown passes against Tulane, still out of uniform with an ankle injury, Coach Alexander called on Boyd to play halfback temporarily this week.

As a result of yesterday's showing, which saw the former high school flash break loose on the longest and prettiest run of the day—a 65-yard dash through the Red Devils for a touchdown—Boyd may finish out his career at Tech as a halfback.

In addition to the run, which saw him giving the Red Devils plenty of wrinkles and following his interference with the instinct of a natural halfback, Boyd came up fast from the side back position to tackle and showed remarkable agility in knocking down passes.

ALEX EXPERIMENTS.

Coach Alexander, in experimenting with a few offensive changes, also is making a couple of experiments in his various backfield sets as the work moves along for North Carolina.

The first, or starting, backfield has Roberts at quarter, Perkerson and Martin at the halves and the old charger, Jack Phillips, at fullback. Hays, when he recuperates from his injury, will be a left halfback in this set, since Martin is not used as a starting back.

Hays was still in warm-up toggery yesterday, but probably will return to uniform today or tomorrow. He has been taking his turn at throwing passes and following the signal drills, and should be all right by Saturday.

REHEARSE DEFENSE.

The Jackets busied themselves yesterday rehearsing a defense against the Tarheel plays as run by Mack Tharpe's Red Devils. And they succeeded in holding them in fairly short or negligible gains for the most part.

The varsity had the ball long enough to air out a few of the new plays the coaches have given them, as well as the old ones.

Reports from Tarheelia that Charlie Shaffer, the Carolina kicking and passing ace who starred against Georgia, is hurt and may not play here, were taken slightly at the Flats, for the simple reason that Shaffer's injury could not be any more serious than that of Hays and that the Tarheels have several other good backs, notably Hutchins and Dashiell, sophomores; Don Jackson, a nifty passer, and Mack Bell, a Georgia boy who can get in there and run.

IMPORTANT GAME.

The game with North Carolina is of exceptional importance to Tech, for it marks the inauguration of the Jackets' November campaign, which last year found them playing their best ball. They have Auburn, Alabama, Florida and Georgia following the Tarheels and if they can make a good showing in these games, it will offset some of the early disappointments.

In fact if Tech failed to upset some of these teams, it would not be in keeping with the last two Tech seasons, when the Jackets scored outstanding November and December achievements, notably in 1932 when they defeated a powerful Alabama team, including the great John Cain, 6 to 0, and in 1933, when they ejected Duke's unbeaten team from the Rose Bowl picture by the same score.

It is indeed a dull year when Mr. Alexander's boys do not slip on someone and gift them a swift kick—an entirely unexpected kick from behind. Last Saturday, it almost happened to Tulane's undefeated outfit, which was considered fairly fortunate—even by the New Orleans press—to escape defeat at the hands of the aroused men in the golden jerseys.

U.S.L.T.A. Approves Shields' Movie Job

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Frank Shields' announcement that he had signed a seven-year movie contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is approved by the United States Lawn Tennis Association but ther are a few things he must not do if he would maintain his status as an amateur according to President Walter Merrill Hall.

He must not be advertised as a tennis player, nor can his reputation, gained by playing tennis, be utilized in any way. He must not play tennis in the pictures as the definition of an amateur strictly forbids.

The contract, signed by the country's No. 1 ranking star and Davis cup player yesterday, does not call for the giant New Yorker to wield a racquet and leaves him free to continue competition.

British Bookies 'Sent to Cleaners'

NEWMARKET, Eng., Oct. 31. (AP)—British bookmakers took their worst beating in years today when Wychwood Abbot won won the Cambridgeshire handicap here.

The bookies declared themselves harder hit than on any race in the last 20 years since the winner was coupled by many bettors whith Enfield, the winner of the Ceasarewitch two weeks ago.

Betting was tremendous on the Cambridgeshire. One pool alone reached more than $100,000.

WHAT ABOUT NOTRE DAME?

Just how far has Notre Dame returned along the old roadbed? A pretty fair distance already. But the main answer won't be ready for delivery before Saturday afternoon. This answer comes in the Pittsburgh game. Any team looking for a real test, a test among the upper brackets, can find it against Pitt. There is no questioning a defense that can hold Minnesota scoreless three-quarters of the route. And there has been no doubting the speed and strength of Pitt's attack with the talent on hand.

If Notre Dame can slip by Pittsburgh, it will be the longest forward jump since Rockne's day. It will plant the South Bend delegation along the front row, despite a 1-point defeat by Texas in the opening game of the year.

Notre Dame is not going to have any mild afternoon, but neither will Pitt. Elmer Layden has had several weeks since his starting contests in which to pick his proper combinations and get them working in a smoother way.

The spirit of the squad has been extremely high. The backfield is among the best—big and fast and well experienced. Both ends are first-class. It will be largely a matter of the front wall. If this holds up, Notre Dame has at least an even chance.

After the East.

If there is one big thrill that Bob Zuppke, of Illinois, enjoys, the same comes from hanging one on the east.

Several years ago I saw Illinois with Red Grange on hand, falling before Nebraska in an early season meeting. The good Dr. Zuppke on that day gave his team only a few plays and even Grange couldn't pick up a first down.

"This bunch of mine," Zuppke said later, "needed a beating today. I'm shooting at Pennsylvania. We'll be different then?" They were. Entirely different.

For a few years Illinois was at low ebb—and so was Zuppke. The painter-philosopher began carving his way back last fall and he is even farther along this season. Any team strong enough to beat Ohio State has something. The Army defense can make few mistakes with Lindberg and Beynon running and passing.

The ope* game has advanced sharply this fall, but especially so under the Orange and Blue banners of Illinois, one of the smartest of the season's productions.

RYAN, VERGEZ AND WATKINS USED IN DEAL

Star Shortstop Has Lifetime Big League Batting Mark of .300.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—In a deal estimated by club officials to involve $100,000 in cash and players, the New York Giants tonight announced the much-discussed acquisition of Dick Bartell, star shortstop of the Philadelphia Nationals, as the first big move toward bolstering the former world champions for 1935.

The Giants turned over four players and an estimated $75,000 in cash for Bartell, outbidding at least two other National league clubs, St. Louis and Chicago. The players going to the Phillies are Utility Infielder John (Blondy) Ryan, Third Baseman Johnny Vergez, Outfielder George Watkins and John Puzzello, right-handed pitcher who performed with the Richmond (Va.) and Nashville (Tenn.) clubs last season.

Bartell, a "fighting" type of player and much admired for his aggressiveness, is 27 years old. He has been in the big leagues for seven years. He broke in with Pittsburgh in 1927, after being picked up from the semipro ranks at Butte, Mont.

He was traded to the Phillies after the 1930 season. He has a life-time big league batting mark over .300 and probably will be the lead-off man for the 1935 Giants. His presence at short will cause Travis Jackson to shift to third.

Since their collapse in the closing stages of the last pennant race, the Giants have invested $115,000 cash in new talent, according to Jim Tierney, club secretary, who announced the deal with the Phillies.

"President Charles A. Stoneham gave Manager Bill Terry a free hand to make the best possible moves, designed to give the Giants another pennant winner," said Tierney. "We have been trying to get Bartell for some time and apparently our bid was the highest."

Tierney said the club also had made substantial investments in purchasing Frank Gabler, pitcher, and Al Cuccinello, second baseman, from Nashville of the Southern Association, as well as Billy Myers, shortstop, fr m Columbus of the American Association.

National Race Is Given Clean Bill by Heydler

By Alan J. Gould.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—As an aftermath of the hectic pennant race in which the St. Louis Cardinals overruled the New York Giants, President John Arnold Heydler, of the National league, revealed today how he kept all the games involving the contending clubs under close surveillance throughout the last two weeks of September to guard against any possibility of scandal, on or off the baseball fields.

Satisfied the finish was "as clean as a hound's tooth," Heydler avoided publicizing the extraordinary precautionary measures he took until the suspicion developed that he had concentrated upon scrutinizing the performances of the Cincinnati Reds. Occupants of last place, the Reds were the victims of four straight defeats by the Cardinals at the close of the season, while the sixth place Brooklyn club was knocking off the Giants in the last two games of the campaign.

REDS OKAY.

"In response to its inquiry, I told the Cincinnati club, through vice President Larry MacPhail, that there was no basis for any suggestion that we had cast suspicious eyes at the performance of the Reds," said Heydler today. "The facts are that I had reports immediately after every game participated in not only by New York and St. Louis but by the contestants for fourth place; that I watched, personally, as many games as I possibly could in the east and that in several instances, I had my confidential representatives watching not only what took place on the playing field, but off the field.

The league executive explained that he felt it was his duty, under the unusual circumstances, to safeguard against any untoward developments and prevent the possibility of any repetition of the Dolan-O'Connell scandal of 1924.

Ten years ago, after the Giants had won their fourth straight National league pennant under John J. McGraw, accusations were made that members of the New York club had approached Heinie Sand, Philadelphia shortstop, with an offer of money to "lay down" in the closing games of the season between the two teams. The Giants didn't appear to need any help that year to clinch the pennant and those involved insisted it was all a "joke" but Commissioner Landis, after secret hearings, ban-

ROMANOFF SET FOR A BATTLE

It would seem that George Romanoff, the bearded behemoth, is on somewhat of a spot. Romanoff beat Jack Ross last Friday night at the city auditorium when he got a blunt instrument away from Ross and knocked him out with it.

But the boxing commission is on the lookout for such tricks this week and Romanoff will have to get his decision over Dutch Green, the Washington windmill, by right of might. If, indeed, he gets a decision at all.

There will be plenty of what they call dyed-in-the-wool action in the Romanoff-Green 90-minute feature match Friday night on Jason Thompson's card.

Jordan got a draw out of his match with Honey Boy Hackney, of New Jersey. Jordan and Hackney each started flying tackles in the third fall and butted heads. Time ran out before they recovered.

Ticekts are on sale at the Five Points Cigar Company, or may be reserved by calling Dearborn 3932. Popular low prices prevail.

LOSS OF STARS HURTS CHANCES OF DAVIS TEAM

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The light of hope for a successful 1935 American Davis cup team glimmered faintly today. The movies have claimed Frank X. Shields, No. 1 player, and the final blow that will leave the United States Lawn Tennis Association in the dark is expected shortly with the announcement that George M. Lott Jr. and Lester R. Stoefen, crack doubles pair, have turned professional.

Shields' contract leaves him free to play tennis but it is generally believed he will be too busy with his new undertaking to remain in active competition or be a candidate for next year's team.

PRO OFFER.

Lott and Stoefen are weighing an offer to turn pro made by Bill O'Brien, sports promoter, and William (Big Bill) Tilden and are reported to be on the verge of signing away their amateur standing and contracting to play to the tune of the clicking turnstiles.

With these members of last year's team removed from the picture, tennis officials would have to build the 1935 team around Wilmer Allison and Sidney B. Wood Jr., singles players, and a trio of youngsters, Frankie Parker, Lawrenceville (N. J.) schoolboy, and Donald Budge and Gene Mako, of the Pacific coast. z

Allison added considerable luster to his reputation last summer when he almost won the national singles crown from Fred Perry, the Briton ,after being rejected for the Davis cup team. So impressive was his shown in the closing weeks of the major outdoor season that Walter Merrill Hall, president of the U. S. L. T. A., ranked the Texan first on his list of eight candidates for the team.

Although suffering from physical handicaps, the frail and blond-haired Wood is rated the outstanding singles player in the country. The passing of Lott and Stoefen also would open the way for John Van Ryn for a berth on the team as a doubles player.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Oct. 31.—(AP) The referee's decision in favor of Carl Knowles, of Rome, Ga., over Joe Lipps, of Charlotte, N. C., in the top bout of a card here Monday night has been thrown out by the Asheville boxing commission and the fight declared "no contest." "Trooper" Clayton, the referee, said his card showed that seven of the ten rounds were given Knowles because of Lipps' "holding and hitting" tactics.

By FREDERICK GARDNER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Stocks held a steady pace today as October made its exit quietly in financial markets.

The share list firmed in late trading, but final prices were no better than irregular. Transfers dwindled to 416,800 shares, the smallest since October 3. The total turnover for the month on the stock exchange was only 15,658,331 shares against 39,372,212 in the same month last year.

Despite the evidence of a little additional seasonal improvement in business, traders played a waiting game in nearly all markets. Foreign exchanges settled down to a narrow course along with domestic security and commodity markets.

Little Effect.

Announcement that the federal government would increase government salaries 5 per cent next July in anticipation of higher prices in the meanwhile had little visible effect upon markets.

United States government bonds were irregular, and the investment list, generally, was a bit soggy.

The poor third quarter earnings showing by United States Steel Corporation was offset by a little current steel improvement. The Iron Age estimated steel output had risen 1 1-2 points to 26 per cent of capacity, the highest since the first week of August, and said prospects favored further pickup in the next two weeks.

Steels Slightly Higher.

United States, Bethlehem and American Rolling Mill edged fractionally higher. Santa Fe, Pennsylvania and New York Central were among rails improving slightly. American Can, American Telephone, Montgomery Ward, J. I. Case, General Electric, General Motors and other stocks of that caliber showed only small changes up and down at the finish.

The Standard Statistics Company index for 90 stocks finished the month at 69.9, up one-tenth of a cent for the day. At the end of September it stood at 72.3.

Most commodities aped stocks in sticking to a narrow course, but cotton lost 30 to $1.30 a bale as the result of pressure on the new October delivery.

Total transfers on the New York Stock Exchange during October amounted to 15,658,331 shares compared with 12,600,000 in August, which established a new low for the past 13 years. In October, 1933, sales totaled 39,372,212 shares.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—For trading purposes the prospect of a technical rally appears to be proportionally enhanced.

BEER & CO.—While we continue to feel that little aggressiveness will be displayed in either direction, we believe the present advance in the markt could be carried further.

COURTS & CO.—It is rumored in the Street that those who want to buy stocks which may either declare increased or extra dividends have a very good possibility of gaining their ends.

ABBOTT, PROCTOR & PAINE—We think that the market is likely to show some recovery in the next day or two.

COTTON OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—Indications are that operations in October and private crop forecasts may have an unsettling effect.

BEER & CO.—We do not expect the market to move much in either direction, but continue to prefer the constructive side for trading.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO. TO DOBBS & CO.—We are more inclined to look for a continuance of trading markets than for any more pronounced movement in the near future.

GRAIN OPINION.

FENNER & BEANE—With any improvement in foreign markets we believe domestic conditions would warrant materially higher prices for wheat.

FIRM UNDERTONE IS NOTED ON CURB

By BERNARD S. O'HARA.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The curb market had a fairly good tone today, but trading volume continued small. Transfers approximated 84,000 shares compared with 97,000 the day before.

The principal gains were recorded in specialties. Pivotal issues were very narrow. Prices wer fairly even at the opening and a mild uptrend followed. The best price levels were generally maintained to the close.

Great Atlantic & Pacific 6 per cent preferred showed showed further recovery, finishing 4 1-2 points higher. Murphy Company showed a similar advance. Fisk Rubber preferred was up 2, while Singer manufacturing, Hiram Walker, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and Lake Shore firmed around a point each.

American Cyanamid B, Creole Petroleum, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Wright Hargreaves, Swift & Co., Swift Internacionale, Electric Bond & Share, Pan American Airways, International Petroleum and Newmont ended steady to fractions higher. Pittsburgh Plate Glass was a trifle easy.

New Rule To Permit Larger Bank Loans

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—(AP)—A ruling that will permit national banks to increase loans to industry was issued today by the comptroller of the currency.

Under it the banks may make loans to industry greater than the statutory 10 per cent of capital and surplus where they have received commitments from a federal reserve bank or the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the difference.

The ruling was sent to all chief national bank examiners and to all reserve banks.

A law passed by congress last session provided that loans may be made by the two federal agencies to business enterprises through the medium of banks, with the financial institutions taking 20 per cent of the liability.

Under today's rulng only that part of a loan for whch a bank is liable is considered as governed by the 10 per cent limit.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, 10 points down, at 12.40. Receipts, 166; shipments, 1,718; stocks, 146,337.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The attention of the cotton trade centered today on the new crop October position and the weakness of that delivery had an unsettling effect on the general list. March contracts sold off to 12.20 or 6 points lower, while October broke to 11.81 or 27 points below yesterday's closing quotations. Last prices were at or within a point of the lowest for the day with the market ending barely steady at net declines of 6 to 26 points.

The selling of October increased in volume as its discount widened on the decline during the late trading. Pressure against the new crop month was attributed partly to uncertainty regarding the cotton control program of the agricultural adjustment administration for next season.

The closing quotation for October was 36 points below July. Old crop positions again felt the sustaining influence of the firm spot situation, but December sold off to 12.12 and May to 12.23 in the late trading.

Exports today 22,058, making 1,327,529 so far this season. Port receipts, 33,529. United States port stocks, 3,159,368.

The early cables from Liverpool said that trade buying there had found offerings light apart from scattered selling of the new crop in sympathy with the weakness of New York. Houses with Liverpool connections were among the sellers here during the early trading and later there was some selling through houses which might have been operating for far eastern account in the late positions.

A private Liverpool cable said interest was centered mainly in the 1935-36 new crop months, but that the uncertainty regarding Washington's future program restricted enterprise.

According to a local trade paper indications so far available point to a probable domestic consumption for October of between 500,000 and 510,000 bales.

COTTON IN NEW ORLEANS DECLINES 1 TO 28 POINTS

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The cotton market was rather quiet during the entire morning but became more active in the afternoon. The feature of the day's trading was the selling of October next season, which was forced down 28 point.s Old crop months which at one time showed gains of 3 to 4 points eased off during the afternoon on hedge selling and selling by ring traders, declining 8 to 9 points from the best. There was a slight rally of 2 to 3 points at the end on the old crop positions. The market closed steady at net declines for the day of 1 to 5 points on old crop months and a net loss of 28 points on new October.

The opening was quiet, with only one month, March, active on the opening call. Liverpool cables were about as due. Private cables stated that Liverpool was steady despite the reactionary character of Alexandria and there was scattered selling in sympathy with the weakness of the American markets.

Liverpool is due on New Orleans tomorrow 2 to 4 penny points down.

By VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—All bond market categories were somewhat irregular today and, with the exception of United States government securities, trading was relatively dull.

Transfers totaled $12,906,000, par value, against $9,808,000 yesterday. Of the day's aggregate, however, federal issues accounted for some $6,380,000 compared with $3,190,000 in the preceding session. The Standard Statistics Company average of 60 domestic corporate loans was off one-tenth of a point at 84.2.

While Treasury bonds registered declines of 1-32 to 10-32 of a point, there was a turnover of nearly $1,000,000 in Home Owners Loan 4s at an advance of 20-32. Home Loan 3s were also 1-32 higher and Liberty First 4 1-4s held a gain of 3-32.

Scattered outstanding corporation gainers included Baldwin Locomotive 5s, up 1 1-2 at 102 1-4; McCrory Stores 5 1-2s, up 3 at 74, and Wisconsin Central 4s, up 1 at 11.

Among the few sizeable losers were Paramount-Publix 5 1-2s, off 2 3-4 at 55; Illinois Central refunding 5s, off 1 3-8 at 89 1-8, and Rio Grande Western collateral 4s, off 1 1-4 at 42. Many loans were unchanged or only a shade up or down.

Transfers of all listed bonds in October amounted to $277,743,000, par value, compared with $285,009,000 in September. The Standard Statistics Company corporate averages showed a gain of nine-tenths of a point on the month.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Outdoing season low price records, wheat in Chicago today parted company with corn, which developed notable strength.

Wheat underwent a fall of 2 cents a bushel in some cases, largely responsive to cheap offerings of French wheat and to weakness at Buenos Aires, where the Argentine government appeared to be removing trade restrictions at practically the same time the Canadian government seeks to increase regulatory measures at Winnipeg. Prospective freezing temperatures apt to enlarge feeding demand gave a stimulus to buying of corn.

The close for wheat was nervous, 1-4 to 1 1-2 under yesterday's finish, May 94 3-8 to 1-2, corn 1-8 off to 1 cent up, May 76 7-8 to 77, oats at 3-8 decline to 1-4 advance, and provisions varying from 5 cents setback to a rise of 32 cents.

Assertions that the Canadian government would continue to support wheat values at Winnipeg were virtually ignored by Chicago traders.

Corn traders took sharp notice of reports that unprecedented large rural movement of corn by trucks was drawing supplies away from terminals. Oats took their cue mainly from corn.

Provisions averaged much higher, responsive to hog market upturns and to expected curtailment in Chicago stocks of lard.

Showers Forecast For Atlanta Vicinity

Cloudy skies today are expected to prevent the benevolent sun from giving Atlanta quite as warm weather as was enjoyed Wednesday, Forecaster George W. Mindling reports. Light showers may also be on the weather schedule, it was stated.

Temperature extremes registered at the United States weather bureau office in Atlanta Wednesday were 51 degrees low and 77 degrees high. The mercury today should range between 50 and 68 degrees, the forecast stated.

Mrs. W. E. Johnson, 73, of 1384 McLendon avenue, widow of Dr. W. E. Johnson, who died seven years ago, died Wednesday at a local hospital after a short illness.

Mrs. Johnson was born and reared in Gwinnett county and came to Atlanta about 41 years ago. She was a devout member of the Baptist denomination. Dr. Johnson practiced medicine in Atlanta for 35 years prior to his death in 1927.

Surviving her are five nieces, Mrs. F. J. Cooledge and Mrs. V. N. Martin, of Atlanta; Mrs. Quillian Hamby, of Villa Rica; Mrs. Mamie Faulkner, of East Point, and Mrs. George M. McKinney, of Austell; and two nephews, James Matthews, of Washington, D. C., and John Matthews of Carrollton.

BALANCES BOOKS, THEN KILLS SELF

R. F. Love, 50, cashier for the past 15 years of the White Company, makers of motor trucks, shot and killed himself at the company offices, 70 Boulevard, N. E., early Wednesday night. In notes left behind he ascribed ill health as the reason for his act.

Mr. Love left his home at 223 Hawthorn avenue, College Park, Wednesday morning, telling his family he planned to work late. He worked on his books, checking every item until shortly after 8 o'clock, and walked to the wash room on the floor above, where he shot himself through the heart with a revolver.

Love left a note to the nightwatchman, Henry Witten, in the cashier's office, telling him to look for him in the wash room, to call Mrs. Love, and to notify his doctor. After finding the note the watchman discovered the body.

Notes were left also addressed to his wife and to each of his four children, but they were sealed. In still another note addressed "To the Press," he stated that ill health caused him to take his own life and stressed the fact that his accounts were in perfect order. W. P. Archer, district accountant for the company, asserted that Mr. Love's record with the company had been excellent. He added that Love had checked all accounts to the day of his suicide and that they were in perfect order.

He had been in all health for several months. Three weeks ago he took a 10-day lay-off, the first time in 15 years of service he had been absent from work more than a single day at a time. His physician said Love was bordering on a nervous breakdown due to worry and overwork.

Surviving are his wife; three daughters, Dorothy, Louise and Frances Love; a son, Robert Love, and his mother, Mrs. Ludie D. Love. Arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

INVESTMENT BANKERS PLEDGE AID TO F.D.R.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 31.—(UP)—The nation's investment bankers today offered their full assistance to the Roosevelt administration in working out steps to promote a normal flow of hundreds of millions of investment money into industry.

Shortly before adjournment of the Investment Bankers' Association's annual convention here Ralph T. Crane, newly-elected president, said he would appoint a committee to confer with federal officials.

At the same time the association, through Crane, pledged its full co-operation with administration recovery agencies.

"The Investment Bankers' Association," Crane said, "already has, and is ready to co-operate with the administration in reopening the capital market. A trickle of investment money is coming in and there are more investment funds available now than at any other time."

The Investment Bankers' Association's pledge of support was similar to that taken last week in Washington by the American Bankers' Association.

The convention closed in an atmosphere more optimistic than was apparent last year. There was a general feeling among delegates that conditions are improving in many directions, including restoration of credit of municipalities, sale of investments to the public and prospects for a revival of foreign borrowing.

Other officers elected besides Crane, who is connected with Brown, Harriman & Co., Inc., New York city, were:

Mrs. Vanderbilt Collapses As She Fights To Keep Child

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt denied in court today that she is an unfit mother for her child, and then collapsed.

The handsome young widow broke down after a day on the witness stand in the supreme court room, where she is fighting for custody of her ten-year-old daughter, Gloria, heiress to $2,800,000.

For 20 minutes after adjournment she remained slumped over one of the counsel tables, while her brother, Harry Hays Morgan, and a nurse tried to cheer her. Later they and others of her coterie of relatives and witnesses almost carried her to her car.

"She's very ill," said her attorney. Mrs. Vanderbilt is understood to be suffering from a heart ailment, and for more than a week the trained nurse has accompanied her to court.

Swathed in black to the throat, Mrs. Vanderbilt had spent the entire day in the witness chair, denying the testimony of various witnesses that she had been intimate with Prince Gottfried Zu Hohenlohe, that she drank too much and treated her child like a "poor orphan."

The witnesses, ranging from Mrs. Vanderbilt's own mother to former servants, were there at the behest of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, her sister-in-law, who seeks custody of young Gloria on the ground that the child's mother is an unfit guardian.

Press and public were still barred from the courtroom, but Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew said later that Mrs. Vanderbilt, in tears, denied being intimate with the prince. The prince, who came from Germany to testify, has also denied any intimacy. They were engaged, he said, and the pajama costumes noted by servants, were beach pajamas, worn most of the day at Biarritz.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, the 29-year-old widow of Reginald C. Vanderbilt, is also understood to have denied the other testimony of the servants concerning drinking, and that of her mother, Mrs. Laura Kilpatrick Morgan, about her supposed neglect of her child.

Instead, she declared that last September 21 her child was "spirited away" to the apartment of Mrs. Whitney after little Gloria had said she "wanted to see the pigeons in Central park."

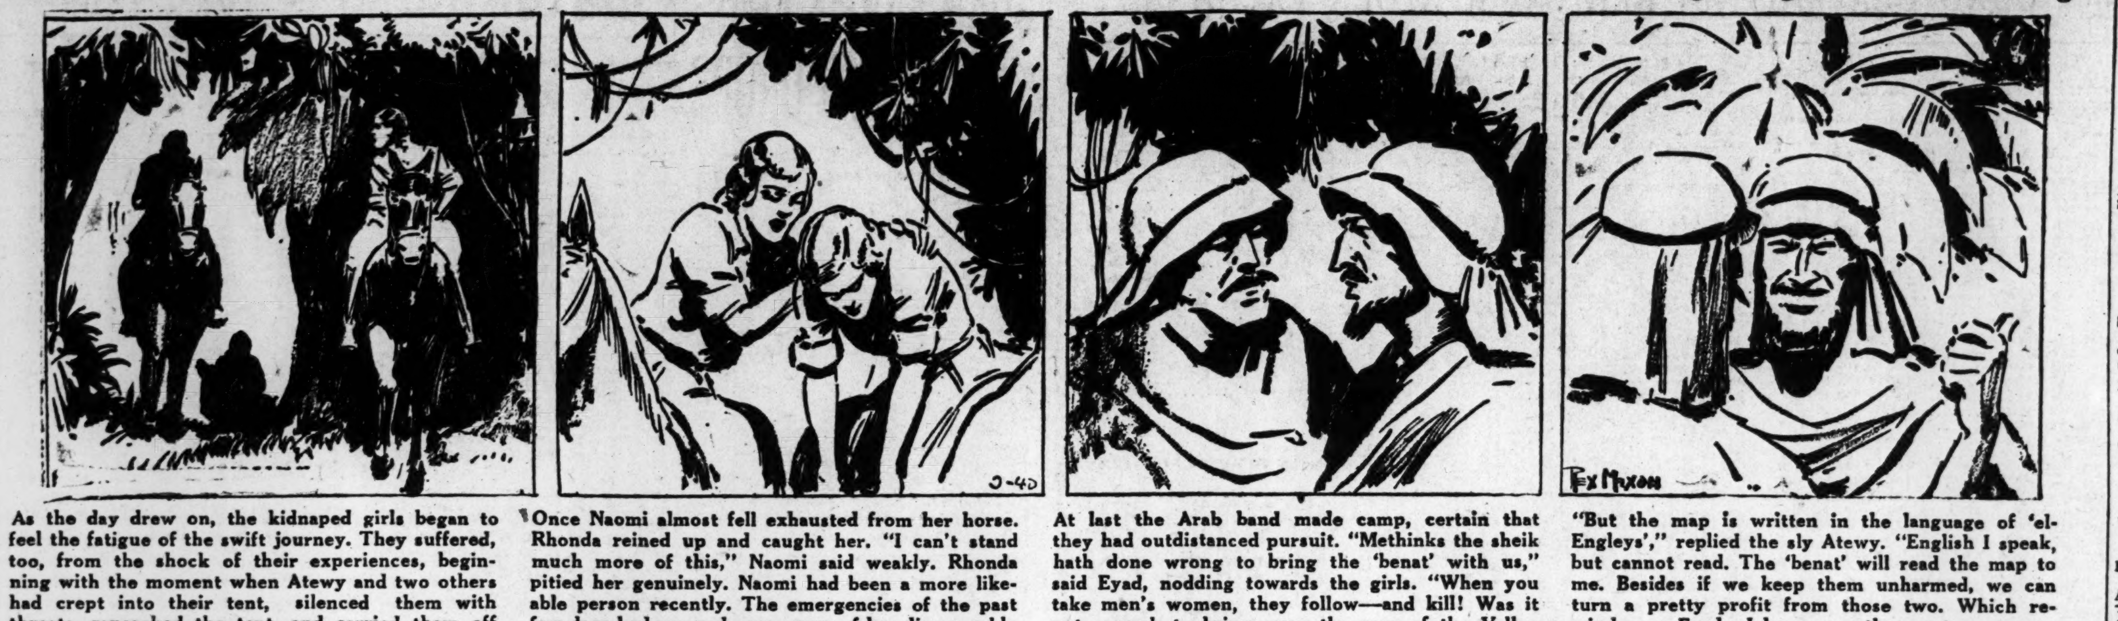
TARZAN AND THE LION MAN No. 40

By Edgar Rice Burroughs



As the day drew on, the kidnaped girls began to feel the fatigue of the swift journey. They suffered, too, from the shock of their experiences, beginning with the moment when Atewy and two others had crept into their tent, silenced them with threats, ransacked the tent, and carried them off into the night.

Once Naomi almost fell exhausted from her horse. Rhonda reined up and caught her. "I can't stand much more of this," Naomi said weakly. Rhonda pitied her genuinely. Naomi had been a more likeable person recently. The emergencies of the past few days had scraped away some of her disagreeable haughtiness.

At last the Arab band made camp, certain that they had outdistanced pursuit. "Methinks the sheik hath done wrong to bring the 'benat' with us," said Eyad, nodding towards the girls. "When you take men's women, they follow—and kill! Was it not enough to bring away the map of the Valley of Diamonds?"

"But the map is written in the language of 'el-Engleys'," replied the sly Atewy. "English I speak, but cannot read. The 'benat' will read the map to me. Besides if we keep them unharmed, we can turn a pretty profit from those two. Which reminds me, Eyad—I have seen thee cast eyes upon them!"

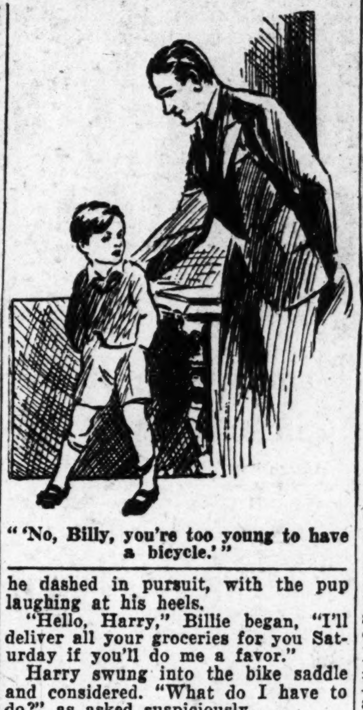
DAILY SHORT STORY

BILLIE'S BIKE

All the Kids Seemed To Have Bicycles Except Billie; When Dad Said No Billie Employed a Ruse.

BY JANTLEY MOLE



" 'No, Billy, you're too young to have a bicycle.' "

Billie Bronson heard the morning train for the city pull out of Archwood. Each impatient puff, as the engine strove for momentum, punctuated his dad's final words when he was leaving for the station: "No, Billie, you're too young to have a bicycle this summer."

The morning light lay flat and futile over the boy's clouded world.

He beckoned to his pup, and when it nosed under his half-reclining form to dart a pink and friendly tongue across his saddened mouth, he took a few half-hearted rolls with it over the lawn that was still wet with dew. Then he got up and went around to the kitchen door where his mother was doing her Saturday baking.

"Ma, how old were you when grandfather got you your first bicycle?" he said.

"Oh, I don't remember," answered his mother hurriedly and went on busily tending her oven.

"Were you older than I am now?" he tried again.

"I—now Billie you run along, I haven't time to talk. The rest of this baking must be got into the oven. Go on, play with your sisters."

Billie moved on. He thought he might go over to Harmon's hardware; Mr. Harmon might have an errand for him to run; or maybe some one had ordered a bike and Mr. Harmon would be uncrating the parts and getting it ready. He shuffled along, wondering how the bike he so often ordered by fancy might come packed for delivery to the store. When it arrived and Mr. Harmon was ready to uncrate it he would want to be there; those would be precious moments, putting it together.

As he stepped into the open back door of the store Billie heard low vituperations coming from the shop; Mr. Harmon had just banged up the telephone receiver. He glowered at Billie when he noticed him, then shifted his glare to the thing that had shattered his mellow mood.

The boy's somber gaze, following the venomous stare, came upon a vision standing in unridden newness beside an empty crate that had spilled its stuffing of excelsior. Billie's head swayed in rigid admiration of the shiny bike before him, and into his eyes it cast back the brilliance that flashed off its blue angles and polished curves.

"Nobody, drat it!" snapped the hardware man. "Mrs. Williams ordered it and now can't pay for it. . . . Here, here, get that pup of yours out of here. I don't want him messing around my store."

It was late afternoon when boy and dog headed for home; the boy, not anxious to return—not very much wanting to carry his unburdened longing to the darkness of his pillow; the pup, pretty hungry by now, Billie thought, turning his footsteps toward the short cut across lots.

When he rounded the corner of the alley that ran behind his home, the late-day sun caught the polished spokes of a wheel that was at the moment turning out onto the street at the other end, and fused them into a burning red pinwheel. "That's Harry from the grocery; he thinks I could ride even if I can't reach the pedals, and said he'd let me try some time." Billie muttered to himself.

"Hello, Harry," Billie began, "I'll deliver all your groceries for you Saturday if you'll do me a favor."

Harry swung into the bike saddle and considered. "What do I have to do?" as asked suspiciously.

Billie gulped hopefully, eyes meek with respect before the older boy. "Just get Roger and be down at the station when my dad comes in. Bring your bikes—both of you, will you?"

Harry seemed to consider doubtfully, then: "Sure, kid," he said.

Billie romped happily down to the station. When he had covered the five blocks Harry and Roger weren't far behind. The boys gathered to watch the engine wheeze to a stop, then hurried back to survey the passengers, Harry and Roger sitting their bikes casually before Billie's worshiping gaze.

"When dad gets over here you fellows just yell 'so long' and ride off. will you?" Billie pleaded. The other two stared, puzzled, but Harry finally said "Sure"—grandly—and Roger echoed "Sure."

Mr. Bronson strolled over to the group, surprised to see them there. As he drew near Billie whispered "Now!" and the boys pedaled off, calling farewells over their shoulders.

Billie stared up at his dad, his face screwed up with simulated anger. "Know what they said?" he asked with a scowl. "They said it's too bad my old man couldn't afford to get me a bike. I wanted to whip 'em, but they're bigger than me—"

A cold, wet nose found the cup of his hand, a warm tongue painted it with affection. Billie started as he heard his dad's voice calling from inside:

"I'll drive the car over to Mr. Harmon's store, dear. Billie will want to ride the bike home, I guess."

Burning Messages of Love Revealed in Slaying of Poet

WOODLAND, Cal., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Letters filled with fervid expressions of love, allegedly written by Lamar Hollingshead, student poet, to Helen Louise Doke, pretty wife of a San Leandro milk inspector, were made public here today by attorneys defending Judson C. Doke on a charge of murdering the verse writer.

"Oh, I love, Helen Louise," said one of the letters. "I am feeling the pangs of our separation. There is much I would tell you if you were close."

"You are the white core of this spire burning in my heart," said another."

Still another hinted a flight to Mexico "because it is there that we will establish our right feelings."

The letter were given out just as a jury of eight women and four men was accepted to hear the case. The prosecution laid lines to combat a possible plea of the so-called unwritten law.

Hollingshead, 23, was shot to death on a ranch near here last summer. At the time officers said Doke had confessed the killing but later the defense said it would "admit nothing." Mrs. Doke, 26, herself a poetess, allegedly confessed indiscretions with Hollingshead.

Efforts of Hollingshead, a student at the University of California, to finish a lyric poem called "The White Hibiscus" as a birthday gift for Mrs. Doke were referred to in other missives given out by the defense.

"My lovely bride," "Sweet one," "Helen, dearest one," and many similar expressions were among the salutations.

"What the mad thing is you want to do I don't know. If I can help you in your quest, my soul will go with it. If I can help you in your xplorations to unknown parts of yourself, I will."

Another missive spoke of the "deadness" of existence in Woodland, and continued:

"It is like India. Its people when born are automatically placed in a definite caste. There are the touchables and the untouchables. I cannot tolerate intellectually a place that is definitely settled."

"Helen, please don't squander yourself on people. One can destroy the beauty of true existence by attempting to reach them with the same veins tl run deep in one. Write to me soon. Helen, dear, you are my other half always. You are the white core of this spire burning in my heart. Forever and a day with mountains of years on my head. Lamar."

In other letters he wrote:

"Lovely one, my sweet bride. When I left you Friday night you were beyond the tall dark hedge. The lights of the car lighted the house that is rightfully yours.

"There is a young bride and young groom here to be photographed. How beautiful, how tremulous, how rich the air is with the fragrance of the gardenias. They have chosen the road of life together and society sanctions them the right of the way on that road. Tears are in my eyes. Our love is so fine, so instinctively beautiful and right."

"Oh, Helen, dearest one, promise me you won't get thinner. Oh, you must put on weight even if it means the isolation of my desires. Be happy in your home. Be happy with Judson, for what am I but a pale shadow, a seed pearl, a symbol of what is to come. Oh, I love you, I press you close to my heart forever and a day—Lamar and Lamar.

"Yes, darling, we will go buggy riding in Castro valley or Pleasanton, I promise and we will thrill. Oh, I too, have wanted to do this with you for such a long while. I hold you close t' my heart and caress you with tenderness forever, forever, Lamar your dear Lamar."

Prince and Commoner Bride Reported To Have Parted

PARIS, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Waxing and waning loves of Spain's royal family tonight threatened to extinguish its hopes of regaining the throne Alfonso XIII gave up after the 1931 revolution.

The determination of Don Juan, Alfonso's third son, to marry Lady Helen Maglona Vale Tempest Stewart, daughter of Lord Londonderry, British air minister, and Lady Londonderry, was reported at the same time rumor said the Count of Covadonga had parted from his Cuban commoner bride of 16 months.

There was the oft-recurring rumor, too, that ex-King Alfonso was about ready to separate from former Queen Victoria.

Juan's romance (it was denied from London) would cost him his chance at the crown which his brother, Alfonso, the present Count of Covadonga, renounced to wed beautiful Edelmira Sampedro y Robato, Cuban society girl, in June, 1933.

Because Jaime, Alfonso's only other living son, is deaf and dumb and has renounced his right to the throne, monarchist refugees in Paris tonight expressed consternation at the prospect the succession to the crown would be interrupted old rumor, oft denied, that Alfonso and Victoria would separate.

Even as Alfonso defied his father in 1933, Juan, midshipman in the British navy, today was reported to have told Alfonso he intends to marry Lady Helen even though she is not of royal blood.

(In London the lady herself said, "It is ridiculous. I cannot understand how the report can have originated." A member of Lord Londonderry's house staff also denied the engagement in the air minister's behalf.)

The Spanish prince, 21 years old, long has been reported in love with the English girl, who is two years his elder, and Alfonso, it is understood, has made repeated efforts to break up the engagement.

The former king worked just as hard, however, to keep his eldest son from marrying the pretty Cuban girl, who today was reported to have left her husband and gone to another hotel to live with her mother and sister. The official explanation was that her mother was ill.

Another reported cause of the separation, however, was the ill health of the prince.

THREE MATCHES AT CENTER HILL

This match will head a card of three wrestling matches and a boxing bout.

In the opening match, Jake Burton will meet Alton Wood. Chief Chippewa Charlie will tackle Young Simpson in the semi-windup match. A six-round boxing match between two good boys will follow the opening match.

ARMY-ILLINOIS PLAY FEATURE

By Hugh S. Fullerton Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The meeting of two undefeated teams of major caliber, Army and Illinois, shifts the center of national football interest to Champaign, Ill., this week.

It is the only contest of that standing on the schedule and probably will write several chapters of the story of the 1934 national title struggle. The Cadets have had only one real test so far, coming through with flying colors when they walloped Yale, 20-12, last week. The Illini have turned back Ohio State and Michigan by one-point margins.

The game, which probably will wreck the title aspirations of one or both teams, has a brief but colorful background. Although playing plenty of midwestern competition, Army has met only Illinois, of the Big Ten, in recent years. The Cadets lead, 2-1, in the series.

A number of other interesting intersectional frays also are at the top of the card. Only one, however, involves a major undefeated and untied team. Navy, with a perfect record so far, goes up against Washington and Lee, a southern neighbor which made Princeton battle for its victory two weeks ago.

Fordham and Tennessee, meeting for the first time, may put on a good show despite their defeats and the injuries that are troubling the Rams. George Wahsington, with only a tie to mar its record, faces the Vanderbilt Commodores. Pittsburgh, coming back after its loss to Minnesota, encounters Notre Dame, which also is traveling the comeback route at a good clip.

LONG TO SEE L. S. U., OLE MISS

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Senator Huey P. Long's headquarters announced late today that the "Kingfish" planned to attend the Louisiana State University-University of Mississippi annual football clash November 17 at Jackson, Miss.

Earl Christenberry, private secretary to Long, said the senator had received an invitation to attend the game from Justice Cook, of the Mississippi supreme court, chairman of the "Ole Miss" alumni at Jackson and that the senator replied that he would make every effort to attend.

The trip loomed tonight as the second big football excursion of Long, champion of football rooters, for the season.

Last week-end he led the Louisiana State University cadet corps, other students and fans, 5,000 in number, to Nashville, on five "Kingfish" special trains and rooted a 29-to-0 victory for the Tigers over Vanderbilt.

Long described that trip as a "grand success" and claimed that it had given the college "more advertising" than ever before in its history.

CLARK LEADING IN PRO SCORING

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Scoring sprees in the Detroit Lions' last two games sent Earl (Dutch) Clark, All-America quarterback in 1928 while at Colorado College, to the top of the individual scoring list in the National Professional Football league.

With six touchdowns, eight points after touchdowns, and four field goals, Clark has compiled a total of 56 points. Jack Manders, the Chicago Bears' driving back and great kicker, has counted 53 points, five more than his teammate, Beattie Feathers, once of Tennessee.

Feathers is setting the pace in ground-gaining honors, however, topping Clark with an average of 11 yards as compared to 5.5 yards for the Detroit quarterback.

Clark, in addition to his scoring feats, has completed 18 in 33 passes attempted for a total of 306 yards. Arnold (Flash) Herber, of Greenbay, last week's leader, has gained 540 yards with 28 successful aerials in 62 tries. Muggsy Skladany and Bob Smith, of Pittsburgh, have caught nine passes each to top the receivers.

Magazine Editor Weds Golf Champion

Mrs. Turner recently returned from Reno, where, she announced she and Harold H. Kersten, Richmond busiman, were divorced. She said her former husband and many of her friends knew nothing of her divorce.

Both Turner and his bride are prominent in sports circles. She was Virginia state woman's golf champion in 1932 and won the championship for women at the Country Club of Virginia and the Hermitage Club in Richmond.

In addition to publishing the golfing magazine, Turner was golf champion in 1928 and 1929 at the Rancho Club, Hollywood, his former home. He is the son of C. Godwin Turner, publisher of the Norwalk, Conn., Hour; the Medford, Mass., Mercury, and the Arlington, Mass., Times.

SOUTH'S LUMBER FIRMS MAY UNDERSELL CODE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Lumber firms in 12 southern states have been granted permission by the national industrial recovery board to sell below the minimum code prices on four products.

The states are Georgia, Florida, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Tennessee, Arkansas and parts of Oklahoma and Texas.

HEADLIN MEETS INDIAN TONIGHT

Chief Lakeside, the Indian wrestler, will meet Alex Headlin in the main match at the Lakewood Heights arena tonight on Promoter Frank Bettis' card.

The Scandinavian wrestler challenged the Floridan at this arena last week. This will be the first appearance of the former at this arena. However, the fans may expect plenty of action when these two meet.

The semi-final match will bring together two old enemies when "Wild" Bill Collins meets Young Londos, in a winner-take-all match. Londos has suffered no defeats in the last two years.

Down the Alleys

A brand-new team from the Southern Railway took the place vacated in the Ladies' Commercial Duckpin league last night, and some excellent scores were credited to them individually and collectively.

Misses Lillian Inskeep, Hazel Brill, Elsie Sieler, Catherine Sullivan and Bessie Conway got the team away to its initial play in the loop.

Bell System Duckpin league bowlers will have Atlanta Main and Western Electric, A. T. & T. Company and Atlanta Walnut, Accounting and Plant Engineers, District Maintenance and Equipment Engineers, Georgia Plant and General Plant, Maintenance Engineers and Traffic matched in the scheduled play this evening.

The Power Club ladies will have Dynamos and Live Wires, Circuit Breakers and Kilowatts matched in the scheduled games.

In the men's group of the Power Club, Lighting and Distribution, Accounting and Sales, Operating and Transportation are matched.

In the Junior Chamber of Commerce Duckpin league, Haas Howell and Dodd plays National Life and Accident Insurance Company, Norris Candy Company bowls Wofford Oil Company, Parks Printing Company and Signal Mountain Cement Company will bowl. In the Junior Chamber of Commerce Ladies' league the Jaycettes, Strikers, Mazdas, Crescents are scheduled.

The Knights of Columbus and Aces are scheduled in a postponed game of the Georgia Tenpin league. Other competition will be had on the tenpin alleys by the Armour & Company Fertilizer group.

Big games were registered in the Capital City Duckpin league, but the S. E. Brewing Company romped to the front to win the high team game prize of a case of Old South awarded by their own organization.

Clark Runs Wild Over Reserve Teams

The varsity completely crushed the reserves who were using the Paine plays and formations in Wednesday's scrimmage. Carl Ray, who was directing the attack of the Atlantans, ran roughshod through the reserves. The hard charging of the varsity forwards indicates that they will be in the best of condition against Paine.

Coach Harperp, formerly a baseball mentor at Atlanta University, is bringing a larger squad here for this game than any other game in the history of the institution. Several years ago Clark lost to Paine, so Coach Harper will be trying to upset the dope again and hand the Atlantans their second defeat of the current season.

Several changes in the Panthers' backfield will be made for this game. It is expected that the backfield of Brown, Littlejohn, Sneed and Wellmaker will be the shock troops to open up for Clark. All the heavy material will, of course, go in in the latter part of the second quarter, providing the small backfield fails to click.

Tickets for the game went on sale at the business office at Clark Wednesday and already there has been an unusual demand for the ducats.

Former Bulldog To Join Charlotte

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 31.—(AP) Officials of the Charlotte Professional Football Club of the American league said today they expected Jack (The Ripper) Roberts, former backfield ace of the University of Georgia, to join the team here before it leaves tonight for Tulsa.

Roberts was signed yesterday by Charlotte's coach, Buster Mott, himself a former Georgia backfield member. Roberts recently was released by the Pittsburgh Pirates, of the National Professional league.

PRESIDENT'S DUTY.

In a letter to MacPhail, outlining the sweeping nature of his surveillance, Heydler wrote: "It was my purpose and duty to know every night (1) what was the character of baseball played against New York and St. Louis by otherwise hopelessly beaten clubs? Did they present their best lineups and a fair rotation of their pitchers? Did they put forth their best efforts? (2) Were any decisions made that could possibly lead to a protested game or that could be construed as discriminating against either contesting club?"

"My personal reaction to it all I can only express by repeating what I have said to press and at a recent sports anniversary dinner in Brooklyn. 'Far beyond the drama of our world series or the brilliant victory of the Cardinals on the one hand and the tragedy of the Giants' collapse, I consider the outstanding achievement of the season the way the National league championship itself was decided. In every particular I am proud to say that race was run clean as a hound's tooth. With so much going wrong in the world today, I tell you it is gratifying to pay tribute to all those who contested in our memorable race. Every player, umpire, club and official can be proud of this season's work and of their honorable connection with professional baseball.'"

INSULL TO TESTIFY AT TRIAL TODAY

Former Utilities Magnate Will Take Stand in His Own Defense.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Defense attorneys fired a salvo of opening statements in the $100,000,000 mail fraud trial today and cleared the way for Samuel Insull himself to testify tomorrow.

Led by Floyd Thompson, they collaborated in a picture of Insull and his aids as battling to retain control of his once vast utility empire for the protection of its thousands of employes and stockholders. They began their statement soon after Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson denied directed verdicts of acquittal for the 15 Insull associates on trial with their chief.

Insull and his son, Samuel Jr., had announced they preferred to present their case before the jurors and defense counsel tonight decided that, in line with this, the elder Insull himself would relate the story of his business deals which inspired the government charges, from the witness stand when the trial sessions resume in the morning.

Thompson quoted former President Hoover's declaration on October 25, 1929, that "the fundamental business of the country, that is, production and distribution of commodities, is on a sound basis," and referred to Insull's presence at a White House conference where the former president said: "Any lack of confidence in the economic future of the United States is foolish."
